TRYING TO AVOID BREAK

Britain Wants Talks To Stop Peking Feud

By RODNEY PINDER

LONDON (AP)—Britain, hoping to keep its listening post in Peking and its hold on Hong Kong, sought today to avoid a total break with China by offering to discuss normalization of relations following violent incidents in Peking and London.

There was no detectable sign, however, that the British expected the Chinese to agree to a message suggesting talks.

The offer Wednesday, cabled by British Foreign Secretary George Brown to Chinese Foreign Minister Chen Yi, was seen primarily as an effort to prevent a further deterioration in relations at a time when British officials feel a change in China's leadership may be near and want observers on the scene.

No one would say so officially, but British officials are known to feel that Communist party Chairman Mao Tse-tung's campaign to purge his enemies is heading toward a climax in which his authority may diminish.

British officials declined to say whether Brown proposed a personal meeting with Chen or discussions through normal diplomatic channels.

REFUSED MESSAGE

The foreign office said Shen Ping, China's charge d'affaires in London, also was handed a copy of the message but refused to accept it.

The Peking-London feud has been over Hong Kong, the British colony of 4,000,000 on Chi-

TRAPPED MINER SAYS HE IS GOING TO DIE

SEOUL (UPI)—A South Korean miner has been trapped 375 feet below the surface for nine days.

Kim Chang-Son, 36, has a telephone where a cave-in caught him and has commented on the race between his would-be rescuers and death.

Kim said Wednesday he felt death was winning the race. "Somehow I have a hunch that I won't see this through," he said.

The Korean marine veteran telephoned that he had no food and has subsisted on water alone.

Mine experts said the rescuers were making steady but slow progress towards Kim but it may take several more days to reach him.

Dief Backer Takes Nomination Papers

TORONTO (CP) — Papers which would allow the nomination of John Diefenbaker as a candidate in the Progressive Conservative party's leadership race have been issued by headquarters here.

A convention official said today the nomination papers were picked up Tuesday by Keith Martin, co-chairman of the Youth-for-Dief committee. Mr. Martin declined to say who the papers were for.

The official emphasized that the move does not mean Mr. Diefenbaker will seek re-election as party chief at the convention Sept. 5-9. There are nine declared candidates thus far.

"There have been lots of stories circulating but Mr. Diefenbaker hasn't said anything and he has until 10 a.m. Friday, Sept. 8, to decide," the official said.

In order for Mr. Diefenbaker to run for the leadership, a nomination paper signed by him and by at least 25 accredited delegates to the convention must be handed to the convention organizers by 10 a.m. Sept. 8.

HANOI CLAIMS NINE PLANES SHOT DOWN

TOKYO (AP)—A broadcast dispatch from Hanoi said North Vietnam's armed forces shot down nine U.S. aircraft—eight planes and a rescue helicopter—and captured "a number of U.S. pilots" today.

Four planes and the helicopter were reported to have been downed over Haiphong, the main North Vietnamese port.

There was no immediate comment from American authorities.

ON ISRAEL

Nasser Talks Softly

(Times News Services)

KHARTOUM, Sudan — The leaders of the two Arab countries which suffered the greatest military and economic losses in the Middle East war implied in speeches at the Arab summit conference here that the time had come to seek a negotiated settlement with Israel, informed sources said today.

The hints were made by Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser and Jordan's King Hussein at the meeting of Arab chiefs of state.

Sources at the conference said Nasser's speech to the parley called to unify policy to "eliminate Israeli aggression" was moderate in tone. He told the Arabs they could either surrender or go forward united to seek "military, economic and political solutions."

It was the first time Nasser was reported to have raised the possibility of a political solution.

Hussein again dropped hints that he might be forced to negotiate peace with Israel. He urged the Arab states to "face realities and errors with frankness and manliness."

REMAINS MILITANT

Opposition to any softening of the Arab position on Israel continued to come from President Houari Boumedienne of Algeria, one of five chiefs of state who stayed away from the Khartoum meeting.

Boumedienne said in a speech in Algiers that the only way to get back Arab land lost in the six-day war with Israel was to fight for it. Having contributed nothing to the war and lost nothing, he has called for guerrilla action within Arab territories now occupied by Israel.

Meanwhile, President Abdullah Sallah of republican Yemen issued a statement today that amounted to a rejection of an Egyptian-Sudi Arabian formula for ending his country's civil war.

Sallal, speaking of arrangements to end his regime's battle with Yemeni royalists, declared: "The Yemeni people emphasize anew their rejection of all those proposals and mediations."

But he left himself a tiny loophole by adding that his government was eager to abide by any proposals that might strengthen fraternal relations among Arabs. It was felt here that the Egyptian-Saudi Arabian accord reached Wednesday was a step toward that end.

WITHDRAWAL PROMISED

Nasser also was the leader in the formula for ending the Yemeni civil war, promising to withdraw his forces, which have been supporting the republican regime. In return, King Faisal of Saudi Arabia agreed to halt his military assistance to the royalists, who have been fighting the republicans for five years.

"My government cannot consider itself bound by any agreement with which it was not associated and which it has not signed," said Foreign Minister Abdel Ariz Sallam of the Yemeni republican regime.

The royalists also are known to have become increasingly disgruntled by Saudi Arabia's attempts to make peace over their heads but are expected to go along with the accord.

SENDS OUT ENVOYS

Tito Pushes Hard For Mideast Plan

BELGRADE (AP) — Yugoslav President Tito stepped up a diplomatic offensive to settle the Middle East crisis today, sending a personal envoy to Latin America.

Tito began the drive by sending envoys with personal messages to U.S. President Johnson, President de Gaulle of France and Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia Wednesday. Similar messages will be presented in Moscow, London and other capitals.

Chosen for the Latin-American assignment is Svetozar Vukmanovic, member of the Council of the Federation, roughly equivalent to a cabinet. He will stop first in Chile and then go on to Mexico and other Latin-American countries.

The mssage to chiefs of state is reported to outline, Tito's plan for peace in the Middle East. Earlier this month Tito visited Egypt, Syria and Iraq, seeking support for his peace formula.

The content of Tito's message was not made public but it is said to propose withdrawal of Israel from Arab territories occupied in the June war.

This formula avoids implicit recognition of Israel by Arab states but Yugoslav diplomats believed it can get approval of the majority of United Nations members.

LOTS OF IRON IN DIET OF STRONGMAN

ADELAIDE, Australia (Reuters) — A Greek-born strongman says he has accepted an $11,000 bet that he can eat a car in four years.

Leon Samson, 30, said Thursday he would have to eat two pounds of metal a day to finish off the car in four years.

He said that until now he had confined himself to razor blades and pieces of glass.

Then he "sampled several cars and decided on a Holden," a medium-sized car made in Australia by General Motors.

"I decided on this because I wanted to do something different," said the 210-pound strongman.

Satellite Program Proposed

OTTAWA (CP) — The Science Council of Canada, a government advisory body, today recommended establishment of a Canadian space agency.

In its first report on various aspects of science in Canada, the council said a space agency should be responsible for:

1. Advancement of Canadian capability in the science and technology of the upper atmosphere and space;
2. Furthering development of Canadian space industry;
3. Planning and implementation of an over-all space program for Canada.

The council said it is not only essential that Canada participate fully in development and use of international communications satellite systems but that it needs satellites to survey natural resources and provide information for maps.

The council suggested that Canada should build launching facilities for experimental rockets and for small satellites.

Dr. O. M. Solandt, council chairman, said at a press conference that the government has set up a task force which will report next month on construction, ownership and operation of communications satellites.

He estimated it will take two to five years to put a Canadian communications satellite in space. At present, the only competent body which could build one was the Defence Research Board.

However, it would be preferable for this country to buy launching services required for the bigger communications satellites.

SEEK RIGHTS NOW

The council said Canada should seek rights now to station Canadian communication satellites in the limited space directly above the equator.

Not only should Canada seek these rights through international agreement but its geographical size made it one of the few countries in the world that will need satellites for domestic communications.

"New communications networks based on satellites now could be developed to reach the remotest Canadian communities for telephone, television and data transmission services," the council said.

The space research and development must be expanded significantly to a growth rate of about 20 per cent a year.

Such growth would indicate expenditures of about $60,00,000 a year for forty years as suggested in the report of March 6 on space research pre-

BRITAIN URGED TO AID BRITTANY

Welshmen Take Cue From de Gaulle

LONDON (CP)—Two Liberal members of the British Parliament, citing President de Gaulle's project for French aid to Quebec, have urged British government officials in charge of Welsh affairs to offer the people of Brittany cultural aid.

The MPs also propose that the French government re-establish the ancient Parliament of Brittany, where the people have the same Celtic background as the Welsh.

The proposals came Wednesday from Eric Lubbock, chief whip of the 12-man Liberal delegation in the 630-seat British House of Commons, and Emlyn Hooson, the party's spokesman on Welsh affairs.

Lubbock, fresh from a two-week vacation in Brittany, acknowledged in an interview that a political question is involved in any offer of aid by a British government department to Brittany—"but no more so than in the French president's idea for aid to Quebec."

Aid could take the form of funds for support of the Breton language, which is similar to Welsh.

Lubbock said the Breton language is missing from the school curriculum and students cannot take their examinations in the language.

Brittany has been a fully integrated part of France since 1532.

We might's well git inta space. We sure can't git outa it.

Mica Dam Bids Over Estimate

Lowest Tender of $136 Million Submitted by U.S.-Headed Group

By DENNIS BELL

VANCOUVER (CP) — A consortium of construction companies headed by a San Francisco firm Wednesday submitted a low bid of $136,261,544 for construction of Mica Dam—last and largest of the three Canada has promised to build under the Columbia River Treaty.

The bid was one of four opened at the head offices of British Columbia Hydro and Power Authority by Premier W. A. C. Bennett. All the bids came from consortiums. The highest was for $170,814,466.

Premier Bennett described the Mica Dam contract as "probably the largest single contract for any project in Canadian history."

The low bid was submitted by Guy F. Atkinson and Co. of San Francisco; Arundel Corporation, Baltimore, Md., L. E. Dixoxi Co., Builders, San Gabriel, Calif.; Dillingham Corporation of Hawaii, and Commonwealth Construction of Vancouver.

Dr. Hugh Keenleyside, B.C. Hydro co-chairman, said the power authority will spend two weeks studying the four bids before deciding which one to accept.

The authority has not officially released its estimates for the Mica project, to be completed on the Columbia River north of Revelstoke by April 1, 1973.

However, unofficial sources have indicated the provincially-owned power authority anticipated an expenditure of only $100,000,000 — about $36,000.000 less than the lowest bid submitted.

DECLINES COMMENT

In a news conference following the opening of tenders, Premier Bennett declined direct comment on the government's estimates of what the dam project would cost.

"The bids will have to be reviewed," said the premier. "They're very interesting but it is a little soon for me to comment on them."

Mr. Bennett, pressed on the question, added the bids were "not too disappointing," but described governmental cost estimates for the Mica Dam as "confidential information."

The high bid came from Big Ben Constructors, a five-company consortium headed by Peter Kiewit Canada Ltd., of Omaha, Neb., and Mannix Co. Ltd., of Calgary and three other U.S. companies.

The second lowest tender came from a two-company consortium, Dravo Corportation Canada Ltd., of Bellevue, Wash., and McNamara Corp. Ltd. of Toronto. They estimated the project at $143,355.860.

An all-Canadian consortium submitted a bid of $149,535,513. Participating in that group were Foundation Co. of Canada Ltd., of Toronto, B. A. Construction Co. of Transcona, Man., Inspiration Ltd. of Calgary and Standard General Construction International, also of Calgary. The companies used the name Mica Dam Constructors for their consortium.

ONE OF BIGGEST

When completed, Mica Dam will be one of the world's biggest — 645 feet high, 2,600 feet long, with a volume of 42,000,000 cubic yards of water backed up in a 135-mile reservoir.

Located on the Columbia 85 miles north of Revelstoke, Mica Dam is an interesting construction challenge.

The initial contract — the one the four consortiums are bidding on — calls for building the dam, spillway and water intakes. Separate bids will be called for the underground powerhouse when the authority decides to proceed with facilities to generate about 2,000,000 kilowatts of electrical power.

Excavation of two diversion tunnels, each 45 feet in diameter, was completed in November, 1966. B.C. Hydro officials expect diversion of the river will take place in mid-November.

The two other dams Canada has agreed to build under the treaty are Duncan Dam north of Nelson and Arrow Dam, on the Columbia near Castlegar. Both are smaller in size and without power generating facilities.

The Duncan Dam was completed July 31, about 13 months ahead of schedule, at a cost of $29,000,000. The advance completion means a saving of roughly $3,300,000.

AHEAD OF SCHEDULE

Dr. Keenleyside said work on the Arrow Dam is well ahead of schedule now and it should be completed in advance of its April 1, 1969, deadline. Estimates on the cost of the Arrow project range as high as $55,000,000.

As of March 31 of this year, the B.C. government has spent $189,731,799 on the three projects, $91,817,294 of that during the 1966-67 fiscal year alone.

The treaty, signed Sept. 16, 1964, by President Johnson, Prime Minister Pearson and Premier Bennett, provides that Canada will operate the dams for flood control storage purposes and will be entitled to a half of the downstream power benefits.

Under a sales agreement, B.C.'s share of the additional power was sold to a group of U.S. electrical utilities for a period of 30 years. The U.S. paid the B.C. government $273,300,000 in advance.

In addition, the U.S. agreed to pay $64,400,000 for the role the three treaty dams play in flood control in Washington and Oregon. The first payment was due when the Duncan Dam became operational, but B.C. has not yet received the $12,000.000 owing.

Government officials estimated late last year that costs for the three projects would reach $410,000,000 by the time all work is completed in 1973. Critics of the Bennett administration now place the figure in excess of $500.000.000. but Mr. Bennett says it won't run that high.

LARGEST SYSTEM

"In total, the Columbia River project is going to be a satisfactory one for the people of British Columbia," Premier Bennett told the news conference.

"In this period of inflation, we have the largest power system in the free world under construction," said the premier. "What's really occurring is a revolution in the development of power in the province."

Mr. Bennett said he was referring to the huge Peace River project as well as the Columbia dams in this context.

Is the province going to lose money on the Columbia River Treaty?

"Your don't give iffy answers to iffy questions," was the premier's answer. "We'll know when everything is completed and all the bills have been paid."

na's southern coast. Local Communists, with encouragement from Peking, have been trying to gain the upper hand there.

After Britain ignored China's ultimatum to free Communist newspaper men held on sedition charges, a mob burned out the British mission in Peking Aug. 22.

In retaliation, Britain restricted the movement of Chinese diplomats in London. Those diplomats charged out of their legation with axes, iron bars and baseball bats Tuesday and clashed with London police and a crowd of Britons.

This set off another anti-British demonstration in Peking Wednesday.

Donald Hopson, British charge d'affaires in Peking, told the London Daily Express by telephone that perhaps several hundred Red Guards demanded that he come out of the mission and accept a protest.

HOPSON NOT HURT

"I was not hurt and not made to kneel," Hopson said. Other reports said a Red Guard seized the envoy's hair and made him bow his head.

"Life is now very restricted," Hopson told The Express.

"We cannot go into the town or onto the streets, even if we wanted to. But so far there is no shortage of food. Our Chinese cooks are allowed to shop for us."

Peking's official New China news agency charged today that the London incident occurred after the British "repeatedly made outrageous provocations against Chinese personnel by sending out large numbers of police, special agents and ruffians."

Meanwhile, newspaper men in Hong Kong learned that tips from pro-Communist Chinese and Chinese on the fringe of the underworld, presumably in return for reward money, are aiding the government's fight against terrorism.

Police told of one Chinese man caught with a bomb who led officers to a terrorist bomb cache today. They found five completed bombs, sticks of gelignite, detonators and fuses buried in a roadside near a children's school.

RUSSIANS 'EXPOSED' AT EXPO 67

HONG KONG (Reuters)—The People's Daily, China's Communist party newspaper, says the "Soviet revisionist ruling clique" has found a home at a notorious capitalist front—Expo 67.

The newspaper, in a dispatch carried by the New China news agency and monitored here, says Expo 67 is the place where "Western monopoly capitalist groups, headed by the United States, peddle their goods, fight for markets and expand their economic aggression."

It says the Soviet leaders revealed themselves by exhibiting there as a "group of renegades fawning on U.S. imperialism."

. . . SPACE

pared by a team of four scientists headed by Dr. John Chapman of the Defence Research Board.

This amount would not include cost of development and operation of the commercial satellite communications system. The council said there has been considerable fragmentation Canada's space effort to date and that no common objectives have been defined.

"A co-ordinated, expanded and sustained national effort will be required if Canadian use of space is to be developed under Canadian leadership to meet the needs of the Canadian economy. . . .

"The national interest of Canada demands that Canadian scientists and technologists be enabled to play their part; that Canadian labor be used in Canadian plants to manufacture at least a fair share of the equipment; that Canadian organizations operate the systems and that Canadians reap the benefit of the discovery and development of their resources."

Costly development efforts should be left to the United States, Russia, Britain and France but a much more dynamic policy was required because "sociologically and economically Canada cannot afford to expose herself to the degree of economic and technological dependence that the alternative would involve."

OFFER NEW APPROACH

The council said satellites offer an entirely new approach to the determination and delination of surface geology and natural resources. Canada was wide open for such exploration.

"Obviously Canadian territory is also wide open for such exploration by outside interests. If protection be needed, the only means would appear to be for Canada to be first in the field with information about her latent resources."

Surveys from space could greatly facilitate obtaining information on the nature of soils, distribution of water, ice, permafrost, erosion and sedimentation, extent and type of vegetation, and the condition and yield of crops.

Canada should assume full responsibility for the Churchill, Man., research range when the present agreement with the U.S. expires in 1970.

The council made no firm recommendation of McGill University's High Altitude Research Project to which the government recently stopped contributing.

The HARP project uses old naval guns to launch atmospheric probes and proposed an attempt to fire small satellites into orbit.

Will Santa Be Arrested Next Time?

MONTREAL (CP) — Two go-go dancers, arrested by police on the grounds they were causing a traffic jam by dancing in the showcase window of a downtown club, received unexpected support in court from chief Crown prosecutor Andre Tessier.

"The charge faced by the accused is over 100 years old and is outmoded," he said after Elizabeth Wangberg, 20, and Sheila Brossard, 20, had pleaded not guilty Wednesday to contravening a city bylaw "by illegally dancing in a window . . . in such a manner as to attract a crowd on the sidewalk and street, the whole without written permission of the mayor."

"Why the next thing police will do is to arrest Santa Claus in store windows because people stop to watch him," Mr. Tessier said.

Judge Maurice Johnson set preliminary hearing for Sept. 14, allowing the two girls their liberty on parole until that date.

If the formula fails, it will not be the first time an agreement to end the civil war collapsed. A peace plan concluded in Jeddah, Saudi Arabia, in 1965, fell apart in a welter of recriminations.

Nasser and Faisal approved a plan calling for the formation of a three-power committee to supervise the phasing out of hostilities. Sudan, Iraq and Morocco were named to the committee and planned to begin work immediately after the windup of the summit meeting Friday.

No date was set for the beginning of the withdrawal of Egyptian troops, who numbered about 40,000 in Yemen until a large contingent was moved out following the Middle East war in June.

BENNETT ON DAM PAYMENT

'Ottawa Must Pay Interest'

Premier Bennett today said he expects to receive 6 per cent interest from Ottawa on the late $12 million flood relief payment from the U.S. regardless of what penalty Washington pays Ottawa.

"It comes to about $2,000 a day," he told reporters when revealing that discussions are under way now for the U.S. to catch up to its Columbia River Treaty obligations under which the payment became due last month when the Duncan Dam went into operation.

"We've had verbal contact (with Ottawa) and I sent them a friendly wire the day before yesterday—to my good friend Mr. Paul Martin (external affairs minister responsible for dealing with U.S. authorities on the treaty).

"We will ask 6 per cent and it is immaterial what interest the U.S. pays to Canada.

"We are dealing only with Ottawa on this as it is responsible for international treaties it has signed just as we are responsible to it for performing our part."

Mr. Bennett said the 6½ per question that an interest payment on the amount would have to be paid beginning July 31 when the dam was declared operational, a year ahead of schedule.

At $2,000 a day, the interest now owing would total $60,000.

Mr. Bennett said the 6 per cent interest rate was chosen because "that's the market interest rate today."

That percentage rate actually would produce an interest of $2,137 daily while 6 per cent would produce $1,972 a day.

'America Neglecting Home Issues'

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senator Robert F. Kennedy challenges the contention of Gen. Wallace M. Greene Jr., U.S. Marine Corps commandant, that Vietnam is more important than the plight of U.S. cities.

"That's a mistake," the New York Democrat said in an interview.

"President Johnson has said we can fight the war and still act on our problems at home.

"Our first priority should be to our own people. We are on the brink of the most serious crisis since the Civil War.

"It seems to me we are devoting all of the resources required to the war in Vietnam, but we are not doing so in respect to our domestic problems. There is no question that we have not done what we should have done for the urban and rural poor."

Greene told the American Legion convention Wednesday in Boston that if the United States does not stop the Communists in their promotion of world revolution "then our domestic problems and our pocketbooks are going to become mighty unimportant in the future."

MANY FLEEING

'Blood Bath' Predicted In Canton

HONG KONG (AP)—Savage fighting was reported today in Wuhan, central China's industrial centre where the forces of party chairman Mao Tse-tung recently claimed victory in the countrys' power struggle.

Other reports told of people fleeing cities of Szechwan province in western China to avoid battle between Mao's supporters and opponents. Travellers from Canton said a blood bath was expected in that southern metropolis.

It was impossible to evaluate all these reports, but they indicated that the struggle between Mao and supporters of his chief opponent, President Liu Shaochi, may be rising in violence.

The report of renewed fighting in Wuhan, th Yangtze River complex of Hankow, Hanyang and Wuchang in Hupeh province, came from the Maoist provincial radio itself.

While the broadcast gave no details of the fighting, it demanded that Maoist leaders take effective action to halt the struggle. Peking claimed Aug. 12 that leaders loyal to Mao had been put in power in Wuhan.

DISRUPTED

Chinese Nationalist inteligence sources in Formosa said land, river and air transportation in Szechwan province had been paralyzed by the fighting between Mao's backers and opponents.

The sources said increasing numbers of people were fleeing from Chungking, China's wartime capital, Chentu, Szechwan's provincial capital, and other cities to escape the fighting. Like citizens in Canton, they were reported returning to their villages in the countryside.

Travellers from Canton said anti-Maoists there were openly boasting that they "would bathe Canton in the blood of Red Guards," the teen-agers Mao entrusted with spearheading his struggle against Liu's backers.

The various travellers had conflicting stories about the role of the Red army in Canton.

One group said the army had distributed thousands of rifles to city residents to use against "anti-Mao bandits."

That report was described by China analysts here "as probably the most irrational to come out of China since Mao Tse-tung started his cultural revolution."

Other travellers said the army in Canton was backing the anti-Maoists while the navy and air force units remained loyal to Mao.

Reuters news agency reported that a young arrival, quoted in the influential Chinese-language newspaper Sing Tao Jih Pao, said he witnessed a machine-gun and grenade attack by Red Guards on trucks belonging to a rival faction.

Another said 300 youngsters were killed when rival factions fought Aug. 15.

People in the city were forming self-defence forces to protect themselves and their property. The rival factions were doing their fighting in the suburbs and scores of bodies were being found daily, the Sing Tao quoted the arrival as saying.

ROBLIN MAKES UNITY PLEA

HALIFAX (CP) — Premier Duff Roblin of Manitoba, candidate for national Progressive Conservative leader, called for an end to disunity within the party here Wednesday. He also said the new leader must be a man who will appeal not just to Conservatives but to "people of no fixed views" in all provinces.

Mr. Roblin reported that his campaign travels across the country have shown him "a great desire for unity among our people."

"Our party must present a united front as an opposite to the government," he said.

Has Dief Ordered Posters?

TORONTO (CP) — The Star says John Diefenbaker has ordered 1,500 campaign photos and posters printed secretly in a move which makes it "virtually certain" that he will fight for his job as Progressive Conservative leader.

The newspaper says it has learned that the PC chief placed the order with a printing shop identified as being in the Ottawa Valley.

Mr. Diefenbaker has until 10 a.m. Friday, Sept. 8, to enter his name formally.

The Star adds that some delegates to the convention who previously committed their support to other candidates are withdrawing their commitments in anticipation of Mr. Diefenbaker's entry.

In Ottawa, a spokesman for Mr. Diefenbaker said there was no foundation to the report.

Britain, U.S. Resume Mid-East Arms Sales

LONDON (UPI)—Britain and the United States have decided to resume limited arms supplies to Middle East countries to counter new Soviet weapons deliveries to Arab nations, diplomatic sources said today.

The British government was understood ready to sell tanks to Israel after agreeing to supply Jordan with a small number of warplanes.

The U.S. was also reported agreeable to supplying Jordan with some jet fighters.

The sources said the Western move was prompted by failure to obtain Soviet co-operation on a Middle East arms embargo.

A temporary British arms embargo, imposed during the Arab-Israeli war, was lifted after other nations failed to join in.

Under latest arrangements, Britain is to supply Israel with 18 Centurion tanks valued at about $1 million.

ARMED FORCES CUTBACK SEEN

OTTAWA (CP) — Reductions in military personnel strength — and consequently in defence commitments — are being freely predicted by defence department sources as a result of the government's clamp-down on increased expenditures in all departments.

The cabinet has rejected the defence department's request for a moderate increase in its budget for 1968-69. The current defence budget is $1,688,000,000.

Informants said Wednesday a ceiling on expenditures while costs are still rising will eventually have to mean defence cuts somewhere.

One of Defence Minister Hellyer's main objectives has been to increase the proportion of the defence budget allotted to capital expenditures — that is, weapons and equipment.

There is every indication Mr. Hellyer plans to stick to this policy.

AFFECTS COMMITMENTS

The inevitable result, sources say, will be a cut in the manpower strength of the armed forces and in operations and maintenance costs. This in turn will mean a reduction in defence commitments.

Mr. Hellyer is said to feel that any stretch-out of capital programs such as new destroyers and CF-5 fighter-bombers would in the long run result not only in delay but in higher costs as well.

Informants speculate that manpower policy will have to be reversed — for the second time — and armed forces strength cut to some 90,000 from the present 106,000.

Military manpower was deliberately cut to 109,000 from the 1963 figure of 123,000. A recruiting drive was put in motion when strength fell lower than anticipated — to 104,500 last January.

Reductions may be made in both the overseas and home forces.

Strength of the army brigade and air division in West Germany has already been cut by about 7 per cent in the last year to 10,800 from 11,600. The figure for the brigade — about 6,000 — is still 500 higher than during the 1961 Berlin crisis.

The army at home has an "extra" 4,000-man brigade. It was specially raised for duty in Korea in 1950 but was never disbanded after the Korean war ended in 1953.

Defence department authorities now are re-evaluating priorities after their budget setback by the cabinet. They say it is too early to determine exactly where the axe will fall.

Smith Charges 'Hypocrisy'

SALISBURY (UPI) — Premier Ian Smith Wednesday might charged Britain with "the greatest piece of hypocrisy of all time" in refusing to help Rhodesia battle Communist-armed terrorists.

Smith bitterly recounted to his parliament Rhodesia's contributions to the British fighting forces in the Second World War.

More recently, he said, Rhodesians had fought beside the British against Communist terrorists in Malaysia.

Smith tabled a note from the Rhodesian government which the commonwealth office in London refused to accept on grounds it was from an illegal regime.

He said Britain's failure to urge Zambia to stop the passage of arms and offensive material, the reception and harboring of "Communist-trained terrorists" and the use of Zambia as a base for offensive operations against Rhodesia was "a most blatant case of Britain encouraging infiltration into Rhodesia."

NEW LEADER of American Nazi Party is Matthias Koehl. He announced that body of assassinated former leader George Lincoln Rockwell has been cremated and ashes are being held pending court action seeking right to bury them in military cemetery.

HANOI OVERCOMES LOSS OF MAIN BRIDGE LINK

Rafts, Ferries Move Supplies

MANILA (AP)—Ferries and bamboo rafts travelling under the cover of darkness have replaced trains and trucks as supply carriers across the Red River at Hanoi since U.S. bombers destroyed the Paul Doumer Bridge Aug. 11, a Filipino newspaper man reported from the North Vietnamese capital today.

Amando E. Doronila, diplomatic reporter for the Manila Times, said destruction of the chief rail and transport link across the Red River "created transport difficulties; but lorries, supplies and the vehicles are nevertheless moved across the river under cover of darknes on board numerous ferries and ingeniously improved bamboo rafts."

He said air raids on Hanoi and its suburbs Aug. 11 and 12 and from the 21st to the 23rd "were notably significant in the escalation pattern."

COULD BE WARNING

"Selective bombing here could be an American warning to the capital of the bombing terror in store if Hanoi does not cry for peace, but there is no sign that Hanoi morale is suffering from the pressure," Doronila said.

"It is clear that bombs fell largely on civilian dwellings with no military value," Doronila reported. "Five hundred yards from the Doumer Bridge, Hanoi side, bombs dug craters on massive earthen dikes. I saw a long row of frail straw huts at Phuc Tan Street flattened by blasts.

"A brick schoolhouse for grade two pupils is in shambles. The schoolhouse was empty when hit because the children were evacuated earlier.

"At noontime last Aug. 21, missile bombs hit a hospital with 50 beds, damaged three buildings and shattered stained glass windows of the Hanoi Cathedral.

"One missile tore into a brick wall and floor, landing in a room for patients. It killed one doctor in the next room, one assistant and injured three persons."

Intermunicipal Togetherness

IT IS INTERESTING, AND ENCOURAGING, to observe that regional or amalgamated services are receiving favorable attention from municipal council heads and members as the approach of election time gives added significance to the opinions expressed. During the past several years few incumbents or candidates for civic office have been inclined to publicly sponsor projects which depended on a regional approach for their implementation. Amalgamation was a word only to be whispered by any potential candidate, for it could wreck his hopes of election among a large portion of the voters.

But since the department of municipal affairs under Mr. Dan Campbell established the regional concept in regard to a number of minor inter-municipal undertakings, this form of joint approach to joint problems has received much wider public acceptance. The idea has been extended to more important facets of community affairs with apparent public approval, and today several promising proposals are receiving active consideration by municipal officeholders and the people.

The provincial warning that municipal measures must soon be undertaken to curtail water and air pollution have been well received by officials and the general public. There can be few arguments against cleaning up our environment for better living. But it is obvious that these measures will in many cases require action on a regional basis rather than by individual municipalities and the logic of this will become increasingly evident. Greater Victoria already has a regional sewerage program under consideration, and there have been no cries that democracy will thereby be destroyed.

Reeve Curtis, long known for his overall community viewpoint even while stoutly defending the interests of the municipality he heads, again urges a regional plan for garbage disposal and there can be little doubt that the climate for joint action is much improved over that of a year or two ago. There are renewed proposals for combined municipal police functions on the grounds of efficiency and cost. The regional approach to schools, water distribution and parks acquisition has won solid public approval. It is difficult to see now how these could be otherwise managed.

Slowly but surely the facts of community living are asserting themselves over sentimental attachment to the arbitrary municipal frontier lines which long have hampered logical development here. The most striking change is in the public frame of mind, the new climate of acceptance, and it is from this that progress will come.

The Tax Dilemma

SINCE HARDLY ANYBODY likes tax increases it was only to be expected that President Johnson's proposal for a 10 per cent surtax on personal and corporate income would meet heavy going among legislators, businessmen and American public. One of the chief difficulties the proposal faces is that it is presented as a double-purpose measure—as a means of paying for the increasing costs of the Vietnam war, and as a sponge to mop up any inflationary pressures in the economy. The double-barrel approach has invited a double-barrel response from critics of all shades of economic and political belief.

The strongest opposition, however, is coming from the business community which by and large simply refuses to believe in the government's optimistic forecasts of an impending strong upturn in the economy. The influential United States Chamber of Commerce has taken the lead in attacking the tax proposal with a claim that leading indicators do not show either an early or a strong upturn in business.

Attempting to increase government revenues by raising taxes, this group argues, could actually lower revenues by depressing the economy. Another effect, it is argued, would be that by further stripping profits, the government will force business to increase borrowing to finance its operations at a time when money is already tight and interest rates high. This would intensify rather than reduce inflationary pressures.

However much truth there is in this assessment, the fact is that the inflationary pressures are already increasing without much stimulus from demand. One government official, Mr. A. F. Brimmer, a governor of the Federal Reserve Board, noted the other day, that there had been significant price increases in several areas, including some such as transportation which had been stable for a number of years. Mr. Brimmer also warned that the cumulative impact of particular price increases may be the stimulation of an inflationary psychology which would feed on itself and help to trigger a genuine bout of inflation. It is of importance that Mr. Brimmer was echoing views which have been widely stated by the nation's official monetary controllers.

The legislators who must actually rule on the President's tax request are the ones who are in the greatest bind. They cannot relish going into an election year with a record of having increased taxes; even less appealing is the prospect that by failing to grant the President's request they could be facing the voters a year from now with the nation caught in a strong inflationary spiral.

Stamp It Out

OF ALL THE MISCHEVIOUS actions of hoodlums one of the most serious is to ring in false fire alarms. Not only does this imperil the lives of the men who must respond to every call, but it ties up equipment which might be needed for a real emergency, places a heavy psychological burden on the employees whose work entails enough stress and danger as it is, and costs the municipalities more for what is already a costly protection service.

The moronic amusement gained from ringing in false alarms can in no way make up for the loss entailed and every sensible resident of Greater Victoria will back Victoria's Deputy Chief Coates in his warning that guilty persons "will be dealt with severely."

False alarms frequently occur in epidemics. One stupid example seems to encourage others. It will be an act of good citizenship to report any suspicious loitering around a fire alarm box. Abuse of our vital protective service should be quickly and thoroughly halted.

The Permanent Image

PRESS REPORTS INDICATE that she handled herself well at a campaign-launching press conference, but for a good many voters of California it will be difficult to attach to a Congressional candidate the name of Shirley Temple.

An impression of sparkling blue eyes, dimpled cheeks and long blonde ringlets should not be a handicap for any woman aspirant to public office, but to tens of thousands of North Americans, and other moviegoers farther afield, these were the screen trade mark of the sugary little moppet who set a standard and became a national institution a generation ago. They are forever associated with the name of Shirley Temple, and the present holder of that name and of a fair measure of the good looks that accompanied it will have trouble asserting herself as an accomplished 39-year-old clubwoman, mother and participant in public affairs.

Send Shirley Temple to Congress? That little kid?

CANDIDATES ALL

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

Mrs. Noggins Reviews the Situayshun

Hutchison

AS a delegate to the Conservative convention, my neighbor, Mrs. Alfred Noggins, tells me that she has endured long mental agony in choosing among the nine candidates for leadership.

"At first," she said, "I was fer George Hees. That man 'as the nacheral, rugged look of a prime minister. Yes sir, 'e plays politics with a dashin' romantic air like Errol Flynn playin' General Custer's last stand. But I switched from Hees when I remembered that we were plannin' a convention, not a massacre, though I doubt we can avoid it.

"So I turned to Roblin until Premier Johnson gave 'im a damp kiss of death. But Roblin couldn't 'elp it, you know. Like 'e says, if that lovely lady, the Union Nationale, is yearnin' to embrace me, 'ow can a gentleman of honor refuse? Only I wish she'd do it on a dark night, be'ind the barn, when nobody's watchin' us. Why sure, says Roblin, we could make sweet music together, but not so loud, or they'll 'ear us out west.

Ugly 'Ead

"Then I thought of McCutcheon but 'e's talking like a Conservative all over the country and of course we can't let that old evil rear its ugly 'ead in the party of John A. Macdonald. And Manning is jest as dangerous, wantin' to get some sense into politics and spoil all the good clean fun.

"And when Fleming said we should balance the budget and stop inflation, the way 'e never did in the good old days, I knew I couldn't back 'im against the laws of the new economics that made us almost rich enough to pay the cost of livin', but not quite.

"In the end I decided to play it safe and vote fer Diefenbaker. I knew Dief was the right man when 'e repudiated the Conservative thinker's conference. Once the party starts to think, says Dief, all is lost and we'll be no better than the Liberals.

Party's Soul

"Yes, 'e's ready to make the supreme sacrifice and run again to save the party's soul, even if it's body can't survive the ordeal, and never doubt that the old master 'as an ace or two up 'is sleeve, along with a big monkey wrench and an unquenchable death wish.

"Well, when the Pearson gover'mint seen wot 'ad 'appened in the opposition it enjoyed its first good laugh since Walter Gordon leaped boldly into oblivion but the laugh was rather 'ollow. Even the unflappable Mitch Sharp flapped a little after 'e'd added up the latest financial figgers.

"The budget was exactly right, says Sharp, on the day of its birth three months ago but it's grown into a monster that it's parents can't recognize. So they started to cut it down, with perfect agreement between all the ministers, as you could tell by the shrieks and groans from the cabinet chamber, and Judy Lamarsh's resignation twice a week but never on Sundays.

"Finally they cut it so far that Pearson could promise that the deficit next year wouldn't be much more than twice the present size and, with a little bit of luck, prices won't double fer quite a while yet. No reasonable man could ask anything fairer.

Overnight Reversal

"Our policies, says Sharp, 'ave gone strictly accordin' to our plans, and that's why we reversed 'em overnight. Year after year the gover'mint 'as poured gasoline on the fire of inflation and it can't understand why the flames won't die down. Maybe, says Sharp, we might try old-fashioned water for a change but no one's prepared to risk the desperate experiment of economy. Anyways, the cabinet's mind is concentrated on something more important, the leadership of the Liberal party.

"Jest when the 'opeful candidates were runnin' as 'ard as any Conservative, Pearson suddenly asked 'em where they thought they were goin' in all this tearin' rush. No man in 'is senses, says 'e, would want to suffer the endless misery of my job and to save 'is colleagues from a fate worse than death 'e decided, out of the kindness of 'is 'eart, to stay on indefinitely.

"All 'is successors gave two faint cheers and explained to the newspapers that they 'ad no personal ambitions, but were only runnin' fer 'ealthy exercise. And they phoned their convention delegates out in the sticks and told 'em to go underground until the storm blew over but to keep workin' privately, jest in case.

"They 'adn't figgered on de Gaulle who came from Paris to destroy 'is old friend, Mike, and with one speech made 'im into a national 'ero. Wot the unforchunate French Canajians need, says de Gaulle, is to be governed as a colony of France so they'll 'ave liberty, equality and fraternity under a dictatorship like real Frenchmen, which they may yet become with a century or two of ejucation before I'm ready to retire.

Sacred Debt

"Canada 'elped to rescue France in two world wars and 'e's merely repayin' that sacred debt by rescuin' this poor benighted country from its inhabitants. Dief's doin' the same thing and between the two of 'em we ought to be safe, at least through the autumn with the brightly colored leaves fallin' all over the landscape as thick and fast as the candidates."

Letters

Two-Minded

Mr. Diefenbaker's policy of one-nation needs clearing up. For years this same gentleman has denied this country one-nation status. He demanded our flag have a two-nation emblem, our post office must have a two-nation emblem, our military have a two-nation emblem.

Now he is demanding a one-nation status, and in the same breath, telling us we must never do without the Crown of another nation.

Make up your mind Mr. Diefenbaker.— "Canadian"

Love Plus

Hippies should be banned, not because of their long hair, their curious clothes, but because of filth. On Saturday in Centennial Square I lingered near some groups. They defile our lovely square. They talk much of love — what love do they show their fellow men? Do they take blind people for walks, do they visit shut-ins, etc., etc., etc.? They are just a blight on our society. — "Subscriber"

Pen Pal

I was wondering if you could please find me a pen pal in your city. My name is Harriette Barnewall and I'm 14 years old.

I am going into Grade 9 at Verdum High School and my hobbies are writing pen pals, sculpture, swimming and drawing. My other hobby is growing plants (house) and vegetables.

I have a pet German Shepherd named Topper and he is very tame and lovable. My favorite sports are swimming, dodgeball, baseball, badminton, tennis, and fencing.— Harriette Barnewell, 731 Woodland Ave., Verdun 19, Quebec.

Early Training

One of the problems that, along with many more, faces the tax-payer, I believe, is that of endeavoring to train these "hippie" type members into some more profitable endeavor, as a citizen of Canada, than being classed as a vagrant.

In my humble opinion, there might be a trace of children developing with queer ideas from homes, where both parents were wage earners, and the children left too much to follow their own devices . . .

Having been a farmer for many years induces me to offer suggestions, for in the earlier years we had colts that were not handled right, for various reasons, and would become real balky and refuse to work with others in a team. A good horseman never had that kind, if encouraged early in life. — Harry Wyer, 234 Vancouver Street.

Inflationary Trend

I must congratulate your newspaper on the excellent editorial explaining the effects of inflation as printed in the Saturday, August 26 issue.

I also read and re-read of the benefits conferred by the present trend of inflation by two professors of economics in the letters to the editor column, both of the University of Victoria.

The treatise was very clever, but I suspect written with a tongue in the cheek attitude to provoke discussion of where we are headed. — C. B. Atkins, 2342 Esplanade.

The Cities Try to Awake the Nation

Purser

THE ten-day Labor day recess is approaching, and congressmen are already taking off for home at a rate that guarantees a slim attendance in both Houses this week.

Yet Congress is confronted with one of the gravest issues it has ever faced. The issue is the renewal of urban America. Awed by the death of President Kennedy, Congress in 1964 and 1965 allowed President Johnson to push through a number of laws extending civil rights and creating programs to alleviate poverty. But today, in the wake of the worst wave of urban disorder to hit the country, Congress is somnolent. And there is litttle pressure from the administration for it to be otherwise.

Congress is disillusioned and in no mood for legislative creativity. Its members are preoccupied with the Vietnam war, its cost and the growing estrangement of the people from its conduct. They are worried by President Johnson's demand for a ten per cent income tax surcharge and the almost universal public reaction against it. They are disturbed by "white backlash" letters from the voters, who see the urban-racial issue as one of law versus lawlessness, ignoring the 300 years of white lawlessness against the black.

Dismaying Failure

These letter writers interpret action to prevent future disorders as a reward to the supposed fomenters of past disorders. And congressmen are dismayed by the failure of President Johnson's early experimental programs to solve all the nation's ills.

Add to this the natural opposition to concrete action by the strong alliance of rural Republicans who oppose strong federal government, and Southern Democrats who oppose racial equality, and there is sufficient explanation for the inaction of Congress. But an explanation is not an excuse.

The truth is that action is required on a scale greater than any taken before. Demographic change in America is proceeding at a rate that negates existing programs, however costly they may be. Uneducated rural Southern Negroes continue to migrate to Northern city ghettoes at a furious rate — the migration totalled 5.3 million in the 1950-60 decade alone.

Turning Black

Today, Chicago is turning black at the rate of 4.56 blocks per week. Despite housing programs, there are still as many families in unfit housing as there were in 1950 — about four million, not counting another nine million in housing classified as fit but substandard. Spending on slum housing is about $400 million per year. Experts estimate that spending of $7-$8 billion annually over a period of decades will be required actually to solve the problem.

Faced with the magnitude of the program, Congress prefers to stick its collective head in the sand rather than face up to the spreading urban blight. With racial outbreaks this summer striking four times as many cities as in 1966 and 20 times as many as in 1965, Congress is ducking the issue in a futile search for non-existent scapegoats — Communists, agitators, inciters, common criminals, anyone who can justify reliance on a crackdown by the forces of law and order as a pat solution to the problem.

Faced with this recalcitrance, the administration is concentrating on saving existing programs from emasculation rather than pushing needed new programs.

But there is a rescuer at the door, if anyone will let it in. It is called the Urban Coalition, and is an enormously prestigious collection of civic leaders, top businessmen and other leading figures. About 1,000 of them descended on Washington late last week to begin a massive lobbying operation to prod the conscience of Congress and bring home to that rural-dominated body the plight of the cities.

Work Program

These leaders called for an emergency work program to provide a million meaningful jobs for the urban unemployed, provision of a million low-income housing units annually, and universl basic education. In effect, they called for a "Marshall plan" for urban America.

Mayor John Lindsay of New York, a leader of the Urban Coalition, challenged President Johnson's claim that the U.S. has sufficient resources to meet its pressing urban needs without reducing its other national, internationl and interterrestrial commitments. "If that is true, let's do it," he said. But if it wasn't true, then the country should reassess other commitments — the clear inference was Vietnam — in the light of the work needed to be done at home.

No Urgency

The coalition's emissary to Capitol Hill, Mayor Jerome Cavanagh of Detroit, came back from a meeting with congressional leaders, glum over the lack of sense of urgency still prevailing in Congress. But the lobbying operation has only begun, and in the long run, who can better present the cities' case to Congress than the representatives of the cities themselves? It is up to them. All other leadership in Congress and in the White House had abdicated.

Looking Back

From the Times, Aug. 31, 1907.

No Chinese children will be admitted to the city schools for some time to come unless they are sufficiently acquainted with the English language to make them amenable to the ordinary discipline of those institutions.

This decision was arrived at today by the board of school trustees after the report of chairman George Jay, who was delegated to meet the provincial government on the matter, was received.

HIDDEN CENSOR IN THE MIND?

By JOHN DAVY

LONDON — Two Cambridge psychologists have produced, somewhat to their own surprise, evidence supporting the psychoanalytic notion that we all harbor a subconscious censor, who decides, for example, what words which enter our ears shall be let through into the conscious mind.

This idea has been frequently criticized for its implausible implication that we have evolved duplicate hearing systems — i.e. that everything is heard once by the censor, and again by the conscious hearing system if the censor decides to let it through.

However, a possibility that the censor really exists emerged from some earlier experiments. Volunteers were asked to listen to a series of "neutral" and obscene words partly masked by background noise. They correctly recognized obscene words less often than "neutral" words. This seemed to suggest that the emotional charge carried by the obscene words brought the censor into action.

Nevertheless, these experiments were criticized on various grounds — for example that the volunteers heard the obscene words perfectly well but were embarrassed to write them down. Or, alternatively, that the "probability" of obscene words is not accurately known (it is well established that people make more mistakes in recognizing improbable than probable words).

New Experiments

At the Applied Psychology Research Unit in Cambridge, D. E. Broadbent and Margaret Gregory have now made some further experiments on similar lines, and reported their results in the scientific journal, Nature. The main contrast with the previous experiments is that they have not used obscene words, but have selected lists of common one-syllable words sorted into "good," "bad" and "neutral" by volunteers. Good words included "lawn, mirth, neat, peach, ripe, soup, spice, thrill, tune"; neutral words were "hut, mode, moist, plough, puff, purse, scarf, sixth, starch". Bad words were "fog, fright, grief, guilt, mock, scream, stale, starve, whip."

Groups of Cambridge housewives then listened to these words shuffled into random order, recorded on tape, and mixed with random noise. The experimenters then analyzsed their scores, both in terms of the numbers of hits and misses, and in terms of the types or words used in error.

They found that the neutral words were heard more accurately than either good or bad words, while bad words were heard less accurately than either good or neutral words.

Mostly Neutral

When words used in error were analyzed they were mostly neutral words, but this seems to be simply because there are more such words in the language to choose from. Thus the experiments seem to confirm the presence of a censor who allows neutral words to pass to the conscious mind, but blue-pencils emotionally-loaded words (although it is a semi-transparent pencil which still allows a considerable proportion of such words to get through corectly). "Frankly," the scientists say "we were not expecting these results, and they have been described at an informal level as showing 'that Freud was right after all'."

They put forward an alternative possibility, based on a rather technical theory of perception. The theory suggests, in effect, that the brain matches what it hears at each instant against sorted target words. The reception of certain groups of sounds makes the appropriate target word stand out more prominently, so that it is grabbed by the consciousness, so to speak, the incoming word is "recognized." It may be, the two Cambridge scientists argue, that emotionally-loaded words are stored as moving targets, fluctuating in prominence more wildly than neutral words, and so are less likely to be grabbed correctly in the recognition process.

However, they say that such a theory is difficult to check, and the only certain conclusion at the moment seems to be that, as with obscene words, emotionally-loaded words are not heard as accurately as neutral ones.

All Bets Are Off On Tory Leadership

By PETER C. NEWMAN

OTTAWA — With the blessing of a party consensus not having clearly descended on any of the nine declared Tory candidates—and John Diefenbaker's entry now a distinct possibility—all bets on next week's leadership convention are off.

Newman

As the blocks of support within the Conservative party continue to be fragmented into smaller and smaller delegate subdivisions, the campaign managers for the various contenders are trying to figure out how to get their strength to hold through succeeding ballots. And more important still, how to add to it — how to swing the deals and twist the arms that will make their man the winner.

Desperate for victory, smelling power, they are making concentrated last-minute efforts to negotiate the kind of coalitions that will make this wildly uncertain contest a little less uncertain, a little more controllable — and, in the process, a little less democratic.

While public attention is focussed on the big four — Roblin, Fulton, Hees and Stanfield — their political representatives are wooing, not each other, but the power brokers who speak for the little four: Hamilton, McCutcheon, Fleming and Starr. (The ninth candidate, John McLean, doesn't figure in anybody's calculations.)

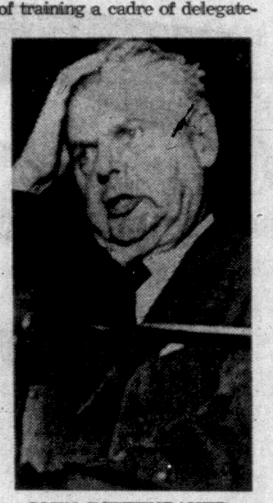
From Bottom

"We're no longer working at the top of the ladder, but at the bottom," says one of the leading candidate's campaign managers. "What's going to be important on the first few ballots is not who's second or third, but who's last."

The theory here is that since the low man will be dropped after each ballot, it's his votes that must be held together and swung behind one of the top four contenders. Only in this way can Roblin, Fulton, Hees, Stanfield—or Diefenbaker, for that matter — break away from the pack and put themselves into a lead position strong enough to generate the kind of band-wagon psychology that will produce ultimate victory.

The campaign managers of the big four candidates are busy compiling loose-leaf books listing the second and even third choices of delegates now supporting their opponents so that they have a better basis of negotiating with the Hamilton, Fleming, McCutcheon and Starr representatives.

It's an awkward business, because none of the candidates' handlers at this point in the race dares admit that his man isn't a sure winner. But because of the speed with which the voting machines will tally the results, there won't be time to make any deals, once the ballotting has started on the afternoon of September 8. (The machines, incidentally, have become an object of concentrated hatred among the campaign managers. There's even talk in one candidates' inner circle of training a cadre of delegate-commandoes to move in and jam the machines in case another ballot starts before the necessary deals have been consummated.)



JOHN DIEFENBAKER
. . . will he, won't he?

The idea of behind-the-curtain deals sounds worse than it actually is. What's being dealt off here is not part of the national birthright but simply the kind of support which any future leader of the Conservative party must have if he is to reunite it into a viable alternative to the present government. This may not be democracy in its strictest definition but it's politics and no Canadian leader — including John Diefenbaker or Lester Pearson — has come to power any other way.

The men involved in hammering out the various permutations and combinations of these internal alliances are mostly, though not always, the most visible figures in each of the candidates' campaigns. Here is a roster of these men (and one woman) who may, in the end, control the outcome of the Tory convention:

Personal Group

Duff Roblin: His group of insiders consists mostly of his personal circle from Manitoba, with G.C. MacLean, president of the province's PC association the key man. The most important negotiator outside Manitoba is William R. Poole, a leading lawyer from London, Ont., who is an influential figure in the province's all-important southwestern ridings.

Davie Fulton: Lowell Murray, Fulton's campaign manager and despite his youth one of the party's shrewdest power brokers, is the most important presence here. In Quebec, Fulton's brokerage is conducted by Brian Mulroney, a young Montreal lawyer with wide connections and a tough approach to politics.

George Hees: Two Toronto lawyers — Lionel Schipper and Robert MacAulay — are in charge, but Elmer Bell, president of the PC association (and Dalton Camp's chief strategist at the 1966 annual meeting) is probably the man to see in a crunch.

Knows Party

Robert Stanfield: Halifax broadcasting executive Finlay Macdonald and national party secretary Flora Macdonald are the most visible presences, but Senator Gratton O'Leary is the man who knows the party hierarchy best. The Stanfield candidacy may have been inspired by Dalton Camp, but he hasn't budged from his summer cottage in Queen's County, N.B., since the campaign started.

Donald Fleming: Richard Rohmer, a Toronto lawyer, who once was the same behind-the-scenes power for John Robarts is the key man here. B. T. Richardson, a former executive assistant to John Diefenbaker and former editor of the Toronto Telegram, is also important.

Alvin Hamilton: The only presence that counts here is that of Roy Faibish, who as Hamilton's executive assistant during the Diefenbaker years provided the administration's main input of policy ideas and intellectual content.

Wallace McCutcheon: The senator conducts his own negotiations but his campaign manager, Dick Thrasher, is important because he got to know the party intimately when he served as its national organizer.

Michael Starr: In this one instance, the power brokers—Senator Allister Grosart and Erik Neilsen—are more influential than the candidate.

John Diefenbaker: Should he enter the race, the present leader would probably take over the Starr organization and add his old shock troops, led by Gordon Churchill.

Friendships

As these men test the stretch of each other's authority and the limits of their influence, there is coming into play the important factor of their personal friendships formulated during years of fighting the Liberals in various campaigns. Take the Fulton team of Murray and Mulroney for example.

Murray was defeated as a Stanfield candidate in the 1960 provincial election and later worked as an executive assistant to both Fulton and Senator McCutcheon. Mulroney was an organizer for Stanfield in the same election and spent the 1962 campaign as a special assistant to Alvin Hamilton. Most of the campaign managers know each other and all of the candidates. They realize that two weeks from now they'll all be reunited in a common cause. Emphasis at the moment is on the Stanfield group attempting to win second-and-third-ballot support from the Fleming and McCutcheon camps, while Roblin is trying to get similar pledges from the Hamilton and Starr delegations. Fulton hopes to split away the anti-Diefenbaker elements among the Stanfield backers in later ballots.

Conservative support in Quebec is said to be ready to consolidate solidly behind either Fulton or Roblin, if there appears to be danger of an unbiligual candidate—particularly John Diefenbaker—winning the race.

Battle Growing Fiercer Over British Drug Laws

By TIM TRAYNOR
Times London Bureau

LONDON — Notes on the permissive society (British Division) Part three.

Traynor

A letter in a recent issue of the British Medical Journal tells of a 24-year-old lawyer and honors graduate from Cambridge who was admitted to hospital after trying to drill a hole in his head with a dental foot-drill. He was under the influence of marijuana. He later told a psychiatrist he was one of a group who believe that after proper preparation with marijuana and LSD, man can overcome time by releasing cerebral pressure.

This is the other side of the coin from the aura of modish fascination currently surrounding the subject of drug use in this country. On one wave-length hippies, pop stars, even independent-minded psychiatrists and lawyers, busily explain away fears and attack prohibitive laws. On a completely different frequency, bemused doctors, officials and judges cite statistics and case histories guaranteed to give pause to the most insouciant.

Little Known

The two sides never fully come to grips. They are dealing with a subject that can be approached from too many directions and is too little explored. What, for instance is to be made of the hole-driller, admittedly an extreme case? The "liberal" school would undoubtedly attribute his bizarre behavior (and that in similar but less spectacular cases) to innate mental instability. They would claim thousands of others had indulged with marijuana or LSD (although not, perhaps both) with no apparent ill-effect.

The test for the majority of these liberals (extremists recognize no limits on the individual's right to abuse himself) is addictiveness. They maintain the real question with marijuana, as with other drugs, is whether it hooks the user. They claim there is no conclusive evidence that it does, and suggest that puts it one up on alcohol.

No Qualms

Having satisified themselves that it is basically benign (a few drilled heads can be tolerated) they feel no qualms about pressing for the liberalization of the law against its use. (Following the same line of thinking, they are chary of pep pills, whose addictiveness is not in doubt.)

Insofar as there is a debate rather than a dialogue of the deaf, it centres on this question of addictiveness, and, specifically, the addictiveness of cannabis (marijuana). The liberals invoke medical opinion to the effect that the drug does not create physical dependence in the user, that is, there are no withdrawal symptoms when use stops.

To this their opponents reply with contrary evidence and insist that, if nothing else, the drug can create psychological dependence. They point to claims that there are 90,000 cannabis addicts in Egypt alone, and add that in some areas of Africa and South America the influence of cannabis is blamed for rape, violence and insanity. (The stock rejoinder is that the Egyptians take their cannabis mixed with harder drugs such as morphine and that U.S. and North African studies have found cannabis itself harmless.)

The fall-back argument of the "conservatives" is that marijuana definitely does not lead on to harder drugs. Shortly after a now-famous advertisement appeared in The Times stating the case for cannabis, a judge in Birmingham commented acidly that of his city's 70 registered heroin addicts, 69 had started with cannabis. (To discourage the black market, British law allows "registered addicts" to fulfill their needs by prescription.)

Replying to the liberals generally, and in particular to an article on LSD by one of the Beatles, a government spokesman claimed that of the heroin addicts known to the authorities, 97 per cent had a history of cannabis use. (Inconclusive, say the liberals. The addicts may have been prone to addiction and used marijuana only incidentally.)

Most Important

The only thing which emerges clearly from all this is that many questions remain to be answered. And that is, perhaps, the most potent argument available to those resisting change. It may be, as the liberals argue, "that it is folly to group a drug like marijuana with heroin as the law does at present, to authorize the police to invade privacy in the cause of its suppression, to divert sorely-needed facilities away from control of undoubtedly addictive drugs, in short, to treat marijuana so radically differently from alcohol, which some consider a far more serious menace to society.

But the matter is not beyond doubt, far from it, and until it is, the case for caution will be strong. It is reinforced by the increasing seriousness of Britain's drug problem. There were nine drug deaths in London last year and the increase in addiction to hard drugs is estimated to have been 100 per cent annually over the past several years. An Anglo-American study estimates last year's 800 registered heroin addicts may become 11,000 by 1972.

The explosion in use of "purple hearts" several years ago led to the introduction of stricter controls on pep-pills (and LSD) but addiction to amphetamines nevertheless rose by 50 per cent in the following year. Youths of any age can buy them cheaply over the counter at coffee bars.

The problem has not yet reached the proportions it has in some other countries despite massive publicity about drug-taking in the environs of London's famous Trafalgar Square. (The National Gallery and St. Martin's-in-the-Field Church opposite Canada House are both haunted by dishevelled addicts.) It is the rate at which consumption seems to be increasing which causes most worry.

Use Discretion

From the government's point of view, discretion is definitely the better part. Whatever the arguments for or against cannabis, the fact remains Britain's law is based on an international convention to which over 70 countries adhere. The aim is to make trafficking as difficult as possible and, were Britain to unilaterally abrogate the convention, she would do nothing to ingratiate herself with those countries which have no doubts about the dangers of cannabis.

The only real hope for the cannabis lobby would seem to lie in the possibility that the courts may eventually satisfy themselves that the drug is relatively benevolent and that only trafficking offences should be treated harshly.

Where other drugs are concerned existing controls are being tightened. A bill now before Parliament will increase penalties for trafficking. It will also refine Britain's vaunted system of prescribing for addicts rather than forcing them underground.

In the past the prescribing has been left to individual doctors, but there has been much overprescribing, and in future the addicts will have to go to special hospital clinics to get their drugs. It is an indication of the limits of British permissiveness on the vexing matter of drugs.

More for Research

TORONTO — The Canadian government spends only one per cent of its gross national product on scientific research and development, compared with three per cent in Britain and the United States.

The Canadian Association of Physicists wants the federal budget for physics research increased by 36 per cent, it said in a report to the science secretariat, the government's advisory body on science.

An Obsession With Order At the Expense of Law

By DOUGLAS FISHER and HARRY S. CROWE

(Mr. Crowe is associate professor of history at Atkinson College, York University. Mr. Fisher, a former NDP MP, lectures in Canadian government at Carleton University.)

We wrote about the threat posed by policemen to the rule of law. It seemed to strike a favorable response with an occupational group which should know. Plaudits from lawyers we are not accustomed to. But it raises a question. If it is necessary to say that there has developed an obsession with order at the expense of law, and that increasingly police are looking upon themselves as overseers of society and not as servants, then why are the leading members of the legal profession not the ones who are saying so?

Fisher

One of the lawyers who called us told a story of his 77-year-old mother who started to cross a street, then realized the light was against her and returned to the sidewalk. A policeman who was standing some distance away shouted at her and crooked his finger summoning her for a lecture.

Crowe

So we have reached the point where we can be beckoned by the crooked finger.

Another stage seems to have been reached in Winnipeg. A reporter for the Winnipeg Free Press who was on a routine assignment had the misfortune to go up the stairs in an apartment building shortly after two city detectives. The ununiformed police turned upon the reporter, beating him and kicking him.

The latest report which we have is that the police say only that they did not realize the man was a newspaperman. This carries the implication—indeed it proclaims the implication—that if he had been an "ordinary" citizen, then too bad.

* * *

This was a building in which lived some people who dress and comport themselves in the manner of young people in Toronto's Yorkville. And it is telling evidence in support of California criminologist Professor Joseph D. Lohman, who said in Montreal that the police have and use an "incredible" power to deal with groups like "hippies and beatniks" in a manner which is quite incompatible with any meaningful rule of law.

In this same brief period there was another distressing event. A man has been taken into custody and charged with the shocking murder of nine members of one family at Shell Lake, Sask. The RCMP and the law officers of the Crown will have grounds for their actions and these will be tested according to the proven procedures of our society.

But this is not enough for the local inspector of the RCMP. He issued to the press a statement that: "This makes me very, very, proud of being a member of this force."

He has already convicted the man. We have news for the inspector. In this country a man is still innocent until he is proven guilty. Guilt is not established by police inspectors but by courts of law.

Messages of congratulation about police work are entirely proper within the confines of those engaged in police work, and are highly improper when extended to the public — including future jurors.

Also during the weekend a large group of Yorkville inhabitants took part in a totally misguided action in trying to close Yorkville Ave. to car traffic. It was also of course very typical. Having dropped out of society in most ways they should not be expected to use society's established avenues to achieve objectives. But they had to be removed.

* * *

Reports on police violence in Yorkville are conflicting. Either it happened or it didn't happen. But the Chief of Police, James Mackey, has dismissed the affair with the statement that the police did a good job.

William Allen, the constitutionally irresponsible head of Metro, agrees with him. So we may have reached another point. Young people may be shoved around provided they are not living at home with their parents.

Some months ago one of the contributors to this column was walking on Avenue Rd. near Yorkville and passed a policeman who was making a speech to a group of passers-by.

That's right, making a speech. His theme was that some of the shaggy youths in the vicinity ("bums" he called them) wrote poetry and that was clear proof of their moral infirmity. We were neglectful in our duties in not reporting him although it would have done a fat lot of good.

* * *

He should have been reported on three counts: making a speech while on duty, inciting one group of citizens against another, and uttering treasonable and defamatory words about the cultural and religious basis of Western civilization. He revealed to us the police mind on the subject of non-conformist young people.

One final point, and perhaps one which will interest the citizens of Metropolitan Toronto more than it will interest the members of the police commission.

Within the past month two members of the Metropolitan Toronto Police applied together to take university courses in the evening at an institution of higher learning. One was a constable and the other had a middle level rank. Both are qualified to go to university.

They had a most unusual request. They wanted to know if it would be possible for them to register at university under pseudonyms.

If the police commission looks at this long enough and closely enough, a light just conceivably might dawn which could lead them to begin to understand the changing role of police in our society.

China's Culture Durable

By CAROLYN LEWIS
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — "You don't want me, I'm Ming Dynasty."

"You aren't interested in 200 BC, are you?"

There were plenty of China scholars at the reception for the International Congress of Orientalists at the Museum of History and Technology, but not many specialists on China, vintage 1967.

"Dr. John Fairbanks (of Harvard) says that even Mao Tse-tung doesn't know what's going on, so how can we?" commented Helena May, a Chinese-born Ph.D. from Cologne.

But Dr. Heng Yu Kuo, who teaches northern Chinese history at the Free University in Berlin, stepped across the academic knowledge gaps and offered a few scholarly views of modern China and its relations with the United States.

●

"Much of what Americans perceive as Chinese aggressiveness toward your country, is just a lot of words — mere propaganda," he said. "You have to differentiate between verbal attacks and an intent to act."

Dr. Kuo interprets China's "cultural revolution" as clear evidence that "quite a few Chinese people oppose Mao Tse-tung's anti-American policies."

Dr. Hao Chang, who teaches Chinese philosophy and poetry in Naples, Italy, was more concerned with the impact of 18 years of communism on Chinese culture.

"I believe China's culture can survive even this foreign invasion (of Communism)," he said. "I see the present struggle as an effort by the Chinese people to reject those parts of communist doctrine which do not fit in with Chinese culture."

He said he couldn't see the Chinese people accepting subservience of the arts to politics as a permanent condition.

Dr. May interpolated the view that everyone, even the China experts, is guessing about China. "We will have to wait and see what happens when the turmoil is over."

HOME GARDEN

Now Is Time For Sowing 'HA' Seeds

By JACK BEASTALL

There are two kinds of annuals grown in this area; hardy annuals which can stand some frost, and tender annuals which are quickly killed when the temperature drops to freezing.

Jack

In most seed catalogues the hardy annuals are marked "h.a." and those are the ones that can be sown in a sheltered prepared bed at the end of August.

With an average winter and a little attention in a brief cold spell, the plants will provide flowers for shows and indoor decorations much earlier than from sowings made in the spring.

A well prepared, well drained bed is essential, also protection from searing northeast winds, and preferably a location where frost does not penetrate deeply into the soil.

Hardy annuals include the larkspur, sometimes called annual delphinium. These plants often self-sow in local gardens but only the common blue form seems to be perpetuated.

The Super Majestic strain produces magnificent closely packed stems of bloom in carmine, rose-pink, deep salmon, white as well as shades of blue.

Iceland Poppies are also grown as hardy annuals here, purchased in a mixture which gives many beautiful colors.

The popular godetia and clarkia give a mass of color for a long period, and make pretty indoor arrangements.

In the dianthus family there are two hardy annuals worth growing, one is the annual pinks and the other annual sweet william.

The pinks include Dianthus chinensis, and the varieties named Baby Doll and Bravo, while Summer Beauty is a variety of the annual sweet william.

Cultural Revolution Spreads to Albania

TURIN (Reuters)—An Italian newspaper correspondent reports from Tirana, capital of Albania, that China's tiny European ally has its own "cultural revolution" imported from Peking.

The correspondent of the Turin newspaper La Stampa says the Albanian government fears its neighbors—the Greeks and the Yugoslavs—and is suspicious of all foreigners.

All books and newspapers are seized from travellers at the frontier and hotels are under direct control of the political police, he says.

Don't let anyone kid you. All Canadian whiskies are nicknamed "rye". But most are made from corn, even when they say rye on the label. Alberta Distillers doesn't keep a kernel of corn in the place, because we believe in the clean, g-e-n-t-l-e taste of an all rye, like Alberta Premium.

SOME FOUND FREEDOM DISTURBING

Unstructured Group Unnerved

By PAUL WILLIAMSON

(Second of a Series of Three Reports)

When 150 students and resource persons gathered in Vancouver Aug. 19 for a Canadian Union of Students seminar on academic reform, they were confronted with an unusual situation.

They checked into their rooms, were given a schedule of meals, and proceeded to the opening meeting. But there, nothing happened. No chairman was present, no agenda was provided and no program for the following ten days was announced. The delegates chatted nervously in small groups waiting for something to happen.

Except for some people identifying themselves, little did happen. The session ended with the participants somewhat bewildered.

Only one method of organizator was provided. A bulletin board was placed in the lobby of one of the residences and participants were encouraged to post notices of planned discussions. Anyone desiring a discussion of a certain topic would post notice of time and place and other interested delegates would join the group.

For six days, this was the only thread of organization. The rhythm of life shifted so that people talked, drank, debated and argued until dawn, slept till noon, spent a bit of time at the beach and continued their discussions throught the next night. But the tension grew.

•

For some, the system was ideal. They could call for discussion on a topic, or attend a meeting called by someone else. They were free to come and go as they pleased, there was no superior authority, and they only "learned" when they wanted to — which was often. Yet for others, the freedom was stifling.

The shy and reticient required a structured situation to encourage their participation. And for many, the absence of a well defined program, complete with a list of conclusions, meant they had nothing to take home with them, nothing that would permit them to justify the trip to their fellow students.

Inevitably, the showdown came. A plenary session was called for the seventh day.

In mid-afternoon, the participants assembled and waited for the attack. The attack never never came, yet two schools of thought emerged. One group maintained meaningful academic reform was possible only if the participants in the educational process were willing to take it upon themselves. They considered the seminar an experiment in reformed education and warned if a directed program was laid down for the fianl three days, the old system would have triumphed.

This is not to say they were satisfied. They were not. But neither were they prepared to return to a system which was also unsatisfactory.

The second group was pragmatic. They believed there had been enough soul-searching and it was time to get down to business. Some people, they said, had gained nothing from the previous seven days. A concrete discussion of academic reform and some consideration of methods of implementing these reforms was needed. To achieve this, a committee was proposed to plan a definitive program of talks and discussions aimed at producing concensus on the subject.

•

The participants faced a test. Would they continue with a self-directed experiement which would provide little in terms of enumerated steps to reform, or would they return to a directed program which would provide these priorities.

A vote, was taken and the proposal defeated. A final article will discuss the significance of this decision.

DRAMATIC pictures of the super Canso PBY water bomber near Goldstream July 16 has been chosen as picture of the month by the Canadian Press. Amateur photographer William Hutchison, who along with his wife was taking pictures of the water bomber dropping its load on a fire at Skirt Mountain, won $25 for his pictures which were carried in The Times. Mr. Hutchison lives at 3460 Cedar Hill Road.

Museum Will Close Doors Unless It Gets More Aid

Financial plight of the Maritime Museum should be made known to the provincial government, the museum's current bulletin urges.

The museum, suffering a $7,000 annual loss, is facing closure unless some help is given.

The deficit is blamed on lack of sufficient grants. Membership in the society has increased by 500 per cent in the past two years but still the deficit remains.

The Museum is treated as a very poor relation compared to art galleries and museums in other Canadian cities, the bulletin shows.

The museum received a grant of $7,000 from the city but had to pay $4,800 in taxes which the city has declined to forego.

The London Ontario Art Gallery gets a grant of 40 cents per capita or $75,000; Vancouver plans to spend $55,000 for a museum-planetarium for its population of 450,000, or $1.31 per capita.

Kamloops with 10,000 people provides 80 cents per capita to its museum and Fort Kamloops replica.

Victoria's contribution to culture is about 10 cents per capita.

The bulletin points out that huge sums are being spent by the federal government on culture. The National Gallery in Ottawa has a budget of $3,722,500; the National Arts Centre, originally estimated at $9,000,000 is now expected to cost $42,000,000.

All grants to the maritime museum this year totalled $10,500.

"Unless financial rescue is forthcoming, the museum must close its dooors," the bulletin states.

"The museum deserves the right to survive and make modest progress."

Two Vote Cards For Soldiers 'A Mistake'

SAIGON (AP)—Chief of State Gen. Nguyen Van Thieu, the military candidate for president in Sunday's election, admitted today that a number of members of South Vietnam's armed forces have been issued two voting cards.

But said it was done by mistake and "we will give the necessary orders to see that they are not used."

"If they are caught using the cards they will be punished," he added.

Thieu's statements were made in the final joint news conference of the 11 presidential candidates. Each gave a 20-minute speech and answered questions.

Two of the 22-member U.S. observation team attended and one Senator Edmund S. Muskie (Dem.-Me.), was cornered by outspoken candidate Truong Dinh Dzu.

CRITICIZES GOVERNMENT

Dzu, whose attacks on the government have been the most vociferous, told Muskie: "The government is defrauding the electorate."

Civilian candidate Tran Van Huong, a former premier, told the news conference "the two governments of Vietnam (North and South) must sit down together in order to find a way."

Huong's remarks and those of all the candidates were carried live over the national radio network.

Thieu reiterated his opposition to negotiations with the National Liberation Front, the political arm of the Viet Cong, though he has said he would be willing to talk informally with a representative of the front.

"The NLF is an illegal organization," he said. "My policy is not to sit down to talk on equal terms with them."

NEW DEPUTY minister of forestry and rural development is J. Louis Couillard, formerly vice-chairman of the Economic Council of Canada. He held several ambassadorial positions before joining Economic Council.

Bolivia Calls Frenchman Guerilla 'Mastermind'

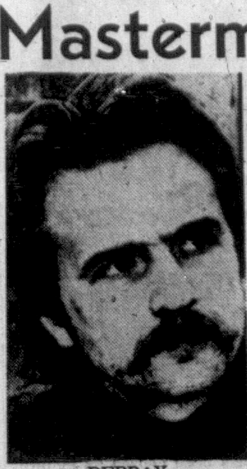
CAMIRI, Bolivia (AP)—Jules Regis Debray, 26-year-old philosopher-journalist and son of a prominent Paris family, goes on trial next week, charged as a mastermind behind the growing Castro-type guerrilla movement in the mountains of Bolivia.

Debray, charged specifically with murder, arson, armed insurrection, conspiracy against the state and illegal entry into Bolivia, has said he is sure he will get the maximum sentence—30 years—despite intercession by a wide circle of influential friends and intellectuals.

Reports are that President de Gaulle of France and Pope Paul have put pressure on Bolivian authorities, although the burden of their interventions, if true, has never been announced.

Debray and two others were arrested April 20 in a community at the foot of the Bolivian Andes.

They agreed they were on their way down from a guerrilla camp but Debray, who had spent several weeks with the guerrillas, insisted he was on an assignment for a Mexican magazine.



DEBRAY
. . . expects maximum

British photographer George Andrew Roth was released. The third man, Argentine painter Ciro Roberto Bustos, a Communist who entered the country on a forged passport, but said he had barged into the guerrilla camp by mistake, was also held for trial.

Gen. Alfredo Ovando, commander-in-chief of Bolivia's armed forces, has called Debray an "advance agent" for the guerrillas, who operate between Camiri, 360 miles southeast of the capital of La Paz, and Santa Cruz, an important sugar and oil producing centre.

The sandy-haired Debray, whose father is a wealthy lawyer and whose mother is a member of the Paris city council, won top academic honors throughout his schooling. Regarded as a leading intellectual of the left in France, he became interested in politics during the Algerian war for independence from France and later went to Cuba where he developed an intense interest in Latin America.

He taught at the University of Havana, became close to Castro and recently produced Revolution in the Revolution—essentially a textbook for Latin American revolutionaries.

Sex Offences Sends Youth To Jail

A youth who admitted to three sex offences within two days was sentenced to three years in prison Wednesday.

Richard Cool, 21, of 2054 Carnarvon had pleaded guilty last week to indecently assaulting a 10-year-old Colwood girl two weeks ago.

The following day he was arrested after indecently exposing himself at Saxe Point Park and at Beaver Lake Park the same afternoon.

The Colwood case was a classic example of an attack by a sexual psychopath, said Magistrate Ostler.

"The child was in mortal danger."

While he had sympathy for a young man "with a wretched sickness," said the magistrate, "my first concern must be for your victims and potential victims."

Cool was sentenced to three years on the indecent assault conviction and two six-month concurrent sentences on the indecent exposure convictions.

LBJ Plan to Start New Housing Trend?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Johnson's plan to create a "new community" for 25,000 people on surplus federal land in the U.S. capital may be the start of a new trend in public housing.

The president announced plans Wednesday to develop housing, stores, schools and recreation facilities on a 335-acre government-owned tract in the northeast corner of Washington.

A special cabinet-level task force will survey surplus federal property in other cities across the nation to determine whether the land could be used for similar developments.

The new community in Washington would contain 1,500 low-income apartments, 2,200 moderate-income housing units, and 800 high-income apartments, houses and townhouses.

The president emphasized, however, the new development would be "more than a housing project." He said it would offer "a full range of educational, recreation and shopping facilities to citizens of every station."

"It is my hope that this concept, if it can be applied successfully in the nation's capital, will be useful elsewhere in the country," Johnson said.

Ferries Collide In Fog

ALERT BAY (CP) — The passenger - freighter Northland Prince sailed out of Alert Bay Wednesday night with its bow caved in following a collision with an American train ferry.

The 3,100-ton vessel collided in dense fog with the ferry Alaska as the two ships passed through Broughton Strait between the Mainland and Vancouver Island, about 200 miles north of Vancouver.

The Northland Prince, carrying 90 passengers, sailed 10 miles south to Alert Bay for a check and minor repairs following the collision. Then it connued its 600-mile journey from Vancouver to Stewart, B.C., 100 miles north of Prince Rupert.

Mrs. Helga Gierth of Vancouver, a cook aboard the Northland Prince, suffered minor burns from boiling soup that spilled when the vessels collided and was admitted to hospital here. She expected to return to Vancouver today.

The Alaska, with minor damage, continued on its southward journey and was due in New Westminster this morning.

It was the second accident this month for the Northland Prince, which collided with a 90-fot fishing boat near Prince Rupert on Aug. 14. The fishboat sank, but all six crew members were rescued.

The four-year-old Northland Prince is one of a fleet of six coastal vessels operated by Northland Shipping of Vancouver.

The collision occurred in the same strait where the B.C. ferry Queen of Prince Rupert ran aground on Haddington Reef Aug. 11. The Queen will be out of service until October.

Two other collisions were reported Wednesday in the area.

An unidentified tug collided with a fishboat, the W6, and the 82-foot charter fishboat Trade Winds from Vancouver was in collision with the tug Mary Machin. The tug is towing the Trade Winds to Vancouver.

Drinking Scenes 'Staged'

Mayor Fred Bishop of Alberni Wednesday accused the CBC of encouraging teen-agers to take part in drinking scenes for a controversial television program.

The program, Young in a Small Town, was televised nationally Sunday and has been the cause of furore in the Alberni Valley ever since.

Both Mayor Bishop and Mayor Les Hammer of Port Alberni have charged the film "grossly distorted" the view of youth in the twin cities.

Mayor Bishop told the Times today a participant in a Long Beach drinking sequence which appeared in the film told him the CBC encouraged the youngsters to display their beer.

STAGED EFFORT

"This was a staged effort," said the Mayor. "It reflects on the whole of youth in our area.

CBC president Alphonse Ouimet defended the program in the following telegram Wednesday:

"Regret you found program objectionable but cannot accept charges of irresponsibility or that program was destructive and insulting.

"Respecting other claims, I am assured there were no staged scenes in program and to best of our knowledge all were residents of Alberni Valley."

Mayor Bishop said he and Mayor Hammer have sent a second telegram to Mr. Ouimet refuting the statement and calling for a more thorough investigation of the entire program.

"We are going to continue to defend our communities from the unfair publicity that has been given us by the CBC," he said.

MARCHING over the hill from the residence to the closing ceremonies in the gymnasium are the 24 students who attended the camp.

CHOSEN best all-round camper was Gordon Madill, seen here with art teacher Dolly Gill, of Lake Cowichan, and one of his own paintings.

'Open-Air Hospital' Bares Their Talents

SHAWNIGAN LAKE — What matters is that these children use their talents wisely.

Dr. Sven Jensen quoted Christ's Parable to parents attending the closing ceremonies Wednesday at the second annual camp for special children here.

He described the camp as an open-air hospital for children with school adjustment problems.

The camp is part of a continuing program.

All of the 24 youngsters attending the camp had been seen before by Dr. Jensen and his staff of Vancouver Island Mental Health Centre.

INTENSE EXPERIENCE

Psychiatric nurse Mrs. Evelyn Hepinstall said: "Living with the children 24 hours a day for two weeks is the most important thing we do.

"It's an intense emotional experience for them and the staff. We get to know the child's habits and come close to pinpointing where the problem and, sometimes, the cause lies."

The children who attend the camp are intelligent, enrolled in regular classrooms and are capable of satisfactory achievement . . . but all have problems of behavior.

At the close of camp, assessment reports are made out and so a link is forged between the camp classroom and the regular classroom.

HIGH IQ

Staff at the camp, housed in Cliffside Preparatory School, is selected from the departments of special education and nursing at UBC.

Age group of the children is from six to 13 years.

A typical camper was an 11-year-old boy of high IQ who has repeated Grade 3 three times.

Mrs. Hepinstall said the board of directors wishes to expand the program, but not by enlarging the camp.

She said increasing the number of students would ruin the work being done by the close, personal relationship between teacher and child.

LONGER CAMP

Best form of expansion, she said, would be for the camp to run throughout the summer.

At present, Cliffside is only available for the last two weeks in August.

Board chairman Dr. Mladin Zorkin of Nanaimo said the cost of running the camp increased this year as more professional help was hired.

However, the cause was fortunately over-subscribed. Cost of the camp was $5,490 and the board was left with a credit balance of $350.

Parents contributed 25 per cent of the total budget and the rest came from public subscription.

Dr. Zorkin said the camp directors aim is to build up a permanent capital reserve of $3,500.

Dr. Jensen said it was without precedent that a group of civil servants was allowed to give such a significant portion of their working time to a project sponsored by a private fund-raising organization.

Deputy minister of mental health, Dr. Gordon Tucker said the government was thankful to have a man of Dr. Jensen's dedication, knowledge and wisdom.

The expansion of such services to children at Camp Nan-Wah-Kawi (The Wise One) depended on the creative ability of people like Dr. Jensen.

Dr. Tucker said attending parents could see the great deal of effort put into helping the children help themselves.

ART, SCIENCE

A concert program by the children and displays of art and science exhibits illustrated how much of the two weeks was spent—plus boating and swimming.

In a last word Dr. Zorkin said: "We feel one of the biggest achievements was gaining cognizance that disturbed emotions are a sickness that can and should be cured."

Forest Firm Turns Down Bid For Higher Pay

VANCOUVER (CP) — McMillan Bloedel Ltd. Wednesday turned down a new bid to have the company pay regular rates to employees recruited to fight the Sproat Lake fire.

After a meeting with officials of the Port Alberni local of the International Woodworkers of America, the forest products company said the men are being employed and paid by the forest service.

The union claims that because the fire spread to company land firefighters should be paid industry rates, which start at $2.97 hourly instead of the $1.25 hourly paid by the forest service.

FISHERMEN RESCUED

TOFINO — Two men were rescued uninjured by the Coast Guard cutter Racer from a fishboat that hit a rock and sank Wednesday five miles east of Leonard Island.

The fishboat was identified as The Pit out of Victoria. Names of the rescued were not immediately known.

Thieves Get $1,000 in Tools

LAKE COWICHAN—A seven-foot high wire fence and a steel-plated window did not stop thieves here Wednesday.

In the early hours they raided Western Equipment Ltd. warehouse at Mesachie Lake and stole $1,000 worth of new tools.

Lake Cowichan RCMP are working on the case and say retailers should be on the lookout for anyone trying to sell them tools with an OTC stamp on them.

Nine Fined for Fish Violations

Nine persons were fined for fishing violations this week by Sooke and Sidney magistrates.

Magistrate D. G. Ashbee fined four persons Aug. 26 at Sidney. Arnold Church, 2602 Wark St., was fined $10 for possession of an undersized ling cod. Fined $15 for possession of undersized salmon were Desiree Ibbetson of 854 Lampson, Julie Androwskie of 3430 Cook, and Earl Lehna of 3020 Bessborough.

Five persons were fined by Magistrate E. Murphy Aug. 29 at Sooke. Kenneth Walter Putt of West Coast Road, Sooke, was fined $10 for using fishing gear designed to catch more than one fish at a time. Victor Redlick, RR 2, was fined $40 for exceeding the limit for salmon catches. Clovis Lavoie, 1340 Sussex, was fined $20 for possession of an undersized salmon.

Fined $10 for possession of undersized salmon were Raymond Berkley of Sooke and Daniel Cuthbert of 1539 Church Ave.

Last week, Sylvia Chorney was fined $10 at Sidney court for fishing on a commercial fishing craft without a commercial licence.

ANYONE FOR BAKED CROW PIE?

DUNCAN — City volunteer firemen rushed to Evans Street at 8:15 this morning in answer to an alarm.

But the grass fire at the foot of a power pole had burned itself out.

However, there was a fatality.

B.C. Hydro linemen found the culprit, a bird which got jammed between a transformer box and a power line.

Anyone for crow pie?

Celebrate Peace

NANAIMO — Six visiting Indian chiefs will take part in an Indian pow-wow here Sunday in celebration of a century of peace between the Indian and white man in Canada. The ceremonies will feature dedication of a book of peace, bearing the names of past honorary chieftains and a history of the local band.

TOP SOIL

By far the cheapest and best lasting fertilizing material for your lawn and shrubs. If applied as top dressing (one yard for every 500 sq. ft.) it will with proper care after three yearly applications develop a thick and lasting turf that feels like a soft carpet. That is how good and lasting lawns used to be made. Top dressed lawns moreover are far less vulnerable to weeds and moss; also they require less watering.

The most famous of all Gilbey's mixed gin drinks.

Is Gilbey's the only gin that mixes perfectly with tonic water?

We think so. And we have a sound reason to back up our belief.

Some gins have rather strong flavouring. Others are utterly tasteless. But Gilbey's London Dry has a perfect balance of flavour for mixed gin drinks.

In fact, Gilbey's dry flavour has been an international favourite since 1873. Quite a long time.

Tonic water has a delicate, refreshing taste. Gilbey's won't upstage your drink as some other gins can do.

Prove it to yourself. Tonight.

Note: a slice of lime makes an attractive garnish.

Con-Shawkey Shares Will Return to List

TORONTO (CP) — Shares of Con-Shawkey Gold Mines Ltd., suspended from trading March 30, 1967, will be restored to the trading list of the Toronto Stock Exchange Sept. 5.

'Dolly Varden In Position Of Stability'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Dolly Varden Mines Ltd. has reported income of $23,720 for the year ended March 31.

The income, from recovery of road construction cost, rentals and interest, cut the administrative expenditure and deferred development to $791,367.

President Peter Cromie said in the company's annual report that the total deferred development for the year ended March 31 amounted to $981,497.

The company was awarded $348,000 in a lawsuit for breach of contract against Sunshine Mining Co. of Kellogg, Idaho, Aug. 18. The defendant was given 45 days in which to appeal.

Mr. Cromie said the activities of Dolly Varden in the last 12 months have put the company into a position of stability.

1968 CARS UNVEILED

Safety Features In Chrysler Models

CHICAGO (UPI) — Chrysler Corp. today unveiled its line of 1968 cars silhouetted by long, lower bodies and filled with luxury refinements, standard safety features and more power for a "sportier look" with "youthful appeal."

The introduction of a new, lightweight, high performance V8 engine, and a wide range of sports car options highlight the Plymough Barracuda offered in three body styles: The sports fastback, hardtop coupe and convertible coupe models.

The new 318-cubic inch engine gives Barracuda the biggest standard V8 in its class, according to Chrysler.

The Imperial, featured in five models, has a new grill which sweeps around on both sides to include the new turning lights in the front fenders.

Besides new styling features on Chrysler's 1968 cars, new standard safety features also have been installed. They include improved fuel tank retention, non-override inside door handles, front seat back latches, soft window crank knobs, impact-absorbing front seat headrest, power window safety lockout, one-piece impact absorbing steering column jacket and modifications in seat and shoulder belts.

27 MODELS

The 1968 Plymouth Fury line offers 27 models, including 19 eight-cylinder models and 8 six-cylinder models. Featured in the Fury is a new upper and lower full-width instrument panel padding.

The economy oriented Plymouth Belvedere is offered as a two-door coupe, four-door sedan and two-seat station wagon. Other Plymough entries in the intermediate group are the Satellite, sport Satellite and GTX.

The GTX continues at the top of the intermediate line with sporty integral, side-facing louvers than can be made functional as fresh air inlets to the carburetor. The intermediate class also offers highly curved side glass and a distinctive rear window treatment designed to heighten the "youth appeal" of the entire line.

BUSINESS VIEWS

Tourist Dollars Filter to Many

By AB KENT
Business Editor

Kent

A Greater Victoria municipal councillor asked recently what was being done by private business to promote tourist trade in the area.

He objected to a request for a grant to help Victoria Bureau bring visitors to the capital, feeling that since private interests gain by the tourist dollar, the same interests should support advertising.

It is true that private interests do gain by tourist spending. They gain directly since they provide the accommodation, sightseeing, eating and shopping facilities, and to a large extent the transportation.

But it must be remembered that each of the industries that benefits directly probably relies on several supporting businesses for supplies and services of many different kinds, firms that never see a tourist from one year to the next.

There is also the consideration that the community as a whole derives benefit from a generally healthy trade, when money is kept in circulation.

These are fairly obvious points and need no particular stressing other than to make clear that tourist spending ultimately filters through many hands.

If public agencies can help bring tourists here, then spending of public funds to help the process is justified.

* * *

In any event, private business does not simply ride on the coattails of publicly-financed promotion. Many firms have large advertising budgets: about $100,000 is spent by the Empress Hotel alone.

Some businesses are banded together in the common cause, which brings us to Vista Tourist Service Ltd., of Victoria.

This firm has published a Vancouver Island tourist guide with maps, photographs, references and descriptions of more than 100 places to see, buy and do thing in Greater Victoria and in several up-Island spots.

It is one of the better aids to activity available, being comprehensive and accurate. There are others, of course.

* * *

Each of the businesses or attractions mentioned in the guide gets notice on a widely distributed basis — through 451 agencies outside Vancouver Island and 210 local outlets.

One major outlet is the National Automobile Club of the U.S., which distributes the guide to anyone inquiring about a trip to the island.

A total of 50,150 copies containing 40 pages for general distribution were printed this year, plus 30,820 32-page editions for hotel room distribution.

It is not throwaway literature since it represents substantial spending of advertising dollars on behalf of its patrons. Each copy is aimed at a concentrated area of potential tourists and each is designed to be a "working copy."

So in answer to that local council man — yes, private industry does put time and money into tourist promotion. In this case very creditably.

The hole was drilled to 228 feet and further drilling continues on near-vertical mineralization.

ONTARIO REPORT

Tax Structure Overhaul Urged

By KEN SMITH
Canadian Press Business Editor

TORONTO (CP)—Widespread tax changes aimed at easing the position of the property taxpayer were proposed today in the report of the Ontario committee on taxation.

At the same time, the five-man committee warned that Ontario has to get more elbow room from Ottawa to raise revenue, or people may be facing higher income and sales taxes.

Already needed is a much broader base for the province's five-per-cent sales tax, the committee said. It proposed extending the tax to include many services now exempt.

The committee, under Toronto accountant Lancelot J. Smith, called for a complete reorganization of the province's present system of county and district governments.

They should be replaced by 29 regional governments to promote greater efficiency in handling revenues and providing services, it said.

It proposed changes in municipal property taxes that would, by its figuring, save the taxpayer an average of one-third of his bill, based on 1966 assessments.

To help recompense municipalities for this loss, the province should substantially increase its unconditional grants and at the same time open its properties to taxation by the municipalities.

CHURCHES HIT

Churches should pay one-half the normal property tax instead of escaping scot-free as at present, and the province should completely overhaul its system of making grants for roads so they reflect the true costs involved for municipalities.

The committee warned, however, that tax reforms under the province's "completely outdated and inequitable" assessments would mean little. A complete reassessment of property to reflect current values was a must.

The 1,300-page report skips over the recommendations of the Carter royal commission on taxation, which made public its proposals for reforming the federal tax system last February.

The committee explained it was charged with analyzing Ontario's existing revenue structure and incorporating any detailed study of the Carter report would have unduly delayed publication of its findings.

Provincial Treasurer Charles MacNaughton quickly announced that Ontario will adopt two of the recommendations starting with the 1968 tax year.

These will see the government take over the costs of administering justice from municipalities, and provide a new basic shelter exemption grant.

Under this grant, the province will pay the municipal and school taxes levied against the first $2,000 of assesed value of every self-contained residential property, whether owned or rented.

The grant will be based on existing assessment, he said.

'Not Kept Informed', Shareholders Claim

Shareholders of McKay-Cormack Holdings Ltd. complained at the firm's annual meeting Wednesday of not being kept informed of important matters.

Two of 25 shareholders attending the meeting at Empress Hotel indicated to board chairman E. C. Warner they had had no notice of the meeting itself, nor had they been informed of recent management changes.

One shareholder argued that the shareholders should have been asked to endorse the appointment of a new general manager for McKay-Cormack shipyard, which took place early in the summer.

But the meeting re-elected the board of directors.

They are Mr. Warner, who also is serving as president; general-manager R. G. Kyle; R. W. Hamblett, F. H. A. Norton, and T. A. Edwards.

One of the shareholders noted that "the axe has fallen on one of the executives. Why hasn't it fallen on the chief executive?"

ONLY TEMPORARY

Mr. Warner explained he was not the company's chief executive and was both chiarman and president only temporarily.

There ensued some discussion about the action of directors, giving rise to a complaint from several that they were not being informed of the company's affairs.

Shareholder C. E. Blaney asked:

"Who dismissed Capt. Veres?" referring to Capt. George Veres, former general-manager of the shipyard.

"The board of directors," Mr. Warner said.

"Why?"

"Because we weren't making enough money."

"So Capt. Veres is the goat. I think if the company was in such dire straits the shareholders should have been advised," Mr. Blaney concluded.

Someone said he was not aware of the change until reading of it in a newspaper.

Director Hamblett said that in his view only one man can take full responsibility, and that is the chief executive officer.

FULL FREEDOM

He said Capt. Veres had had full freedom to manage.

Capt. Veres, still a shareholder in the firm, attended the meeting but did not speak until his name had been mentioned by others several times.

He said Mr. Warner and he had a conversation in Vancouver in March in which the chairman said "drastic action" would be taken if there was no improvement in the company's affairs by Sept. 30.

"One week later you called for my resignation," Capt. Veres said.

He also objected to Mr. Warner's earlier statement that all members of the board of directors had been present when the decision to ask for his resignation was taken.

Capt. Veres said one director was "deliberately kept out of the room."

'IMPULSIVE DECISIONS'

Capt. Veres said part of the current difficulties could be attributed to "some impulsive decisions" taken a few years ago.

In the shipbuilding industry, he said, it was not uncommon for heavy losses to be made some years, and he cited Canadian Vickers, one of Canada's largest ship constructors.

"But the top man was not sacked. Sacking the top man is not the road to put things right. It will require all the skills of management and all the goodwill that can be mustered," Capt. Veres told the meeting.

He added that he was disappointed in "attempts to discredit me in the press."

"As far as I'm concerned it has done no harm to myself," he said, adding that he felt McKay-Cormack has been harmed.

He said he had worked hard for the company during his management.

"I like to think I had something to do with its acquiring a good name."

Twice during the meeting Mr. Warner invited individual shareholders to investigate the company's records or seek information from its accountants if they were not satisfied with the answers he supplied.

"There are no secrets here. We are not trying to hide anything," the chairman said.

"The only crime we've committed is losing money."

He said the company had "got itself into a very critical state" and that the bank had been concerned for some time.

"My centennial project is to try and put McKay-Cormack back on its feet . . . To save McKay-Cormack from the bankruptcy court."

Later in the meeting he said that if it hadn't been for the kindness of a bank "there would be a receiver here today."

NEW VENTURE

Mr. Warner told shareholders of a proposed new venture that could be consumated in a matter of months, but about which he did not want public mention at this time.

He explained particulars of the purchase by Harbor Ferries Ltd., of Vancouver, of the sighseeing vessel Yukon Belle.

This was effected through Yukon Queen Tours Ltd., 95 per cent owned by McKay-Cormack, which is leasing a second vessel, Yukon Queen, to Harbor Ferries.

The operation in Vancouver harbor is making money, whereas the craft lost money when touring Victoria harbor over the past few seasons, Mr. Warner said.

They cost $40,000 each to build and the price to Harbor Ferries was $40,000, the chairman said after questioning from the floor.

Mr. Warren also revealed that he is principal shareholder in Harbor Ferries, having put $200,000 into it this summer in order to steer as much ship work as possible to McKay-Cormack. The $40,000 went to reduce McKay-Cormack's bank loan, he said.

The meeting was told that two recent undertakings of McKay-Cormack shipyard had lost a total of $175,000.

The annual financial statement shows a net loss for the 1966-67 year of $264,871.

No Reflection Intended On Mr. Veres

Solicitors for George Andrew Veres, former general manager of McKay-Cormack shipyard, have drawn attention to two items appearing in the Times concerning the reorganization of the firm which they claim are detrimental to the interests of their client.

The items appeared on June 17 and August 17.

The Times wishes to assure Mr. Veres that its reports on the change in management of the shipyard were in no way intended to reflect on his ability in his profession, or on his personal reputation, but were made in the case of routine reporting of the changes that were made in the operation of the company.

If Mr. Veres considers that these reports have in any way damaged his reputation or standing in the community the Times offers its sincere apologies, and desires to make clear that no adverse inferences as to the character or reputation of Mr. Veres were intended.

AUTO WORKERS

Strike Target Studied

DETROIT (UPI)—The United Auto Workers today formally rejected contract offers from the "big three" auto makers and then went into the final stages of picking the company it will strike to get what it wants.

The UAW was expected to give the word at 5:30 p.m. EDT which firm would be its "strike target" in the union's drive for the biggest contract gains it has ever sought.

In advance, the UAW warned that auto makers not to attempt a "deliberate collusion" which, it said, could result in a shutdown of the nation's giant automotive complex.

The UAW, for all practical purposes, rejected the auto makers' offers Wednesday. The rejection became official today with rubber stamp approval by the national UAW councils from General Motors, Ford and Chrysler.

The councils then went behind closed doors to pick the union's "strike target" the company with which the UAW will try to work out a pattern contract for the entire industry.

The betting in Detroit was that the target would be Ford. There was speculation, however, that UAW president Walter P. Reuther might decide instead on the industry's most profitable giant, General Motors.

Survey Will Pinpoint Unfilled Jobs

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada will reach next month beyond its count of men looking for work to establish a count of work looking for men.

The joint, costly project of the manpower department and Dominion Bureau of Statistics will be the first nationwide survey of job vacancies undertaken by any industrial country.

DBS officials said Wednesday the information will fill a vital need for governments, industry and individuals at all levels of the work force.

The study will pinpoint unfilled jobs precisely and comprehensively.

It will supplement and largely replace existing information provided by manpower centres.

The service has always been limited to fragmentary information, related almost entirely to blue-collar jobs.

The new mail survey will poll 5,000 large firms every month and sample 30,000 smaller firms—about 10 per cent—every quarter on a rotating basis.

Results will be published every month, relating to job vacancies over a preceding three-month period. More current information, based on a smaller sampling, will be made available to the manpower service.

A DBS statement Wednesday said the survey will be highly significant for updating information on where labor shortages occur and what kinds of skills various areas need.

It will assist industry in long-term recruitment policies, training plans and capital expansion projects.

Governments will analyze the data for their worker training and retraining programs, immigration decisions, and assistance to labor-force mobility.

The long-established labor force survey has always revealed where Canada's labor is by detailing the supply of manpower.

The new project complements this and fills a big gap in statistical information by determining the demand for labor.

The survey will cost $900,000 in its first year of operation and at least $500,000 annually after that.

First results will be thoroughly tested before publications begin on a continuing basis and IBS is making no prediction of when its monthly reports will start.

Pickersgill to Head New Transport Body

Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Transport Minister Pickersgill is to be appointed president of the new Canadian Transport Commission shortly after Sept. 15, it was learned here today.

In heading up the commission set up under the new Transport Act he will be responsible for policy decisions.

He will have two vice-presidents. One has been already appointed, Pierre Taschereau. He was named July 1 and is in charge of administration. The board has not yet been formally established pending the appointment of the president.

The intention of the government is to have the presidential appointment made ahead of the reconvening of parliament on Sept. 25.

Reached in Newfoundland Mr. Pickersgill was asked to confirm that he had agreed to accept the appointment. He replied, "I can't say anything about that. I'm not going to make any comment."

Under the revamped transportation legislation this post ranks with the top government positions.

The transport commission will be expanded to consist of 17 members. It will take in the Board of Transport Commissioners, the Maritime Commission and the Air Transport Board.

The members of these three boards have the choice of becoming members of the new one big transport commission.

When Mr. Pickersgill moves to this major new post it will create a vacancy in the cabinet which Prime Minister Pearson will have to move soon to fill. The transport minister is a key position carrying heavy responsibilities as it is one of the largest departments in the government.

ANVIL CORP. PROJECT

Toronto-Dominion Providing $21M

The Toronto-Dominion Bank, along with three U.S. banks, is providing $42 million in term loans to Anvil Mining Corporation of British Columbia for a $56 million development program to produce lead and zinc concentrates from its mines in the Yukon Territory.

As the lead bank Toronto-Dominion is providing $21 million in term loans and the other $21 million is to come from First National City Bank of New York, Bankers Trust Company, New York and United California Bank Los Angeles.

Anvil Mining Corp. is 60 per cent owned by Cyprus Mines Corporation, a diversified mining conern and natural resources producer with headquarters in Los Angeles. The other 40 per cent interest in Anvil is owned by Dynasty Explorations Limited, Vancouver.

Anvil has signed sales contracts for the delivery of an estimated $250 million of lead and zinc concentrates over an eight-year period with two Japanese concerns. These companies are Mitsui Mining and Smelting Company and Toho Zinc Co. The contracts call for annual delivery of 130,000 dry short tons of lead concentrates containing approximately 69 per cent lead and 20 ounces of silver a ton and 240,000 dry short tons of zinc concentrates containing 54 per cent zinc.

Delivery of the concentrates is scheduled to begin in late 1969.

Ralph M. Parsons Construction Company of Canada has been engaged as general contractor and is proceeding with final engineering design and construction. The lead-zinc ore will be mined by open-pit method and processed into concentrates at a mill to be built in the Vangorda district of the Central Yukon about 125 miles north of Whitehorse.

TAKEN OVER 10 YEARS

Woman Admits $260,000 Theft

MRS. FISHER
... leaving court

VANCOUVER (CP) — Grace Fisher, 42, pleaded guilty Wednesday to theft of more than $260,000 while working as a bank accountant.

Mrs. Fisher, mother of a five-year-old girl, was remanded until Sept. 8 for sentencing.

She had earlier pleaded not guilty to the charge of stealing the money from a Bank of Montreal branch during the last 10 years.

Magistrate Maurice Mulligan refused continuation of $15,000 bail on which she had been free.

Prosecutor Don Morrison told the court the theft involved $260,528.64, including interest, taken over a period between Jan. 1, 1957, to April 5, 1967.

He said the average taken per year was $20,000. Amounts in the last three years were heavier with a peak in 1966 of $38,493.

More than 80 witnesses were to testify in the trial, which began Monday.

Mrs. Fisher, a slim blonde, related in a signed statement, which earlier was read into evidence, how she took the money.

"I was the accountant and second-in-command of the bank, which is an appointed officer of the bank.

"I received deposits from customers, entered the amount of deposit on the customer's ledger card, kept the money and failed to process the deposit through the regular channels.

SPENT MONEY

"In this way the ledger was short the amount of the deposit, but the customer's record was always correct, including the interest which is calculated every six months.

"In order to avoid discovery, I would remove customer ledger cards in the amount of the discrepancy each night so that the ledger cards and ledger number would balance," the statement read.

Mrs. Fisher told the court she spent some of the money on furniture and improvement to her house. She spent some on gifts to people, clothes and the remainder on day-to-day living.

"I did not invest the money," she added. "I have no bank account other than the one at this branch, which amounts to a few dollars."

Wilson Lifts Some Curbs On Economy

LONDON (CP) — Two days after Prime Minister Wilson tok personal comand of the economy, the British government Wednesday ladled out a modest helping of economic sugar plums to the electorate.

It took the form of easing restraints on time-payment terms on a variety of articles and was calculated to add to the consumer's happiness as well as giving a gentle bost to some industries whose sales lines have become clogged through the credit restrictions.

$300 MILLION DEFICIT FOR EXPO

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Daniel Johnson says Expo 67 will have an over-all deficit of $300,000,000 of which the province will pay $10,000,000.

However, visitors to Expo from outside the province were expected to contribute about $41,000,000 to provincial coffers through sales, alcohol, gasoline and other taxes, he told a press conference Tuesday night.

Tuition Fees Edging Up At Colleges

OTTAWA (CP)—About one-third of Canadian degree-granting universities and colleges have increased tuition fees for the new school year, mainly in the arts and sciences and generally by small amounts, a report by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics said Tuesday.

The bureau made public its annual report on tuition and living accommodation costs at the universities, listing the educational institutions, sources of additional information about entrance requirements, scholarships and graduate awards, and a brief review of the student loans plan operated by the government.

Copies of the report are available from DBS for 25 cents.

The report said tuition fees have remained relatively stable since last year. But accommodation costs have risen in approximately two-thirds of the universities and colleges, with increases ranging from $10 to $140 and averaging about $55.

The bureau said its report is intended only to give a general picture of costs. They are not necessarily applicable to individual cases. Accommodation costs surveyed apply to and not to off-campus private quarters.

The report does not cover costs of transportation, books, clothing, or recreation which might add several hundred dollars to the education bill for a typical student.

ADMIRE BUT DON'T TOUCH

LONDON (AP)—BOAC hostesses on Caribbean flights will be wearing paper mini-dresses on Caribbean flights, beginning in October. The short-sleeved shifts will be splashed with purple and cerise flowers and will be discarded after wearing. A spokesman for the British Overseas Airways Corp. said economy was the chief reason for the paper uniform.

Who Needs Army?

Fans' Attitude Puzzles Nicklaus

RYE, N.Y. (CP) — Jack Nicklaus, who is generally acclaimed the world's greatest golfer, has conquered almost every obstacle, but he has not won his battle with Arnie's Army.

After pocketing the $50,000 first prize Wednesday in the $250,000 Westchester Classic, he said he doesn't let the army bug him too much, but he left listeners wondering.

"I'm getting used to it," he said. "It's really quite comical.

"I'm out there to play golf. I try to concentrate and ignore them."

The army was out in force for the final round of the world's richest event, which presented Nicklaus, Palmer and Dan Sikes in the final and featured threesome.

SIKES THREATENED

Nicklaus stood off a late rush by Sikes, 36-year-old Jacksonville, Fla., law graduate, to win his fourth tournament of the year.

Jack had a 72-hole score of 272, 16 under par, while Sikes, who twice pulled out and started home but came back when rain washed out the rounds Saturday and Sunday, was runner-up at 273.

Rallying from three shots back, Sikes caught Nicklaus with successive birdies at the 11th and 12th but fell back after landing in a trap at the 15th and failed to tie it with a bold 15-foot putt that hit the cup and stayed out at the final hole. He collected $30,000.

BIG NAMES FINISH WELL

The rest of the leaders looked like a Who's Who of golf with Roberto de Vicenzo of Argentina, the British Open king, third at 274; Gary Player of South Africa, fourth at 275, and Palmer, with a birdie at the final hole, fifth at 276.

Al Balding of Toronto won $179.16 for finishing at 288—even par.

Palmer's fabled army—a stampeding, yelling pack cut from the cloth of the boisterous New York Mets baseball fans—tramped behind their hero and cheered every swing. They groaned in agony when Nicklaus and Sikes picked up strokes.

"I don't appreciate this sort of stuff either," Palmer said afterward. "It's all right when they cheer for somebody. But when they start cheering against players, it's bad."

Nicklaus' victory boosted his official earnings for the year to $156,748—his fifth straight season over the $100,000 mark—and sent him ahead of Palmer in the money list. Palmer's $10,750 for fifth place put him at $148,939.

Twins Moan the Blues Because of Rock Tune

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Robinson Rock—the swinging melody that guided Baltimore to the world championship last year—is in on the American League again even though the Orioles are nowhere near the top this season.

Frank and Brooks Robinson, Baltimore's partners in punch, left Minnesota reeling with two straight losses that dropped the second place Twins 1½ games off Boston's league leading pace.

Brooks lined a three-run double that keyed the Orioles' 4-3 victory over Minnesota Tuesday night and Frank hammered a two-run 10th inning homer giving Baltimore a 4-2 decision against Dean Chance Wednesday.

Elsewhere in the pennant race, Boston got an 11th inning home run from Carl Yastrzemski and nipped New York Yankees 2-1. It was the Red Sox' 14th victory in the last 18 games. Tommie Agee lined three key hits as Chicago topped Washington 5-1, and California pushed across two ninth inning runs that jolted third-place Detroit, 3-2.

KC WINS IN 12 INNINGS

In other American League action, Kansas City shaded Cleveland 6-5 in 12 innings.

Chance, 17-10, was making his first start since pitching a no-hitter against Cleveland last week and he was trailing 2-1 until the eighth inning when Bob Allison smashed a pinch home run.

That sent the game into extra innings but not for long. Boog Powell singled with one out in the 10th and then, after Paul Blair was retired, Frank Robinson connected.

It was Robinson's 26th homer of the year.

Yastrzemski, who had been hitless in 18 at bats in the Yankees series, redeemed himself with his 35th home run and beat Al Downing.

Downing struck out 12 batters but Yastrzemski, who entered the game in the eighth inning, snapped the tie in the 10th. The homer gave him the major league lead by one over Minnesota's Harmon Killebrew.

In the National League, torrid Orlando Cepeda and three-time bat champ Roberto Clemente continued their battle for the league batting crown.

Cepeda ripped three hits during St. Louis Cardinals' 2-0 win over New York Mets to lift his average to .343, only three points shy of Clemente's league-leading mark.

Clemente kept up the pace by stroking two safeties, including a two-run double, to help Pittsburgh Pirates down Atlanta Braves 11-9.

In other games, Cincinnati downed Philadelphia 2-1, Los Angeles trounced San Francisco 9-3 and Chicago defeated Houston 4-1.

Californian Sets Two World Marks

TOKYO (AP)—Mike Burton of Carmichael, Calif., smashed both the 800-metre and 1,500-metre freestyle world records in winning the 1,500-metre finals in 16:34.6 at the World University Games today.

The 1,500-metre time bettered his own world record of 16:41.6, set in 1966, and his pending mark of 16:34.1 set last month in the United States.

Pushed by another American, Andrew Strenk of Fullerton, Calif., who won the silver medal, Burton clocked 8:45.5 for the 800-metres—bettering the existing record of 8:47.4 set in 1966.

Strenk of the University of California, finished the 1,500 metres in 16:43.4 about 15 metres behind Burton, a student at UCLA.

U.S. STRING SNAPPED

However, the U.S. string of victories in the swimming and diving competition was snapped. When Yosuke Arimitsu of Japan won the men's high diving gold medal.

The Americans had collected 20 gold medals during the first three days and were expected to capture all the events Thursday in the final day of swimming and diving at the Olympic pool.

Arimitsu, a 23-year-old student at Nihon University, collected 798.15 points in 10 dives to beat Keith Russell of Mesa, Ariz., who took the silver medal with 766.35 points.

The 19-year old American won the springboard diving gold medal Tuesday.

U.K. GIRL GETS WIN

The Americans suffered their second swimming setback—by a split second—when Britain's Diana Harris edged Cynthia Goyette of Detroit to win the women's 100-metre breaststroke gold medal in 1:18.9.

The track and field competition continued, but the absence of American high jumpers dampened interest in the men's event watched by a crowd of 13,000 at National Stadium.

Celtic Topples Rangers

GLASGOW (Reuters) — Glasgow Celtic fought back with three goals in the last 13 minutes Wednesday to beat Glasgow Rangers 3-1 and reach the Scottish League Soccer Cup quarter-finals.

After half-time, with the wind favoring Celtic, Johnson almost scored for Rangers with a kick that hit the underside of the crossbar.

Fourteen minutes from the end, Rangers missed again on a penalty kick by Johansen.

Wallace scrambled home a corner kick from Lennox to tie the score with 13 minutes to play, and Murdock scored the winner six minutes later.

COLLETT RETURNS . . . . . . TO SHAMROCKS TONIGHT

Tougher Defence Irish Target

Victoria Shamrocks plan only one minor player change and a major tug on the defensive belt for their second meeting with Vancouver Carlings in the Inter-City Lacrosse League's final series.

The game is scheduled for Memorial Arena tonight, starting at 8, with Vancouver holding a 1-0 lead in the best-of-seven title playoff by virtue of a 16-6 victory Tuesday.

Shamrocks will have Tom Collett back in the lineup. The vacationer missed Tuesday's game in Vancouver but was to fly home today from Prince George.

Bill Russell, who filled in for Collett Tuesday, will be unavailable for any more duty because his Nanaimo team is scheduled to leave for Ontario at the weekend to participate in the Canadian senior "B" final.

While planning his lineup, Victoria coach Dave Unwin "doesn't expect" to have the services of speedy Nirmal Dillon until next week.

Released from hospital earlier this week after undergoing treatment for an injured eye, Dillon is not likely to play Saturday, when the third game of the series is scheduled on Vancouver's home floor.

Dates of other games in the series have been switched from times announced earlier, much to the consternation of the Victoria executive.

Originally, the dates for the final four games were Sept. 4, 6, 8 and 9. League commissioner George Wainborn has ruled the games will be played Sept. 5, 7, 9 and 10.

The switch wasn't met with glee by Victoria's executive because all their travel arrangements have to be changed.

'Stingy Brothers' Attitude of Riders

EDMONTON (CP) — Saskatchewan Roughriders played the part of stingy older brothers to Edmonton Eskimos Wednesday, giving up a little early, withholding a lot late, and eventually mopping the stadium with them.

The Roughies trimmed the Esks 21-10 in the Western Football Conference encounter, but the game was much more one-sided than the score indicated.

The Roughies trailed 10-3 after one quarter as 22,197 fans howled approval. But they bounced back for a 17-10 lead at the half, and led 21-10 after three quarters.

Although they scored just four points in the final 30 minutes, they dominated the game.

GAINED 1 YARD RUSHING

They allowed the Eskimos just two first downs in the second half, gave them 49 yards passing and one yard rushing.

They allowed Eskimo quarterback Frank Cosentino to complete seven of eight short passes for the 49 yards, but were never in danger from any of them.

The Eskimos took an early first-quarter lead on a 53-yard return of an interception by Garry Lefebvre. The Esks added a field goal later in the quarter, and that pretty well ended the game for them.

Cosentino completed 11 of 16 passes for 102 yards.

With Ron Lancaster pulling the strings, Ed Buchanan sprang loose for 132 yards on 15 carries and George Reed pounded out 95 yards on 22 carries for Saskatchewan.

CAMPBELL 4 FOR 4

In between, Lancaster was throwing to Hugh Campbell four times for 79 yards, and a couple of times to Gordon Barwell for 32 yards.

Lancaster clicked on only eight of 17 pass attempts for 135 yards.

Reed and Buchanan scored touchdowns for the Roughriders. Jack Abendschan, who picked up a single on a field goal attempt in the fourth quarter, also had two converts and two field goals.

In addition to Lefebvre's touchdown, the Esks' other points were scored by Peter Kempf—a field goal and a convert.

The win pulled the Roughriders into a first-place tie with Calgary Stampeders. Both clubs have four wins in five starts. The Eskimos now are tied in third place with Winnipeg Blue Bombers, each with four points.

Winnipeg meets the hapless British Columbia Lions in Winnipeg tonight.

The Lions are winless in five starts and have averaged only 12 points a game.

Their biggest advantage might be the absence of quarterback Kenny Ploen from the Winnipeg lineup.

Ploen was injured in the team's 24-18 loss to Saskatchewan, and his place will be taken by Bill Van Burkleo.

The Lions are still being evaluated by new coach Jim Champion, who sums up the Lions' woes this way:

"We've got to get some new folks out there'"

Tonight's game will not be telecast but will be broadcast on CKNW (980) starting at 6 p.m.

TOP CONTENDER in annual Daffodil Cup races for modified cars at Western Speedway this weekend will be Vancouver driver Ralph Monhay. Three former winners of event are slated to be in star-studded field for contest, which will be run over two days, Saturday night and Monday.

Five-Run Rally Helps Mounties To Keep Pace

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Portland Beavers kept the pace Wednesday, taking a 4-3 Pacific Coast League decision from the Hawaii Islanders to maintain their 1½-game western division lead.

While the Beavers chalked up their triumph, second-place Vancouver beat Seattle 8-4, and third-place Spokane, three games behind the leaders, edged Tacoma 4-3 in 10 innings.

Tulsa, cellar-dweller in the eastern division, beat San Diego, the division champ, again, this time 5-3, Oklahoma City drubbed Phoenix 5-1, and Indianapolis trimmed Denver 2-1.

Seattle and Vancouver were tied 3-3 by the last of the eighth when Vancouver plated five runs for its win. The uprising started when Randy Schwartz doubled. Then Sal Bando was intentionally walked. and an error on Larry Elliot's grounder filled the bases. Jim Driscoll walked to force Schwartz home, and consecutive hits by winning pitcher Bill Edgerton, Ossie Chavarria and Joe Gaines did the rest of the damage.

Weather Again Hits Junior Tennis Event

OTTAWA (CP) — The two top-ranked players in the under-16 boys' singles encountered stiff opposition in their matches Wednesday before advancing to the fourth round at the Canadian junior closed tennis championships.

Second seed Philip Erney of Montreal defeated Louis Desmarteaux of London, Ont., 6-4, 6-4 in a well-played match. The taller Erney used a powerful overhead smash to score many points while his opponent scored well with a driving forehand placement shot.

Jim Boyce of Toronto, first seed, eliminated Luc Michaud of Drummondville, Que., in a hard-fought contest 10-8, 6-3.

In another third-round match in the under-16 boy's, seventh ranked Dave Johnston of Vancouver trounced David Stanway of Montreal 6-1, 6-1.

A persistent rain limited the number of completed matches to 12.

With good weather conditions, tournament officials hoped to be able to play finals in all events Friday. The tournament had been scheduled to end today.

PLAY STEELERS SATURDAY . . . LONG BEACH DROPPED

Rangers Still Main Problem

Little has been changed for the Victoria Steelers with the departure of Long Beach Admirals from the western division of the Continental Football League.

For coach Don McKeta and the Steelers, the only major worry is preparing for their first home game of the campaign—against Seattle Rangers Saturday night at Royal Athletic Park.

Admirals sailed out of the league picture following a night-long meeting in San Francisco that ended at 6 a.m. Wednesday. When it was over, weary league officials had dropped the Long Beach entry from the division and drawn up a new schedule that still gave each remaining team the same number of games contained in the original schedule—six at home and six on the road.

For the Steelers, it meant only playing two teams three times instead of twice. Eugene Bombers will replace the Admirals in Victoria and make two Athletic Park appearances, and Victoria will play twice against the Buccaneers at Sacramento.

Long Beach owner Bob Spitler, critical of fans when the Admirals failed to attract crowds in exhibition games, asked for a change after his club drew only 950 paying customers to its first league game.

He requested permission to either move the team to Portland or play all games on the road.

"This gave us a real problem," commented league president Peter Murphy of Eugene. "We didn't want to approve the move to Portland at this late date so it was decided to continue with only six clubs.

"However, we believe we now have six solid teams and are looking forward to expansion next season to eight or 10 clubs."

Spokane and Portland are the cities considered most likely to join the division next year.

The new schedule has extended Victoria's season by one week while leaving home dates unchanged. Steelers now play their final game against the Rangers at Seattle on Dec. 2, instead of Nov. 26.

McKeta, still searching for new players to bolster the Steelers, said today he may bring in quarterback Dave Mathieson, placed on the waiver list after only one game with B.C. Lions of the Canadian Football League.

Mathieson, on taxi squads of National Football League teams for five years since he starred at Washington State University, is reported interested in a move to the Steelers.

"If he is waived, I think we have a good chance of getting him," said McKeta. "I played against him in college and he's a good one."

New Schedule for Steelers

Snow Greets Gary

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — Stymied by rain, wind and flakes of snow Wednesday competitors tried again today to play the first round of the 67th United States Amateur championship.

U.S. Golf Association officials called off the first round Wednesday just as the threesome with defending champion Gary Cowan of Kitchener, Ont., stepped to the first tee.

Thirteen threesomes among the 150 players had sloshed through 18-hole rounds before the postponement The best score was a 71 by Bill Harvey of Greensboro, N.C.

The best nine-hole card, 33 was shot by Fred Beyhmer Jr., of Lansing, Mich., on the front side of the 6,946-yard par 35-35—70 layout.

Tournament officials said if weather conditions permit playing 18-hole rounds today and Friday, the tournament will wind up Saturday with 36-holes, rather than 18. The field is cut after the first two rounds to the low 50 and ties.

SWINGING FROM SOUTHPAW SIDE

Without genuine left-footed kicker when they won Pacific Coast Soccer League crown and Kennedy Cup tournament last season, Victoria O'Keefes now have three southpaw shooters in camp as they prepare for new campaign. Ray Telford (left) of Nanaimo, and Duncan resident Peter Wilson (right) get smile of approval from Peter Brett as they boot leather during workout. Other lefty is Peter Wheaton, of Port Alberni.

TIME OUT

By JEFF KEATE

"Yeah, and it had antlers, three purple eyes and a polka-dotted tail, eh, Dad!"

Beaulac Thwarts Century

Red Lion Inn won the city Senior "C" softball championship Wednesday as the veteran Dennis Beaulac led the way.

Beaulac twirled a 4-3 victory over Century Inn at Heywood Avenue Park, his second win in two nights, to give Lions the decisive edge in a best-of-five playoff series that went six games. One game was replayed because of a protest.

Beaulac allowed 10 hits, twice as many as Century's Fred Pilon and Carl Walker yielded, but he responded well to pressure.

Century put the potential tying and winning runs on base with nobody out in the seventh and final frame before Beaulac closed the door, retiring the side on three force plays by third baseman Danny Lawson.

Lawson had two of Red Lions' five hits. Gord Rutherford and Bill James each had two safeties for Century while Pilon blasted a fourth-inning homer.

Lions will represent Victoria in the B.C. senior "C" playoffs at Port Alberni this weekend. Their first game in the nine-team tournament is Saturday at 12:30 p.m.

Red Lion Inn	000 020 2—4	5	2
Century Inn	100 110 0—3	10	3

Victoria Crew Still Seventh

Victoria's Jack Woodward and crewmen Peter Townsend, Gordie Inglis and Gerry Anderson still hold seventh place after seven races in the North American senior sailing championships near Montreal.

The eighth and final race in the Mallory Cup eliminations was scheduled today.

Eddie Botterell of Montreal and Clifford Campbell of Beechwood, N.J. are tied for first place.

Vets in O'Keefe Camp Bouncing Like Rookies

By ERNIE FEDORUK

Things are happening at a "smile-a-day" clip in the training quarters of Victoria O'Keefes.

Veteran fullback Dave Stothard and halfback Bill Hamilton are the latest to bring smiles to the face of manager Frank Grealy.

Preparing for Monday's exhibition match at Royal Athletic Park against a Seattle side, Victoria's Pacific Coast Soccer League team is being whipped into condition at Topaz Park.

Stothard, team captain last season, and the Scottish-born Hamilton confound Grealy with their eagerness.

NEVER KEENER

"I must confess Stothard and Hamilton have surprised me," said Grealy. "They have an almost-boyish outlook in practices. I don't think I've ever seen them as keen as they are at the moment."

It means both veterans are fighting for their positions with the bounce and zeal of young rookies, although neither is expected to have any difficulty in winning a regular spot.

The Seattle team is the one that had applied, earlier this year, for entry in the PCSL. It was refused admission this season but plans to re-apply again.

Among the players is Tony Major, a one-time winger with the Victoria team who now lives in Seattle.

NEW CAPTAIN FOR ENGLAND

LONDON (Reuters) — England cricket captain Brian Close, under severe censure for the use of delaying tactics in a county match, Wednesday was replaced as leader of the team's tour of the West Indies later this year.

The new captain will be Colin Cowdrey, who led the team in 1966, the Marylebone Cricket Club announced.

Schall, Meyers Set Scoring Pace

Gary Schall scored four times Wednesday at Esquimalt Sports Centre as Victoria North Americans swept to a 6-0 Summer Hockey League win over Saanich Wings.

Goalie Geoff Ward recorded the shutout.

In a second contest, Larry Meyers' three-goal performance sparked Dave Duncan Shell to a 5-2 victory over Duncan Luckies.

FINAL FRIDAY

Seniors Play Right to Form

It doesn't happen too often in the upset-riddled sport, but Lee Steil, George Bigelow, Melvin Aspray and Harry Givan provide a fine example of "form marching".

Form has been the prevailing feature of the grand championship march in the Pacific Northwest Seniors' annual tournament at Victoria Golf Club this week.

That's why the four were stepping it off in today's semifinals. The 18-hole final will be played Friday.

Steil, Givan, Bigelow and Aspray finished 1-2-3-4, respectively, in Monday's qualifying round.

Today it was Steil against Bigelow and Aspray against Givan.

Vancouver's Jack Edgell and Tom Green of Seattle almost disrupted form in Wednesday's quarter-finals.

Behind all the way, Green won the 18th to square his match with Aspray and force extra holes. But Aspray, a Spokane medic, finally won with a par on the par-five 19th hole.

Edgell also extended medallist Steil, finally bowing on the 18th.

Defending champion Bigelow and Givan, the only scratch player in the field of over-55 swingers, had easier times.

The Canadian seniors' champion, Bigelow was four under par for 13 holes played and sidelined Ed Murphy of Portland, 6 and 5.

The Seattle-based Givan defeated Gordon Money of Victoria, 4 and 3.

Speedy Streak Captures Rich Hambletonian

DU QUOIN, Ill. (CP) — Speedy Streak, a full brother to Speedy Scot which won the race in 1963, won the Hambletonian Trot Wednesday in straight heats.

Owned by Kenneth Owen of Houston, Tex., C. F. Gaines of Sherburne, N.Y., and John R. Gaines of Lexington, Ky., Speedy Streak sailed out in a two-minutes-flat mile in the first one-mile heat of the $122,650 championship for three-year-old trotters. Speedy Streak covered the second trip in 2:01.

Second to finish in summary was Keystone Pride, owned by the Hardwood Stable of Freeport, N.Y. Keystone Pride was second in the first heat, and in the second heat placed third.

Third in summary was Halifax Hanover, owned by Armstrong Brothers of Brampton, Ont., which was third in a photo finish in the first heat and fourth in the second heat.

BROKE STRIDE

Murray Mir, owned by Adrien and Giard Miron of St. Augustin, Que., finished sixth in the first heat and 12th in the second, his poor placing the result of a break in stride at the clubhouse turn. Trainer-driver Marcel Dostie said he tried to send Murray Mir away too quickly and the horse went off his feet.

Hippies Don't Do Anything Criticizes Activist Youth

By MARILYN ARGUE

OTTAWA (CP)—The Junior Red Cross has grown up. Tired of sharing an image with the 1,000,000 grade school members, teen-agers have formed their own 250,000-member group called the Red Cross Youth.

At Rendezvous 67, their recent conference at Carleton University here, about 300 Canadian members met with 90 young delegates from 46 countries.

"The main objective was international understanding; we were disappointed that China and Russia didn't send delegates," says Diane Gudgeon, 20, one of 46 Canadian young people who helped organize the nine-day conference.

"Some of the delegates are looking for concrete solutions to their country's problems. For instance there's a 16-year-old girl from Pakistan who's been working in famine areas.

"But there are some people who have no experience of this kind of thing. They're trying to find out what the problems are.

"They have to do this. There are so many people that just aren't with it that millions of people are starving to death."

PLAN YOUTH CORPS

Diane, a brown-haired, green-eyed native of Winnipeg, is a University of Manitoba graduate who plans to become a social worker.

She says emphatically that young people have a central role to play in solving major world problems such as famine and overpopulation.

"One thing we can do is make people aware that the problems exist. We can simply do publicity.

"And the Red Cross Youth is planning to send teams abroad to live and work with people. We want to help them help themselves, sort of working from the inside of the problem out."

The program will begin in 1968, probably in Jamaica.

Through meeting young people from abroad at the conference, Diane has decided that teen-agers everywhere have a greater sense of responsibility than their parents did.

"I think we're faced with more problems than our parents were, and we get more information about trouble spots than they did.

"We have to be concerned. The problems are so large unless we do something about them we won't be able to survive."

That's her main objection to hippies—"they're not doing anything."

"Their main idea seems to be love, but I don't think very many of them are sincere. It's a fad with the ones I've seen. They just seem to enjoy wandering around barefoot."

The businesslike young people at Rendezvous 67 also did some barefoot wandering in the summer heat of the Carleton campus. After the meeting ended, they scheduled visits to Expo, historic St. Lawrence Seaway sites, Toronto and Niagara Falls.

The foreign delegates spent two weeks before the meeting visiting in Canadian homes across the country.

"I think we have achieved international understanding," Diane says of the meetings. "On the practical level, we're really becoming aware of the need for youth service programs. And every time we discuss a problem, everyone keeps coming back to the fact that education must be given to more people."

90-YEAR-OLDS TAKE COURSES

You're never too old to learn. More than 300 old-timers—several of them in the early 90s—have already enrolled for the 26 arts and handicraft classes starting at Victoria Silver Threads Centre Sept. 19.

Little more than a week after registrations opened, the classes are three-quarters filled and there are waiting lists for several, including oil painting, ceramics and millinery.

MOST OVER 60

"Registrations are way up on this time last year," says Mrs. William Logie, general supervisor. "The majority are women of all ages from 65 to 93. But we have a number of male students—more than last year—who are in their 80s."

Mrs. Logie said a lady of 93 took her place in the lineup the day registrations opened.

"The general enthusiasm is quite infectious."

Surprisingly, 60 instructors have volunteered for the 26 classes, which include wood carving, embroidery, shell ornamentation, copper work, basketware and modelling.

Starting Sept. 19 classes will be held from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. with afternoon sessions on Thursdays. In order to make the instruction as personal as possible, classes are limited to eight or 10 students each.

ACADEMIC PROGRAM

Academic courses are also planned. A class in conversational French, started last year, will be repeated and another in conversational Spanish may be added.

"Members have asked for instruction in music and English literature," said Mrs. Catherine Horne, executive director of the Silver Threads service.

"These will depend on the number of requests we receive for each. Many members are anxious to learn skills and crafts for which they had little time during their working years.

"But they don't want to compete with younger students attending the regular night classes offered by the school board's adult education division."

Garage Gates Controlled Overhead

HAMPTON, England (AP)—Dennis Washington paid $4,200 for gates operated by remote control, and at those prices he figured they couldn't be swinging open for 50 to 60 jet fighters a day.

Every time a U.S. Air Force jet swoops overhead from the base at nearby Upper Heyford, the gates—meant to accommodate Washington's five cars and four horse carriages—open.

The 42-year-old concrete company boss found out that the jets generated the same ultrasonic waves as a device in a cigarette case he used to operate the gates.

"I have decided to have a try with an infra-red system which I'm assured is foolproof," said Washington. "We will see."

ASK ANDY

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes. The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Andy sends a complete, 20 volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Peter Dryke, age 9, of Duluth, Minnesota, for his question:

How are earthworms born?

A human baby, of course, has a mother and a father. So does an earthworm. But his family life is much more complicated than ours.

Every full-grown earthworm is meant to be both a mother and a father. When you want a brood of new baby bunnies, you must start with one male and one female. The two parents must be of different sexes — or they can have no baby bunnies. The same thing is true of cats and dogs and other everyday animals. But the family life of the earthworm is very different. If you want a batch of baby worms, you will need to start with two parents. But you do not have to choose a male and a female to start a new family. Any two worms you find in the garden will do. Both of them can be mothers and also fathers.

This kind of family life is hard for us to understand. In our world, boys are boys and girls are girls. Men become fathers and women become mothers. In our world, we move around a lot and meet a lot of other human beings. Teenagers go dating and grown-ups go courting. But the world of an earthworm is very small. He does not travel far or meet a lot of other worms. Choosing a wife is not easy. But Mother Nature has a plan for such problems. When any two grown-up earthworms chance to meet, they can start a family. Both become mothers and go off to lay their eggs. Each mother is the father of the eggs laid by the other parent.

Soon after the parents meet and part, each one grows a pale, puffy band around its wormy body. This narrow ring is a cocoon of eggs. When the tiny eggs are ready, the parent worm wiggles backwards and slips the cocoon forward and over its head. The small sack is left behind on the ground. But the eggs inside have plenty of yolk and egg white to nourish them. As a rule, one egg is stronger or hungrier than the rest. It feeds upon the other eggs in the cocoon.

Feeds on Eggs

After about three weeks, the sturdy young earthworm is ready to hatch. It worms its way out of the cocoon, leaving the husk behind. The youngster is a small copy of its parents — of both of them. Meantime, its father laid a cocoon of eggs and from it hatched another baby worm. The youngsters are not likely to meet each other or their parents. So they do not have to figure out which of their kinfolk is which. The parents may not meet again. But after each one lays a batch of eggs, it grows another and then another cocoon. Each parent may go on producing baby earthworms, one after another, all through the warm, moist spring and summer seasons.

The world of nature teems with small and simple animals. These creatures far outnumber us and they were on earth millions of years before the human family arrived. Many simple animals have family lives like the earthworm. Other tiny creatures have only one parent. All by itself, the parent hands on life to a new generation. Then there are many tiny one-celled animals who multiply by dividing. Each parent separates its small body into two equal halves and so it becomes a brand new pair of twins.

* * *

Andy sends a World Book Atlas to Patty Lynam, age 11, of Burdett, Kansas, for her question:

What is Andy's age limit for answering questions?

Andy loves questions from everybody old and young. But he aims to assist persons old enough to understand sensible limit begins with the seven-year-olds. He has to keep in mind the persons of all ages who read his column. And a seven-year-old can understand the kind of answer that would be interesting to many older persons. Sometimes, but not often, he selects a question from a bright penpal who may be six, going on seven.

Andy's favorite people are still in the growwing stage. Their questions are the most interesting to him and, in his opinion, to everyone else. He tries to select fresh, interesting questions and the answers to these often are hard to find and usually out of reach for young people. An 18-year-old knows or should know how to track down an answer for himself or herself. So Andy sets a top age limit of 17 — though sometimes he goes above it. In any case, you can go on asking Andy questions and expecting answers from the age of seven to seventeen.

Man, 83, Relaxes Sleeping in Water

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP)—Fess Abell gives lifeguards fits if they don't know him.

He has a habit of going to sleep in the water.

"No great problem," says the 83-year-old Abell. "I just relax like I'm in bed, breathe deep and naturally and pretty soon I'm sound asleep.

"I have slept so hard that someone had to splash my face with water to wake me up.

"It's really great."

Abell also can float vertically in 15 feet of water and claims to be able to float in any position.

The former YMCA worker says he taught an estimated 25,000 people to swim in his 65 years of instructions.

He says that relaxation and natural breathing are the secrets of floating.

Party First Arts Council Project

The Arts Council of Greater Victoria will launch its first major venture in September.

From its newly acquired headquarters in Dunlop House, 1960 Lansdowne Road, comes the announcement of a gala theatre party to celebrate the visit to Victoria of the phenomenally successful Canadian venture in the musical theatre — Anne of Green Gables.

Part of the Festival Canada on Tour program, and the last event that is to visit this city, Anne of Green Gables comes to the Royal Theatre, Sept. 11 and 12.

The musical is sponsored in its only British Columbia appearances, ins Vancouver and Victoria, by the B.C. Centennial Committee.

Following the opening Monday night performance, Community Arts, Council hostesses and their guests will attend a party for the cast of the musical in the new wing of the Art Gallery, Moss Street.

The Arts Council is responsible, through a number of hostesses and its executive, for selling a large block of seats for the opening performance.

All proceeds from theatre and party ticket sales will go toward a recently established Community Arts Council scholarship fund.

Members of the committee arranging the event are Mrs. D. Mason Hurley, Mrs. George Masters, Mrs. Hershell Smith and Mrs. Maurice Johnson.

Theatre and party tickets may be obtained from Mrs. Arthur Burns, 383-4906 or Mrs. Burton Kurth, 477-6809.

Cartoon Protested

COPENHAGEN (Reuters) — China has lodged a new protest with the Danish foreign ministry about an "insulting" cartoon of chairman Mao Tse-tung which appeared in a local newspaper. The cartoon showed Mao waving a Red Guard booklet while being swallowed by a Chinese dragon.

THE DIRTY DOZEN

War Thriller
Royal Theatre

It is a sad commentary on our times that films which deal unduly in sex and love are rated as unsuitable for children, while those specializing in hate, violence and cold-blooded murder bear no such restrictive label.

So it was that hordes of holidaying youngsters attended the first Victoria showing Wednesday afternoon of a film which glorifies killing in the name of war.

And it is not the old-fashioned, outright killing that is done, quickly and cleanly, by law enforcement officers in the ever-popular westerns. This is killing of a gross and bloody nature, done by characters whose motivations are morbid, sadistic and cold.

The youngsters responded, as they always do, to the thrill and tension of murder in the offing. What distresses me is that so many films today—both on TV and movie screen—create the impression that murder is normal rather than abnormal.

Yet the most normal thing in human life, sexual love, is considered unsuitable for young audiences.

* * *

The Dirty Dozen tells of a group of U.S. military prisoners during the Second World War who have been condemned for murder, rape and other major crimes.

They are taken from a military prison in England, shortly before D-Day, 1944, and are secretly trained as a team of commandos to murder the inmates of a Nazi officers' rest home on the eve of the assault on the Normandy coast.

Here is a glorification of killing by hardened criminals under the command of a hard-bitten major (Lee Marvin). And, although most of these corrupt commandos are killed in the execution of their slaughter-house assignment, they are elevated as heroes.

There is no hint of irony; no suggestion that murder is criminal. All is sacred in the name of war.

For this reason, perhaps, The Dirty Dozen is a first-rate dramatization of sadism and cruelty, with some humorous interludes. Lee Marvin is fascinating as a U.S. Army major, who is frowned on by the Brass as an insolent maverick, yet is capable of carrying out almost any dirty job assigned to him.

And there are fine performances by Charles Bronson, Negro Jim Brown, Telly Savalas, Clint Walker, Al Mancini, Stuart Cooper, Tom Busby and Colin Maitland—as members of The Dirty Dozen.

Centennial Pins Ready Once More

Centennial pins are once again available, says Centennial Society co-ordinator Jerry Gosley.

His office has issued about 35,000 pins but they were in short supply for a time until the new shipment arrived.

Service clubs, organizations and conventions can obtain the pins by contacting the Centennial Office in Centennial Square.

Colorful table mats are also available for teas and banquets.

The British enjoy Toby by the Yard

Old English yard glasses like the one illustrated here were very popular in the 18th century about the time that Toby was first brewed. They were kept in English Inns for a special type of competition that occurred when two gentlemen would compete to see who could down the contents of such a glass first. The yard glass is still in evidence today, and is especially popular with British university clubs where initiates are invited to down the contents of the yard glass in one draught. Have a yard of Toby!

MAGICIANS RECOGNIZE CITY 'BROTHER'

There's a Lot of 'Hocus Pocus' in His Life

CROCKFORD
. . . all in spare time

Some people think that all of Victoria's magic is in its gardens.

But for Ernie Crockford, 49 Knollwood Road, it enters into the home as well. The evidence can be found in his rumpus room, where a stage and seating for 40 persons has been provided especially for magic shows.

Since he first took an interest in hocus pocus at age 10, Ernie has been providing entertainment with handkerchiefs, tumblers and other tools of the trade in his spare time.

Now he's president of the local "ring" of the International Brotherhood of Magicians, and the representative for B.C. in that organization.

And in recognition of his magical abilities his picture and story were in the August edition of the monthly magazine put out by the brotherhood.

He and his wife attend most magic conventions in the Pacific Northwest and appear frequently on magic shows in Vancouver, Seattle and other cities.

When not mystifying audiences or preparing new tricks, Ernie runs his own wholesale drug and sundries firm on Ontario St.

Arthur Mayse

There are certain insects we regard as good neighbors, and late summer wouldn't be the same without the dry chirring of the male cricket to his silent mate. But we could get along nicely without the wasp colony that has established itself in the rock steps that drop from one lawn section to another.

I discovered their home by accident one evening while clipping around the bottom step. A wasp zipped past in purposeful flight, then a second and third. Each landed at the mouth of a crevice and trotted inside. Others followed, plainly hastening to get home before dark.

A true naturalist would have been content and even happy to entertain a colony of social insects in his back yard. But we use those steps a lot and at once I began to consider ways of evicting these touchy tenants.

They are peaceable enough now, but when autumn ripens, they will begin to get drunk on the fermenting juice of dropped fruit. When that happens, they are all too likely to whack out with their tail-stings at any child, dog or garden - grubber they blunder into.

So far, the inhabitants of the deep-hidden nest have absorbed a spray can of pesticide without apparent effect.

With the weather as it is, I daren't try to smoke them out, and we can't flood their fortress for fear of washing earth from behind the stones.

If there's a better way, we'd like to hear about it!

★

Weather permitting, Vancouver Island hunters will start grouse season on Saturday and deer season a week later on Sept. 9. And unless the drill has changed since last year, a number will find themselves afoul of the law on a charge that accounts for about 75 per cent of Fish and Wild Life convictions.

This is the carrying of loaded firearms in cars or other vehicles.

So much for that risky procedure, and here, courtesy of Remington Arms of Canada, are some further do's and dont's for hunters.

Unload guns when not in use.

Watch that muzzle! Carry your gun safely.

Be sure barrel is clear of obstructions, and that you have ammunition only of the proper size for gun you carry.

Be sure of target before you pull trigger. (And, I might add, don't indulge in the stupid and risky practice of "sound-shooting.")

Never climb a tree or fence, or jump a ditch with a loaded gun; never pull a gun toward you by the muzzle.

Store guns and ammunition separately, beyond reach of children.

Avoid alcoholic beverages before or during hunting.

A nod to Victoria Chamber of Commerce, whose civic affairs group this week managed to discuss the hippie syndrome without dragging the whip or the woodshed—that allegedly necessary adjunct of the Christian home—into their discussion.

While far from pro-hippie, these chamber reps displayed an attitude that I found refreshing after the outpourings of hate, intolerance and self-righteousness that have tainted the air of this city for the last week and more.

A word now to certain anonymous heroes who have inflicted their bigotry upon me by letter and telephone.

I do not believe that it would be a fine thing if the hippies or other young people to whom you choose to apply the designation should be whipped, dragged to delousing stations, beaten up by "a few of the boys in dark alleys," castrated, or subjected to the various other barbarisms that savage minds have devised.

I do believe in the law, which assumes innocence until guilt is proved, and does not distinguish between the hippie and the taxpayer.

Abandon the principle of equality under the law and you take your chances in a jungle of your own making.

It's Fun, Fellowship at Good Old Saanichton

It is one of the few remaining truly "country fairs" where fun and fellowship take the play away from commercialization . . .

. . . That is the 99-year-old North and South Saanich Agriculture Society's three-day Saanichton Fair to be opened Saturday by Lieut.-Gov. George Pearkes.

It will continue through Sunday and Monday with many features to hold the interest of visitors.

Record entries in quality as well as quantity will be on display. Many fine animals have been groomed for the show and static displays are being given finishing touches.

There will be horse shows daily, with cutting horse competitions Saturday and Sunday, the top winner receiving the Times Perpetual Trophy.

Displays and competitions in the 4-H section promise to be better than ever.

"Magic" also scored high in the parade horse class, coming second in a class of 10. He is seven years old.

In the second picture Donna and Gordie Doney talk it over with a friendly Hereford steer, "Buster," as they make plans to enter the Saanichton steer riding contest.

And in the third picture Jeanine Wright assures six-weeks-old Clydesdale, "Bell" that she'll be given a friendly reception when she and her mother go to the fair.

Corps Appoints First Full-Time Paid Executive

Rear-Admiral John B. Caldwell, 54, has been appointed full-time paid executive director (commandant) of the Victoria and Vancouver Island Division of the Corps of Commissionaires, it was announced today.

He succeeds Cmdr. A. C. Wurtele, 70, as commandant, but Cmdr. Wurtele will continue as chairman of the board of governors.

Rear-Admiral Caldwell was commodore superintendent at HMC Dockyard from 1955 to 1958. He retired in September, 1965, after 32 years' naval service.

The appointment of a full-time paid executive director conforms with a recommendation made by Edwin E. Pearlman, QC., Mr. Pearlman conducted an investigation into the affairs of the division at the request of the board of governors earlier this year.

Cmdr. Wurtele, formerly Reeve of Esquimalt, said today he was offered the position of executive director but declined because he thought it should go to a younger man.

"When you are 70, you think twice about taking on such heavy responsibilities. I believe we have an excellent choice in Rear-Admiral Caldwell."

Mr. Pearlman also recommended that the board of governors meet regularly at least once every three months at the call of the chairman.

He recommended the appointment of a paid executive director and an executive assistant, on the ground that "too much authority and responsibility has been delegated to the administrative staff."

Recommendations Made in Report

He also recommended:

1. That the general public be informed of the organization, aims and objects of the corps.

2. That better and more detailed records of the training, qualifications and experience of commissionaires be maintained.

3. That the wording of the regulation requiring commissionaires to report any instance of misconduct on the part of a fellow commissionaire be changed.

"In my opinion," Mr. Pearlman said, "the real meaning and intent of this regulation has been obscured or misrepresented. It's sole purpose is to ensure that the reputation, prestige and interests of the corps are maintained.

"It is not intended as a Gestapo device, nor have I been able to discover any abuse of the same. Commissionaires are expected to conduct themselves in accordance with the rules and regulations.

"Failure to do so should quite properly be brought to the attention of the corps."

Mr. Pearlman recommended that the regulation be amended to read "it is the duty of every member of the corps to report any instance of misconduct on the part of a member when committed in public or liable to injure the interests of the corps."

Reporting on criticism of the administration, he said:

"It is my conclusion that basically, and by and large, the affairs of the division have been administered efficiently and fairly and to the best advantage of the corps and its members."

He stated, however, that there may have been "some minor errors in judgment or some ineptitude displayed in the conduct of the business of the division."

No Evidence to Support Charges

But at no time did he find evidence to support "the broad and general allegations of injustice, of vindictiveness and of improper conduct."

Mr. Pearlman said he had received 60 written communications from commissionaires and had frank discussions with 107 of them. He also interviewed officials closely identified with the work of the corps.

He had received full cooperation from them and all records, files, memoranda, correspondence and other data had been made available to him.

Mr. Pearlman emphasized that Cmdr. Wurtele and the board of governors had served voluntarily and without remuneration.

He added:

"I see no objection, if the commissionaires so desire, to the formation of a grievance committee, composed of the executive director (Rear-Admiral Caldwell), a member of the board of governors and a commissionaire designated by the commissionaires at large."

Following is the text of Mr. Pearlman's summation of his findings:

"I consider it my duty to emphasize that at no time during the course of my investigation did I find positive or corroborative evidence, or for that matter, circumstantial evidence which could be interpreted as supporting the broad and general allegations of injustice, of vindictiveness and of improper conduct.

Smokers Cause Eight New Fires Near Kamloops

Forestry Officials Still Hope for Rain

Human carelessness, particularly by smokers, is increasing as a cause of forest fires this week, a forest service spokesman said today.

"There have been 22 new fires in the province in the past 24 hours and the majority of them were caused by human carelessness," he said.

Eight of the 12 new fires in Kamloops forest district, where an extension of the recreational and travel closure went into effect overnight, were blamed on smokers.

The extension prohibits all but highway travel in the area between the North Thompson River and the Fraser River, south of Quesnel.

277 FIRES

There are 277 fires burning in B.C. today and although only four are listed as serious now, "the hazards everywhere remain extreme," the spokesman said.

"The rainstorm expected for this weekend will have to produce at least half an inch of rain to be of any real benefit in the bone dry forests and before any thought can be given to lifting any of the current restrictions," he said.

SECOND FLARE-UP

Although not among the "serious" fires, a 6,000-acre blaze at Sproat Lake continued to give the 381 firefighters considerable trouble with a second "flare up" on the west flank during the night requiring airlifting of forestry crews to cut some fireguards by hand and contain the advance.

"Although the fire blew up again, it was prevented from getting very far and we're still listing the area total at 6,000 acres," said the spokesman.

46 AIRCRAFT

All told, 3,069 men, 144 tractors and 46 aircraft are battling flames in the B.C. woods.

The four "serious" fires all jumped their fireguards during the night requiring regrouping of crews to cut new ones today. They include a 30,000-acre blaze in the Shuswap Lakes area, a 2,800-acre fire near Lytton, a 2,000-acre fire at Bridge Island and a relatively dormant 6,000-acre blaze west of Quesnel which leaped to 8,900 acres overnight.

Navy Cadets

The Admiral Rayner Navy League Cadet Corps will resume training at the Rainbow Barracks, foot of Robert Street, Wednesday at 6:45 p.m.

Boys between the ages of 11 and 13 who wish to join the corps should be there at that time.

Early Morning Fire Leaves 14 Homeless

LEFT HOMELESS and without belongings was a family of 14 when their home on the Cole Bay Indian Reserve burned to the ground this morning.

'Everything Seemed To Explode:' Father

A family of 14, including 11 children, fled to safety this morning when fire demolished their house on the Cole Bay Indian Reserve.

Only casualty in the fire at 1065 McTavish Road in North Saanich was the family's pet Chihuahua. It perished when apparently trapped in the seven-room house.

Left homeless and without any belongings is the family of Norman Williams, 46, a boom-man with B.C. Forest Products.

A campaign for goods and money has already been launched by Don Williams, chief of the Cole Bay Reserve and band administrator.

Mr. Williams said his father-in-law, Tommy James, was the only person up when the fire broke out shortly after 7 a.m.

"Everything seemed to explode. We never got anything out. We just got out ourselves and that was it," said the father.

Asleep in the house at the time were Mr. Williams, his wife Violet and their children Elaine, Norman, Doris, Laverne, Alvin, Ramona, Marlene, Sylvester, Maureen, Barry and Morenda, ranging in age from 2 to 20.

The fire seemed to start in the kitchen, said Mr. Williams. Sidney Fire Chief Hugh Loney said the stove is thought to have touched it off.

Firemen with three trucks from the volunteer brigade battled the fire but only the chimney of the house was left standing.

TRUCKED IN WATER

While two of the trucks hauled water from the intersection of McTavish and West Saanich Road a mile away, the third truck provided the power for hoses at the scene.

Mr. Williams said he could not estimate the loss in dollars. The house was nine years old.

Chief Williams called on the public today to give any furniture, bedding, clothing or money they could to help the family start anew.

DONATIONS WELCOMED

Donations can be brought to his home at 9045 West Saanich Road. Where people cannot deliver contributions, they are asked to phone 656-2205. A man with a truck has volunteered it to help pick up donations, said the chief.

The band administrator said he would open a trust fund account for cash donations. They will go towards helping the family start on a new house.

Prospect Lake Water Vote Confirmed for September 16

Property owners in the Prospect Lake area will vote Saturday, Sept. 16 on a $299,455 scheme to extend municipal watermains to the district.

Polling place will be at Prospect Lake Elementary School.

The date and polling place, set tentatively by council Aug. 21, were confirmed at a special council meeting Tuesday night.

Of the total cost, Saanich will contribute $86,455. The measure needs 60 per cent approval among those who vote. Individual costs are to be given to property owners in advance of the voting date.

Prior to the vote, the Prospect Lake Community Association has called a special meeting for Sept. 12 in the Community Hall on Sparton Road. At the meeting to answer questions will be Saanich department heads and a member of the district water board.

Cultural Fund Group Named by Cabinet

William Murrary, speaker of the Legislature, has been named chairman of the new Centennial Cultural Fund Advisory Committee, in a cabinet order released today.

Deputy chairman of the committee is L. J. Wallace, who is deputy provincial secretary and the province's centennial celebrations and grants specialist.

Also on the six-member committee are the three women ministers without portfolio, Mrs. Isobel Dawson, Mrs. Pat Jordan and Mrs. Grace McCarthy.

Deputy Education Minister Dr. Neil G. Perry rounds it out.

The committee's job will be to make recommendations to Premier Bennett as finance minister, on "the manner in which the interest earned each year on the fund should be allocated."

The last legislative session set up the $5 million fund at Mr. Bennett's request and it has been invested in B.C. Hydro bonds, presumably at 5½ per cent interest.

This should provide between $250,000 and $275,000 income annually for distribution as grants promoting the province's cultural development.

But no ground rules on how the grants will be decided have yet been announced.

'COPTER MAKES 99TH STOP IN VICTORIA

The Centennial Helicopter will be making its 98th and 99th stop today and Friday in its scheduled 100 landings across Canada.

The 'copter will arrive in Central Saanich at the Twin Totem Ranch, Island View Road, at 8.

And on Friday morning at 10, Canada's birthday helicopter will be met by Mayor Hugh Stephen and B.C. Centennial officials when it lands at the Industrial Reserve.

After a four-hour stopover here, the helicopter and its crew will leave for its 100th landing at Long Beach on the West Coast of the Island.

One of the most modern of its kind, it started in May from Newfoundland with greetings and messages for mayors across Canada.

Bastion Grant Bid Rejected by Ottawa

Bastion Theatre has received word that its application for a $25,000 Canada Council Grant has been turned down.

Theatre officials, nevertheless, do not anticipate any change in either the public season or educational projects.

Campaign Success Means No More 'Separatism'

If Greater Victoria doesn't realize the $600,000 goal of the new combined Red Feather-Red Cross appeal this year it will mean "separatism" again, R. B. Hutchison, vice-chairman of the campaign committee warned Wednesday.

He urged full support of the united appeal principle as the 1967 campaign, which for the first time embraces the Red Cross as a partner, officially opened.

Some work has already been done.

Advance gifts have been received, the residential section is organized and collections have already started.

G. F. Auchinleck, campaign chairman, said that this year there are 24 agencies including the Red Cross and two others, the Alano Club, dedicated to aid for the recovering alcoholic, and the Handicapped Children's Clinic.

"The Red Cross will assist in the residential campaign," he said. "We are now getting about $1.50 per home and now that the Red Cross is included and there will be no Red Cross drive next year, we must collect $2 or $3 per home."

Of the $148,000 increase over last year's Red Feather goal, the Red Cross requires $85,000 for its many services which include blood transfusion service, homemaker service, water safety campaign, missing persons, home nursing services, loan cupboard, disaster fund, volunteer women's work, Red Cross Youth, Red Cross Corps, and services to veterans.

Some of the increase will go to administration plus the budgets of the other two new agencies.

The Red Cross has already made its annual appeal this year but no campaign will be conducted in 1968. Funds collected in March are for the group's 1967 expenses and any donations this year will assist the service next year.

Anyone who has already given to Red Cross may pledge part of the Red Feather-Red Cross amount to be given to the Red Cross at any time the donor specifies in 1968, either in a lump sum or spread over the year.

Officials hope that now the Red Cross has combined with the Red Feather organization that other groups will follow suit next year.

"It's new, it's up to you," said committee member Mrs. Phoebe Noble, "if you want the truly united appeal."

Ask The Times

Q. Does a glass of skim milk made from powder have the same number of calories as a glass of unreconstituted skim milk? M.C.

A. Probably, says a health board spokesman, but it depends on the degree of extraction of butterfat. Some skim milk is 2 per cent milk, some 3. The degree of extraction also varies in powdered milk. This would be stated on the package.

Q. By what name was Vancouver Island known before it got its present name? C.M.S.

A. It was known as Quadra Island and also Vancouver and Quadra's Island.

Q. How should I address a letter to a sailor stationed in San Diego? S.A.

A. Use his name, rank and service number and address the letter to Fleet Mail Office, United States Navy, San Diego.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Great Gadgets Speed Penny's Sewing Spree

By PENNY SAVER

Getting the children's clothes ready for school is almost more difficult than getting the children themselves prepared. Although all of them want bright new clothes to wear, none of the younger set are one bit interested in going shopping. The advantages of sewing children's clothes at home are numerous—not only can you avoid tugging reluctant youngsters all over town, but you've got them cornered there in your own home for fittings

It's no wonder that Penny's on a sewing spree.

One item I found that's a dandy sewing aid is a gadget for attaching snaps and eyelets. This tool is simple as can be to use . . . you just place the barrel of the eyelet on the pin of the gadget and clamp it where you wish on the material. This great time-saver comes complete with hundreds of snaps and eyelets—especially great for youngsters' jeans. Simple and fool-proof, it's certain to speed up any pre-school sewing project. It is priced at $1.49.

If you're busy repairing any old clothes, you'll likely find that pockets which were well-stuffed with treasure all last year, now have gigantic holes in them. A great way to save energy and time at this repair job is to buy the iron-on pockets I found in one store. These can be put into pants or jackets in only seconds—and no sewing necessary! You just iron them on. They are sanforized, and will not be affected by either washing or dry cleaning. Two pockets are priced at 39 cents.

A great number of fabrics you can buy today are in gorgeous colors that are just about impossible to match with threads. Sewing these materials can be a lot easier if you use a marvellous invention I saw in one store—invisible thread. There is a dark thread for all dark colors, and a light thread for pale shades—designed to blend with any pattern or color. A 30-foot spoo' of light or dark thread is priced at 33 cents.

Please give me a call at 382-3131 if you'd like to know where I found these items to simplify sewing.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Skin Imperfections Can Be Avoided or Remedied

Lowman

Today let's think of some of the skin blemishes which harass women. As every woman knows, a beautiful complexion is a great asset. The glow of a lovely skin can make up for defects in facial contour and features. So many of the little imperfections which give trouble can be avoided or remedied.

BLACKHEADS

Blackheads and pimples are usual problems of the teen-ager. However, blackheads bother some women. This is generally due to an extremely oily skin. If you have this type of outer covering, be sure to leave creams off and wash your face several times a day with soap and water. An astringent is also helpful in minimizing the oil on the surface.

ACNE SCARS

Many women must struggle with the aftermath of teen-age skin problems, such as acne scars. Dermabrasion offers help. If this technique cannot entirely banish the scars, it can make them much less noticeable. You should see a dermatologist about this.

MOLES

If you have a few moles on your face, even those which are light in color, you may wish to have them removed. This also can be done easily and painlessly by a skin specialist.

FRECKLES

Freckles look worse to those who have them than they do to others, yet many women dislike having them. If you are the freckling type, you will just have to stay out of the bright sunshine. If you do not want to do that, and most of you don't, then use one of the lotions or creams which screen out some of the sun's most potent rays. Also take your outdoors either early in the morning or late in the afternoon. Bleaching creams may help some and you can always hide these little brown devils with makeup.

ENLARGED CAPILLARIES ON THE FACE

These can be disfiguring. However, there is help here, too. Diet has long been thought to play a part, and a natural fragility of these little blood vessels and a very thin skin may also be suspect.

The main foods to be ruled out are spicy, highly seasoned foods, foods which are very hot in temperature, alcohol, tea and coffee.

A skin specialist can dry these up with an electric needle. The improvement will be temoorary but this procedure is well worthwhile when done periodically. It helps a lot.

If you have this problem give thanks for modern makeup. You can cover these so that they are not noticeable unless someone looks at your face through a microscope.

If you would like my free leaflet "Clear the Way for Beauty" which is about skin blemishes, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for it. Address to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Sharon McDougall Becomes Bride In St. John's Anglican Church

Sharon Ann McDougall carried a Bible covered in point d'Alencon lace which held yellow rosebuds attached to white streamers when she became the bride of David Thomas Reed in St. John's Anglican Church.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown styled on empire lines with a bodice of point d'Alencon, fashioned with a portrait neckline and sleeves ending in lily points. A panel swept back from two tiny bridal bows at the shoulder, accenting the chiffon skirt. A tiny floral rosette held her tiered veil of silk illusion.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin McDougall, 1243 Judge Place, and the groom is the son of Mrs. Ruth Reed, Winnipeg, and the late Mr. H. R. Reed.

The church was decorated with baskets of white, pink and yellow gladioli and white ribbon pew markers. Canon Grahame Baker officiated at the wedding ceremony and nuptial mass.

Organist was Peter Bishop and soloist Ron Garnham sang "O Perfect Love" during the signing of the register.

The bride's attendants wore matching dresses of seagreen styled on empire lines, fashioned with scoop necklines and pale yellow ribbon and bow accents at the waistline. Self-fabric petals and yellow tulle en tone formed their headpieces. Only jewelry accents were culture pearl necklaces, gifts of the bride. They carried bouquets of yellow glamelias with green tulle and white streamers.

Little flower girl Kris Eager was gowned in a similar style and carried a basket of summer flowers.

Mrs. C. McGregor was matron of honor for her sister, Mrs. J. Fox was bridesmatron and Miss Beverly Gerrard, bridesmaid.

Best man was Allan Reed, brother of the groom. Ushering the guests were Lloyd McFadden and Lloyd Reed, another brother of the groom.

Walter Dedick proposed the toast to the bride at the reception following at the Club Tango. The head table was decorated with baskets of yellow flowers and baskets of white gladioli and mauve cosmos decorated the guests' tables.

A two-piece suit of mauve wool, purse and hat of the same fabric, and white accessories was the choice of the bride for travelling. She wore a mauve orchid corsage.

After the honeymoon on Vancouver Island, the couple will make their home in New Westminster where the groom will resume studies at Simon Fraser University in Burnaby.

To Be Married

The forthcoming marriage is announced of Leslie Dae, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Reid Gowan, 2072 Kendal Avenue, to Mr. Thomas D'Arcy McGee Jr., eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas D'Arcy McGee, 2875 Sea View Road. DEAR ABBY . . .

96 Pounds Equals Ton of Trouble

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Through a club my husband and I belong to I recently met a handsome, young, unattached man I'll call Randy.

First, let me tell you that I'm 5 feet 1 inch, weigh 96 pounds, am bow-legged and have no figure to speak of. I am not witty or cute, or anything special. Take my word for it, I'm not being modest.

Anyway, this Randy person always greets me with outstretched arms, a big grin and a compliment. He has told me I'm sweet, adorable, desirable, and 96 pounds of woman! I know he's feeding me a line, but after being married for nine years to a man who has never given me a compliment, it's delicious.

When Randy could have any woman at the club—single or married—what in the world does he want with me?

YOUNG AGAIN

DEAR YOUNG: He may want 96 pounds of (married) woman but I doubt that he wants the ton of trouble that would come with the deal in this case.

DEAR ABBY: Will you settle an argument for us? Do you think women dress to please men or to please other women?

TWO WOMEN

DEAR WOMEN: Which women? Some women dress to please men in general. Other women dress to please their boyfriends or husbands, specifically. Still others dress in the latest fashions because they want to be "in." (They please only the merchants.)

The wisest woman of all knows what looks best on HER and she wears it.

DEAR ABBY: I am a widow, living on a limited income. A neighbor of mine (and her children) are always asking me to buy tickets, chances, greeting cards, etc.

I simply can't afford to buy things I neither need nor want just to please her, but I am running out of excuses. The last time I refused, she told me I was "unneighborly."

Abby, I feel it is unneighborly of her to keep pestering me and putting me on the spot.

I don't enjoy refusing to buy. It's necessary. What is your opinion?

CAPTIVE CUSTOMER

DEAR CAPTIVE: When you are asked to buy something you don't need and can't afford, simply say you can't afford it. If you offer "excuses" instead of reasons, you'll continue to be pestered.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "SAD SACK IN SAGINAW": No one said it better than Mark Twain. "Grief can take care of itself, but to get the full value of joy, you must have someone to share it with."

Problems? Write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif., 90069. For a personal reply, enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

September bride-elect Miss Mary McVie was recently honored at a shower by her grandmother, Mrs. R. McVie Sr., in her Joseph Street home.

A gardenia en corsage was presented to the honor guest and red roses en corsage were presented to Mrs. R. McVie Jr., the bride-elect's mother, and Mrs. G. Bridger, mother of the groom-elect. Gifts were in a large model wedding cake, decorated in pink and white and topped with a miniature bride and groom which had topped the 40th anniversary cake of the bride-elect's grandparents.

Mrs. G. Bridger and Mrs. McVie Jr. presided at the refreshment table which was decorated with a miniature fountain and water lilies. Assisting the hostess were the Misses Margaret and Susan McVie, the bride-elect's sisters and chosen attendants.

Guests invited from out-of-town included Mrs. G. Bridger, Vancouver; Mrs. L. F. Ross, Cowichan; Mrs. A. Smith and Miss Leslie Anne Smith of Qualicum Beach; Mrs. R. McVie Jr., Port Alberni.

Other guests included Mrs. James A. McVie, Mrs. J. Cox, Mrs. E. Rose, Mrs. E. Hills, Mrs. J. Tofin, Mrs. W. Hawkins, Mrs C. Rhode, Mrs. R. Messum, Mrs. M. Townson, Mrs. J. Horn, the Misses Dolores Smith, Blanche Lapointe, Jill Paver, Susan Messum and Wendy Rowland.

OFF TO PRINCE GEORGE

Following a honeymoon in Banff and Calgary, newlyweds Mr. and Mrs. Dale Raymond Woodburn will be making their home in Prince George.

First United Church was decorated with arrangements of pink and white roses for the ceremony which united the former Frances Doreen Ivings, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Ivings, 2319 Dalhousie Street, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. R. Woodburn of Vancouver. Rev. R. J. D. Morris conducted the service. Mr. Ivings gave his daughter in marriage.

The basque bodice of the bride's floor-length gown featured tiny cap sleeves and a sweetheart neckline accented with re-embroidered lace. The full skirt of the gown swept back en train and was highlighted with a dainty bow at the waist. Her tiered veil misted from a matching headpiece. She carried white gladioli centred with pink rosebuds.

Mrs. Crysta Davidson and Mrs. Helen Chamberlain attended their sister. Junior bridesmaid was Miss Sharon Chamberlain, the bride's niece. They were gowned alike in mauve peau d'elegance, and their headpieces were self-fabric flowers. They carried pink gladioli in their bouquets.

Best man for his brother was Daryl Woodburn. Daryl and Clyde Woodburn, uncles of the groom, ushered the guests.

A three-tier wedding cake, flanked with floral arrangements in pink, centred the head table at the reception in Holyrood House. Charles Guiguet proposed a toast to the bride.

A double-knit suit in black and beige, with a beige hat, was the choice of the bride for travelling. She completed the ensemble with black accessories and white roses en corsage.

BRIDGE LESSON

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

One of the hardest things for a bridge player to learn is that when both opponents bid and his partner is quiet, he had best keep quiet also unless he has a lot of distributional factors.

South had a nice comfortable opening bid. His 15 high-card points included three aces and he had two nice four-card suits. He opened one diamond and waited happily for the bidding to develop.

It developed in a way that should have warned him to stay out of the bidding from then on. West overcalled with one heart and all North could do was to pass. East managed to try one no-trump. South should have seen that the hand did not belong to him and given up any idea of competing but he wasn't going to do anything like that. He had a sound opening bid with one or two jacks above the minimum and he had a second four card suit to show. He bid two clubs.

Lightning didn't strike immediately — North had too much club support — but when it did hit it burned the barn down.

West made a slightly optimistic bid of three hearts and North went to four clubs. For all North knew his side might have a cinch for five or six clubs and East and West might have just as easy a game in hearts. If you don't think so, just trade South's jack of hearts for East's ten of diamonds. In that case only a spade lead or spade shift would beat five clubs and nothing will beat four hearts.

South's actual hand is such that a diamond opening will hold West to nine tricks at hearts. As for the four club contract, West decided to double and the defence picked up five tricks to score 500 points.

Andy Stephen Looks at TV

Hollywood production houses have set a new record in the amount of money being laid out for television series in the new season. While there will be fewer new series, the companies will have spent $230 million in their production.

Stephen

One reason, always present, is the high cost of production. Then there are the two-hour films for television being made for NBC-TV by the Universal Television studios. They cost anywhere from $500,000 to $1 million to produce.

Also, CBS-TV's new 90-minute entry, Cimmaron Strip, will be the most expensive series to carry the made-in-Hollywood label. Figures in excess of $7 million are being touted as the bankroll for the western, the second such 90-minuter on telivision. The costs are far above the other one, The Virginian.

The reason there will be fewer series on the tube next season is because the networks are leaning more heavily on the use of old and recently-made motion pictures in the prime-time hours.

The films have proven to be strong attention getters and sure sales to prospective sponsors who want to cash in on the presence of a built-in audience. In the new season there will be a minimum of 12 hours of prime-time devoted to movies.

Each of the three networks will devote two nights a week to movies—ABC on Wednesday and Sunday, NBC on Tuesday and Saturday, CBS on Thursday and Friday. There will be no movies on Monday.

A big point not to be missed is that movies will not be playing against movies. The networks want the big ratings without danger of being bounced off by a stronger movie elsewhere.

TID BIT: Patrick Watson, co-host of This Hour Has Seven Days when the program was watched avidly from coast to coast and raised the hackles of those in high places to the degree it was scuttled, has been hired as a regular in the still-to-be-named public affairs program on CBC-TV Sundays at 10 p.m. in the new season.

Prominent Socialite Battered to Death

WEST CHESTER, Pa. (AP) —Police have launched an investigation into what they called the "horrible homicide" beating of a 74-year-old socially-prominent woman.

Mrs. Katherine Thompson Wood was found beaten Wednesday in her secluded home at nearby Pennsbury Township. She was the sister of James Thompson, the Thailand silk magnate who disappeared last March in Malaysia.

Police said Mrs. Wood was hit on the head with a blunt instrument.

Two big watchdogs were standing by. An officer said one of the dogs may have been struck by the same weapon that killed Mrs. Wood, but otherwise there was no indication of why they did not prevent the crime.

A domestic reporting for work Wednesday found the body.

HAVE NO MOTIVE

Investigators said they have not found the weapon or a motive for the killing.

"I won't say there are no suspects," said a detective.

Known as a perfect cocktail hostess, Mrs. Wood was listed in the Philadelphia Social Register.

She was married to the late Osburn Cutler Wood, who was the son of Gen. Leonard Wood. Gen. Wood sought the republican nomination for President in 1920 and was colonel of the Rough Riders in the Spanish-American War.

Mrs. Wood and her husband were divorced in 1925.

Mrs. Wood's brother turned a $700 investment into a $1,000,000 silk fortune. He disappeared one day last March on a walk through the Cameron Highlands in Malaysia, where he was visiting friends.

Police said he may have been either murdered, attacked by tigers or kidnapped.

To Hippies With Love From Russia

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet government newspaper Izvestia took a look at U.S. hippies Wednesday — and had kind words for them.

Izvestia portrayed hippies as rebels against a machine-like and emotionless American way of life.

But while the government newspaper took a sympathetic view of the hippie movement it did not endorse something of the kind for the Soviet Union.

The rebellion of the hippies was treated as if it could happen only in America.

S. Kondrashov, Izvestia correspondent in New York, said hippies told him American society was trying to turn them into machines.

HIPPIES WELL-HEELED

The Soviet author contended that hippies are mostly the children of middle-class or well-to-do families.

"They grew up among cars, television sets, shares of stock, cheque books," he said.

But despite having enjoyed all the advantages of the affluent American way of life they were not happy, he told the Soviet public.

The Izvestia article defined the hippie philosophy as basically negative.

"They know what to run away from but not in which direction to run," it said.

The Soviet correspondent maintained that hippies are partly a side effect of the Vietnamese war, whose "machine cruelty and limitless cynicisms drove them to escape."

Soviet Writers On Trial

MOSCOW (AP) —One of three young Soviet writers reported on trial for organizing a free speech demonstration told a court closed to Western correspondents today that he was responsible for planning the demonstration, a Russian source said.

The source alleged that Vladimir Bukovsky, 25, said two 21-year-old poets on trial with him took part in the demonstration. They were identified as Yevgeny Kushchev and Vadim Delone.

In the demonstration in Moscow last January, 50 young Russians protested laws against anti-Soviet agitation and propaganda and the closing of Phoenix 66, a liberal magazine.

The trial began Wednesday. Official Soviet sources have refused to discuss the case and police guarded the courtroom door.

A Communist source said the writers are being tried on one or more of the following charges—organizing an illegal demonstration, publishing illegal literature and creating an illegal organization.

If convicted, they could be sentenced to prison terms of up to three years under a Soviet law prohibiting unauthorized public demonstrations.

One of the men arrested after the January demonstration was sentenced in February to three years at hard labor.

Motel Owner Fined

MONTREAL (CP) — Andre Villeneuve, owner of a Montreal motel, was fined $300 Wednesday for committing an infraction of a provincial law governing the renting of accommodations to Expo 67 visitors. Villeneuve was found guilty of not having posted rental rates in the rooms which he offered.

Viet Cong Carry Off Draftees

SAIGON (AP)—Viet Cong guerrillas dotted South Vietnam with pre-election assaults and terror attacks today, shelling a fourth provincial capital in as many days and kidnapping 39 draft-age men in another village.

Officials warned that worse violence was expected. Americans off duty were warned to stay in their billets.

The U.S. command announced the loss of two more planes over North Vietnam, maintaining a recent loss rate of more than one plane a day.

The weekly casualty report reflected the current lull in ground fighting, with 125 Americans killed last week and 1,078 wounded. Both totals were up slightly from the previous week but were below the average of recent months.

Viet Cong and North Vietnamese losses were 1,350, also below average, while the South Vietnamese had 101 killed and 367 wounded, well below the American figures and reflecting the increased role of U.S. troops in Vietnam.

GUERRILLAS LYING LOW

The latest terror attacks were scattered through the Mekong Delta, the Saigon area and the central provinces. Guerrillas were generally lying low in the far north after spectacular attacks Tuesday in which two dozen hit-and-run strikes were made and 997 prisoners were freed from the jail at Quang Ngai.

Two U.S. military advisers and a U.S. civilian employee were killed south of Quang Ngai when guerrillas caught two platoons of militiamen in a crossfire as they were trying to recapture some of the freed prisoners.

The fourth provincial capital hit this week was Phan Thiet, on the coast about 95 miles east of Saigon. Mortar shells began to fall at 1:30 a.m., and when the 15-round barrage ended a small child was dead and 11 civilians were wounded.

About the same time a band of guerrillas entered the village of Cua Doi, 288 miles north of Saigon, and carried off 39 young men at gunpoint. The normal Communist tactic is to indoctrinate such captives and put them in Viet Cong units.

In Saigon, a terrorist burst into the home of a minor city employee and opened up with a .45-calibre pistol, wounding a policeman and a young secretary. The terrorist escaped.

The guerrillas blew up a small bridge near Can Tho and blasted a large hole in a main road below Saigon in their continuing campaign to disrupt the main north-south highway through the Mekong Delta.

No Mini-Budget

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government is currently making no plans for a fall mini-budget, a finance department official said today. The implication is that Finance Minister Sharp believes that current taxes are appropriate to the economic situation for the foreseeable future, and a general tax increase has been ruled out.

LITTLE HOPE OF ACTION SEEN

UN Vietnam Paralysis Expected to Continue

By ROBERT H. ESTABROOK
The Washington Post

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y.—Few authorities here see any practical possibility of constructive security council action to end the Vietnam war at this time.

This reaction follows reiteration of the proposal by Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield (Mont.), this time with bipartisan support, that the United States place the issue before the council or possibly the general assembly.

In fact the issue is already on the security council agenda, having been introduced by the U.S. in February, 1966. But active consideration was dropped following severe Soviet criticism when it became apparent that all that would ensue would be further bitter debate.

Secretary-General U. Thant is known to feel that renewed reference of the issue to the UN would not be helpful now and would be likely to lead only to more recriminations and frustration.

SEE NO CHANGE

Two ambassadors of friendly countries represented on the 15-member security council also said privately today they could see no change in the situation that would warrant new hope for council action.

Thant himself was careful not to foreclose the possibility in a statement through his spokesman.

"The secretary-general's views regarding the effective involvement of the security council in the Vietnam war are well known," the statement noted. "Having said that, it is entirely up to the council to act or not to act on this matter."

But Thant also asserted at a press conference on May 11 he could see no way in which the UN could be "effectively involved" in settling the Vietnam conflict. The spokesman said today Thant's views remain the same.

A major reason why no positive result could be expected now is that two permanent members, the Soviet Union and France, have opposed further security council consideration.

Moreover, Communist China does not recognize the competence of the UN to deal with the Vietnam war, and North Vietnam has rebuffed every recent effort at peace talks made through the UN.

TECHNICALLY POSSIBLE

Technically the issue could be taken up if American ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg merely requested a security council meeting in a letter to the council president—Ambassador Roger Seydoux of France for August and Ambassador Goplaswami Parthasarathi of India for September.

But when the U.S. introduced the item in 1966, it was clear that the Soviet Union would veto any resolution.

Indeed, the U.S. had some difficulty in getting Vietnam on the agenda. There was no enthusiasm among other delegates and Jordan, which was then a non-permanent council member, tardily suppled the necessary ninth vote. Coincidentally, Jordan was simultaneously negotiating an arms agreement in Washington.

Although there are some slight indications that the Soviet Union now may be more interested in promoting a settlement in Vietnam, diplomats consulted today believe that Moscow would find renewed security council consideration of the issue embarrassing.

If there is a chance of Soviet help in facilitating peace talks, these sources say, it lies in quiet diplomacy rather than public discussions in which the Russians might have to take a hard position, for propaganda reasons.

LIMITATIONS

"The security council is the last place you would think of if you expect a settlement," one ambassador member commented. "Those who advocate this approach don't know the limitations of the U.N.

Another ambassador said that while renewed reference to the security council might be useful in American domestic politics, it would be unlikely to advance a practical solution.

Misgivings about the American course in Vietnam are widespread here, and they might be voiced even more acrimoniously in the general assembly than in the security council.

This does not mean that the UN would not have a role in bringing about peace negotiations. Goldberg has consistently held out the hope that the UN could be usefully involved at the appropriate time.

But if that time comes the UN's part is more likely to be in arranging private negotiations and furnishing a meeting place than in merely encouraging new public debate.

Toronto Hippies Arrested

TORONTO (CP)—Police arrested 14 hippies today, including a youth who occupied Mayor William Dennison's chair in council Wednesday.

The youths, charged with trespassing, were removed from a house being renovated. It was the same house in which police arrested 14 hippies Tuesday.

Norman Frederick Petdorf, 17, was among the hippies who arrived at city council Wednesday and occupied the seats of the mayor and controllers before the city fathers arrived.

Three hours earlier, David DePoe, 23, a hippie spokesman and a worker for the Company of Young Canadians, had been refused permission by the mayor to speak because "he didn't prepare a written brief."

After some confusion, the hippies agreed to an appeal by Alderman David Rotenberg to drop their "chair-in" and sat on the floor at the rear of the room.

Of those arrested today, 12 boys and two girls were charged with trespassing. William Picton, 16, was charged with illegal possession of narcotics and another youth, Martin Grosweiner, 16, with possession of a spring knife.

Paris Loan To 'Liberate' Quebec?

PARIS (Reuters) — French government and banking officials said Wednesday there is nothing yet to back up press reports that France has decided to float a major loan by public subscription for Quebec "to liberate it from dependence on the New York money market."

"Various projects are under consideration but nothing has been decided yet," said a spokesman for France's leading Banque Nationale de Paris.

President de Gaulle promised a "considerable increase" in French aid to Quebec to help French-speaking Canadians maintain and develop their personality.

One major stumbling block in the way of a French loan to Quebec is the interest rate.

The difference in the interest rate between France and New York is one per cent — seven per cent on the French and European markets and six per cent in the United States.

And Quebec was reported not prepared to pay for dearer money in France when large loans are available in the U.S. at cheaper rates.

. . . CORPS

"As a result of my rather lengthy and detailed examination into the affairs of this division, I feel compelled to state that the evidence overwhelmingly indicated that the board of governors of this division, the commandant and officers and staff are performing and fulfilling a much needed and most valuable service to the corps, to the commissionaires, to the community and to the country.

"To cast a reflection upon or to condemn the entire board of governors, the commandant and the officers of this division, in the circumstances which here obtain, is not only most regrettable but is a disservice to the community and to the commissionaires."

Born at Amherst, N.S., Rear-Admiral Caldwell joined the engineering branch of the RCN as a cadet in 1933 and took his early training overseas with the British Royal Navy.

In 1941 he became engineer of one of the Canadian Tribal class destroyers, HMCS Athabaskan, and was mentioned in dispatches for his part in bringing the ship safely back to port after it was damaged by a bomb in the Bay of Biscay.

After the war, with the RCN, he became a specialist in the engineering side of naval aviation. He was appointed deputy chief of logistics, engineering and development at Ottawa in 1964.

The board of governors of the corps includes the following:

Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes, Brig. J. S. Adam, Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow, Capt. J. M. Grant, Lt.-Cmdr. H. L. Henderson, Rear-Admiral J. C. Hibbard, Major J. C. Holmes, Lt. O. Matson, Major Stanley Okell, Air Vice-Marshal V. H. Patriarche, former RCMP commissioner C. E. Rivett-Carnac, J. A. Wallace, general manager of Yarrows Ltd., Group Capt. Cecil Wyatt and deputy provincial secretary L. J. Wallace.

Magistrate Steps Down In Dispute

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Magistrate Donald B. Menzies Tuesday withdrew from hearing the case against five strikers charged following egg and rock-throwing disturbances at the strikebound Emco Ltd. plant in here last week.

The magistrate had come under criticism for comments in court that anyone convicted of violence at the strife-torn plant would "not be dealt with leniently."

"I think in the interest of justice some other person should sit on the court," he said after defence lawyer Aaron Brown referred to the magistrate's comments and his position on the London police commission.

"I don't agree in any way that I am biased in this case," the magistrate said. "But if there is a feeling that I may be, I am quite willing to stand aside."

The five strikers were remanded until Thursday to appear beofre another magistrate on charges of wilful damage, obstructing and assaulting policemen.

Defence counsel said since Magistrate Menzies sits on the police commission and handles hiring, firing, supervision and discipline of policemen, the magistrate would be placing himself in the position of "adjudging your own cause."

City Symphony To Perform On Labor Day

A free concert will be given by Victoria Symphony Orchestra on the grounds of the Legislative Buildings on Labor Day, commencing at 3 p.m.

The pop program featuring works by Mozart, Tschaikowsky and Strauss, will be conducted by Laszlo Gati.

In the event of rain the city has made Memorial Arena available for the concert.

The event has been sponsored by a grant from the B.C. Centennial Committee and assistance from Victoria Musicians' Association Trust Fund and the Greater Victoria Centennial Society.

'Must Answer Call Of Quebec'—France

PARIS (Reuters) — President de Gaulle believes the aspirations of French-speaking Canadians for greater autonomy are "a French national question," Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville said here today.

"France cannot remain indifferent to this French community and we must answer its call," he said.

The minister was reporting to the National Assembly's foreign affairs commission on the president's controversial trip to Quebec last month which ended in a diplomatic clash between France and Canada.

Parliamentary sources said the minister told the commission that the "rapturous" welcome received in Quebec proved to de Gaulle that French Canada's problem is a French national question which imposes certain duties on France.

Couve de Murville said the French government has decided to improve the organization and development of its co-operation with Quebec in the cultural, economic and financial fields.

"It is not a question of eliminating the United States, but of making an effort to diversify the Quebec economy."

The details of increased French aid to Quebec, decided in principle at a cabinet meeting last week, still are being studied by the relevant ministries, he added.

Shipowners Seek Talks

MONTREAL (CP)—Representatives of 32 shipping companies whose vessels are tied-up by the two-week strike of Great Lakes sailors hope to meet next week with Labor Minister Nicholson.

John McGiffin, president of the Canadian Lake Carriers Association, said today the companies had requested a meeting in Ottawa with the labor minister "so we might have a sane and sensible talk about the issues."

Beatles Now Dig 'Meditation Thing' Not Pot, Pills, LSD

By JOHN MEEHAN

LONDON (UPI) — The Beatles said today they were dropping out of the raucous pop culture they helped create to tune in on soothing "transcendental meditation."

No pot, pills or LSD. Just mysticism with a Mersey beat.

The Liverpudlian foursome said they would make a two-month pilgrimage through India to study the Hindu influence brought to their attention through the teachings of a self-styled Indian holy man in Wales, Maharishi Mahesh Yogi.

The Beatles were sitting at his sandaled feet Sunday when their manager, Brian Epstein, died in London.

Selling Idea

"We want to sell this idea of transcendental meditiation to everyone," said the intellectual Beatle, John Lennon, after an announcement no personal manager would take Epstein's place.

"Meditation strengthens understanding and makes people relax. We want to try to set up an academy in London and use all the power we have to get it moving," he said.

Lennon gave no date for the Indian pilgrimage to "learn the meditation thing properly.

"This is how we plan to use our power now," Lennon said in an interview in the music magazine Disc published today. "They've always called us leaders of youth, and we believe this is a good way to give a lead."

Epstein's Successor

After a "couple of months" in India the four planned to return to London and establish an academy so persons worried about youth and drugs "will come and dig it (the meditation) too," Lennon said.

Meanwhile, Epstein's younger brother Clive today assumed the late 32-year-old entrepreneur's post as Chairman of Nems, the extensive entertainment empire weaved by Brian as the Beatles rocketed to fortune and fame.

"There is no question of a replacement for Mr. Brian Epstein as personal manager of the Beatles," a Nems announcement said. "However, Nems will continue to give them every possible assistance in the conduct of their affairs."

Drug Price Cuts In Effect Friday

Larger retail drug outlets are expected to cut prescription drug prices Friday, first day of freedom from a federal 12 per cent tax.

But independent operators may wait until existing stocks expire before cutting back their retail prices.

This was the gist of local reaction to suggested price reductions immediately, urged today by John Turnbull, director of the Canadian Pharmaceutical Association in Toronto.

A Victoria chain druggist pointed out that the federal government will pay druggists no rebate for taxes paid for stocks on hand.

MIXED REACTION

"Some will drop their prices, but they will also drop a bundle," he commented.

In his own store in the past few days, as clerks prepared for the elimination of tax, he has noticed $500 worth of mark-downs on only a few items.

An independent druggist said, "I guess they will be down immediately," while another said he would make an immediate reduction.

One independent said the majority of druggists probably would "play by ear" the amount of price reduction, not knowing what new factory lists will be.

Turnbull asked druggists to cut prices without waiting for stocks to run out.

One druggist said the 12 per cent tax is applied at the manufacturer's cost level. This amounts to between 6 and 8 per cent on full retail prices, he said.

A $3.95 prescription would go down about 7 per cent, or 27 cents, it was thought.

D. E. Burgess, president of Merck, Sharp and Dohme, an American-owned drug supply company in Montreal, said his firm has ended list prices of drugs.

DRUGGISTS SET PRICES

He said the discontinuation of list-price suggestions "means that the pharmacist will determine the selling price without the guidance of the manufacturer."

Withdrawal of the federal tax carries a clause prohibiting manufacturers from raising prices for three months.

A statement from the B.C. Pharmaceutical Association welcomed the elimination of the 12 per cent tax, which it called a "tax on illness."

The association said the "average" percentage reduction on all drugs — prescription, over-the-counter and patent medicine — will be 8¾ per cent at retail level. Variations will be between 4 and 10.7 per cent.

A further reduction of 5 per cent on non-prescription drugs is hoped for by the association, which has appealed for B.C. sales tax elimination next year.

Receivership Bid Rejected By Judge

A bid to put a wholly-owned subsidiary of Atlas Chain Co. Ltd. into receivership has failed in B.C. Supreme Court Chambers.

Judge M. L. Tyrwhitt-Drake dismissed the application with costs to the company in a judgment delivered Wednesday.

The application was made on behalf of former Atlas president Douglas J. Lemery, who sought receivership for Globe Industries Ltd., the Atlas subsidiary holding patent rights on a power saw chain made here by Atlas under exclusive licence.

His sumbission was based on an alleged default in payment of debenture interest of $500 due June 1, which he argued made the whole sum due, a matter of $567,000.

CHEQUE RETURNED

Payment had been made by cheque mailed June 2, received June 6, but returned by the plaintiff.

Judge Drake, in his written judgment said:

"It seems to me that the bare facts which are relevant to the simple issue here are such as to suggest strongly that while the plaintiff is in a position to enforce the delivery of the flesh to which the law gives him the right, justice requires that he draw no blood in the process.

"The appointment of a receiver as appears from various affidavits filed on behalf of the defendant, would have a serious, if not crippling effect upon the whole undertaking of the defendant."

J. D. Fortin appeared for the plaintiff and R. B. Hutchison for the defendant.

Reds Stop U.S. in Arctic

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Accusing the Soviet Union of obstructionism, the United States announced today cancellation of an attempt by two American icebreakers to circumnavigate the Arctic Ocean.

The state department accused the Russians of frustrating "a useful scientific endeavor and thus to deprive the international community of research data of considerable significance" by objecting to passage of the vessels through a route south of the Soviet island of Novaya Zemlya.

It was on Novaya Zemlya that the Soviets tested their monster nuclear weapons in the atmosphere.

State department spokesman Carl Bartch said the dispute with the Russians arose when the U.S. Coast Guard icebreakers East Wind and Edisto ran into heavy ice in the Kara Sea.

On Monday it was disclosed the Coast Guard abandoned the attempt to accomplish the unprecedented feat—at a point near completion of the 8,000-mile journey which began about Aug. 8.

It was scheduled to end at the Lancaster Sound exit into Baffin Bay in northern Canada.

OPERA STAR ASKS MILLIONS

NEW YORK (AP)—Metropolitan Opera star Robert Merrill and his wife, Marion, have filed a $2,775,000 suit for damages in connection with an automobile accident early this month. In papers filed in state Supreme Court Wednesday, Merrill said a truck owned by the AFT Contracting Co. struck his car while it was stopped. Both Merrill and his wife suffered injuries.

Language Problems Trouble Malaysia

KUALA LUMPUR (Reuters)—Malaysians today celebrated the 10th anniversary of their independence and prepared for a major test of it when Malay becomes the country's sole official language Friday.

Observers feared that instead of Malay serving as a unifying force the language will sharpen differences between the Malays—who form 50 per cent of the population—and the country's large Indian and Chinese minority groups.

The 1957 constitution stipulated that by the end of 10 years, English, which stood alongside Malay as an official language, should be dropped.

Some Malays felt the legislation did not go far enough, while other groups felt their own status was threatened.

A major complication has been the multi-language education system with Malays and English government schools, and communal Chinese and Indian-language schools. At university level, English has been and will be for some time the main language.

CAN USE ENGLISH

Language legislation still leaves the government with the right to decide to use English, or any other vernacular tongue if it thinks necessary.

It also guarantees English as an official language in the east Malaysia states of Sabah and Sarawak for another 10 years.

Some Chinese also feel that use of Malay will be a hindrance to them.

To add to the problem, there are packets of left-wing activists who may take advantage of such feelings to stir up trouble for their own ends.

Yet most of the leaders in the large Malay and Chinese communities, and Indian-Ceylonese groups recognize that the adoption of Malay as sole official language might well be the way to foster unity in the country.

Schools have been teaching Malay as a compulsory subject since independence.

In the law courts, with a tradition now firmly based on a heritage of English law and English training, the transition will be more difficult than in commerce and it is anticipated that English will continue to dominate for some considerable time.

Relations Restored

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (Reuters) — Indonesia and Malaysia have restored full diplomatic relations, a year after agreeing to end three years of armed confrontation.

HOUSE, MORTGAGE TIES THEM DOWN

Buying Home 'a Trap' for Young Couples

By DAVE BAZAY

QUEBEC (CP)—Forget about home ownership, young families were urged Wednesday at an international conference on the family.

Home ownership was described as a trap, tying down young couples to a specific spot with mortgages when job promotion demands great mobility.

The suggestion emerged from a workshop discussion at the week-long world convention of the International Union of Family Organizations, where about 600 delegates from more than 30 countries are discussing new families.

The delegates took today off for sight-seeing. Sessions resume Friday.

Stewart Sutton, secretary-general of Canada's Vanier Institute of the Family, asked whether home ownership as a means of investment for the young isn't just a myth.

ENSLAVED BY DEBTS

"The one thing a young family has to be today is mobile," he said. "A lot of us know a lot of people who have become enslaved by their mortgages, by their debts."

A few delegates predicted free housing would come along in the future, with people paying for it through taxation.

Also attacking home ownership for young people was Helen Wattie, a high school teacher from Kirkland Lake, Ont., who called it a big mistake.

"I have seen several young teachers just desperate because they cannot sell their house when they want to move. I know of one who ended up with three mortgages."

She said buying a home also helps create family problems because "often young wives don't want to move because they have a nice new house."

Roland Gaston of the Montreal Institute of the Family urged reduction in mortgage payments during the first 10 years of a mortgage, with payments scaled higher later.

He suggested that mortgage payments be between $45 and $50 a month for the first 10 years when the husband's earning capacity is still developing.

Winds Fan Washington Woods Fires

SEATTLE (CP) — East winds in the Cascades spread Washington's mountain fires Wednesday and a general forest closure was ordered despite a forecast of possible rain this weekend.

In a move to keep Labor Day vacationers out of the forests, state and federal officials ordered a virtually complete shutdown of hunting and other recreational activities in Washington forests and grassland areas. The order applies until further notice.

The weather bureau at Seattle said western Washington and northwest Oregon might get some rain by Friday or Saturday.

But Wednesday afternoon east winds of 20 miles an hour with gusts to 40 were reported in the Cascades.

Washington's biggest blaze, the Evergreen Mountain fire northeast of Skykomish, spread to 4,250 acres as 1,100 men tried to complete lines around it.

A 550-acre spot fire on the southwest side of the main blaze was fanned by the east winds Wednesday.

Airport Bombed

LAGOS (AP)—The federal government said Wednesday its new jet planes bombed the airport at Benin, capital of the Midwest region occupied by forces from secessionist Biafra. The government recently bought 19 Soviet and British jet planes, but the announcement did not say what types were used in the raid on Benin.

MONTREAL EMERGENCY

'Grim' Situation In X-Ray Service

MONTREAL (CP) — Regular X-ray service is almost non-existent, emergency radiology service is faltering and the whole problem is getting worse, says Dr. Hubert Gregoire, secretary of the Association of Radiologists of the Province of Quebec.

"The situation is grim," he said in an interview Wednesday.

About 190 of the province's 208 radiologists have resigned from their posts in 127 of the 140 hospitals in the province. Five or six others have submitted resignations to become effective at various intervals this fall.

Forty-two radiologists already have agreed to take jobs outside the province even if the current dispute is settled and 36 of them are relocated, mostly in Ontario. Others have joined hospitals in Newfoundland, British Columbia or the United States.

Dr. Gregoire said emergency services are being maintained by a pool of six doctors available 24 hours a day in the Montreal area, and by a similar arrangement of three doctors in the Quebec City region.

BREAKDOWN FEARED

However, Dr. Marvin Lougheed, president of the radiologists' association, fears the resignations, the exodus of radiologists from the province and a high demand for X-ray service might even cause the emergency service to break down by the weekend.

Dr. Gregoire said the radiolagists resigned because they believed the Quebec government was attempting to take away their "freedom to practise."

"The government is trying to get all of us out of private offices and into public hospitals where we can be under its thumb. The government controls the hospitals, so they would control us."

Negotiations between the Quebec Federation of Medical Specialists, which represents the radiologists, and the Quebec government continued Wednesday but no progress was reported.

Dalai Lama To End Long Exile

TOKYO (UPI) — The Dalai Lama will break his eight-year Indian exile to travel to Japan, informed sources said Wednesday.

The 32-year-old spiritual head of Tibet will arrive in Tokyo Sept. 25 for a two week stay, the sources said. The Dalai Lama has not been out of India since he fled there in 1959 from Chinese troops.

The sources said his holiness would stop in Bangkok, Thailand, on his return to India.

Breakdown in Communication Caused Disaster

LONDON (UPI) — Lord Robens, chairman of the National Coal Board, Wednesday blamed a breakdown in communications among five management levels for the Aberfan coal slide disaster in which 144 persons died last year.

In his first official press conference since a government tribunal scathingly condemned the board for the disaster, Robens said it might never have happened if the board had been reorganized 12 months earlier.

Under the new three-level management system, it would be impossible for top management not to know about local problems, Lord Robens said.

Every person in the industry had been specifically told his area of responsibility, he added.

Lord Robens, in his annual coal board press conference, described the board's reorganization as "the biggest peacetime administrative change anywhere in the world."

The reorganization took place after an avalanche of coal waste, black mud and rubble engulfed the south Wales mining village Oct. 21, 1966, killing 116 children and 28 adults.

Statue Dauber Jailed

MONTREAL (CP)—Eerik Heine, 47, a native of Estonia residing in Toronto, was sentenced Wednesday to 15 days in jail after he was found guilty of defacing a monument in front of the Soviet Union pavilion at Expo 67.

Heine announced through his lawyer after he was sentenced in municipal court by Judge Gerard Tourangeau that he intends to appeal his conviction.

Expo security guards arrested Heine May 6 after the slogan "freedom for the people of Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania" was daubed in red paint across a giant sculpture depicting the hammer and sickle symbol of the Soviet Union.

A can of paint was also thrown over the monument.

A $110,000 slander suit brought by Heine against Juri Raus, 39, of Hyattsville, Md., a self-acknowledged agent of the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency, was dismissed by a U.S. federal judge in December.

The action was over statements made by Raus describing Heine as an agent of the Soviet secret police.

Heine is appealing the dismissal.

Separatists Swap Shouts With English

MONTREAL (CP) — About 200 French-speaking persons, many of them carrying separatist placards, engaged in a two-hour shouting session with about 75 English-speaking persons in suburban Pierrefonds Tuesday night.

Police said the fracas started after members of Le Rassemblement pour l'Independence Nationale started a protest demonstration in front of an English-language school in Pierrefonds.

They apparently were protesting the conversion of the former Ecole Monsigneur Deschamps into an English-language institute now known as the Fathers of Confederation School.

Most of the crowd dispersed after firemen connected hoses and threatened to spray the demonstrators, police said.

Loyalty Oath Vetoed

DALLAS (UPI — Texas' loyalty oath, required of state employes, is unconstitutional, a special three-judge federal panel ruled Wednesday. The judges ruled on a suit filed by Everett M. Gilmore Jr., fired from his job as an instructor at Dallas County Junior College last year because he refused to take the oath.

Toastmasters Learn How to Communicate

Why do people join Toastmaster clubs?

A great many join because they've been embarrassed at some time or another when called on for an impromptu speech, says Alex (Sandy) Robertson of Victoria.

"By practical training at Toastmaster clubs, a man learns to think on his feet—to express himself clearly and forcibly on any subject with which he is familiar.

"Many join for professional reasons, but many more believe public speaking is a social asset and a great experience in human relations."

Mr. Robertson, a B.C. government engineer, has just returned from a three-day convention in Toronto of Toastmasters International.

He is a director of this worldwide public speaking organization, which has its world headquarters at Santa Ana, California.

More than 1,000 Toastmasters attended the convention.

"Generally speaking, we don't encourage members to write out their speeches," Mr. Robertson said, "but in the case of politicians or statesmen a written speech is often desirable.

"In such cases, the speech should not sound as if it were being read — a conversational delivery is important today."

Mr. Robertson says Toastmaster clubs offer valuable training in leadership and teaching.

"It is really the art of spoken communication."

At their convention, the Toastmasters presented John Fisher, Canadian Centennial Commission, with the golden gavel — the highest honor available.

INQUEST T[illegible]D:

Water Bomber Hit Tree Top

A two-day search through dense forest finally uncovered the tell-tale signs where a water bomber crash last July began, a coroner's jury was told Wednesday night.

The jury was probing the deaths of Alex M. Davidson, 43, and R. T. "Paddy" Moore, 45, both of Sidney.

They were the pilot and co-pilot of a Super Canso PBY water bomber which crashed near Goldstream July 6 while fighting a forest fire on Skirt Mountain.

Cpl. Bob DeArmond of the Colwood RCMP detachment introduced 13 photos at the second meeting of the inquest, some of them showing the Canso disintegrating in mid-air seconds before the crash.

Pictures taken by some of the hundreds of spectators watching the plane bomb the fire with water helped to explain what happened, said the corporal.

An engineer, Robert Davidson of Sidney, who accompanied him to the crash scene explained that stress marks on the struts of the plan's left wing tip showed it had been torn forward.

WING HIT TREE

This is what would have happened if the wing had hit a treetop, said DeArmond.

Pictures showed the wing tip breaking free of the plane just before it crashed and led to speculation the plane had broken up, causing the crash.

Other pictures showed the bomber dropping its 1,157-gallon load of water just before it plunged into the trees, apparently in an emergency move to lighten the craft and gain altitude.

Cpl. DeArmond said talks with a number of pilots indicated it would take the plane about 3½ seconds to drop its water.

LOOKED FOR SPOT

Calculations which allowed for this and for reaction time set police looking for the spot where the plane would have been 10 seconds before it crashed.

That was where two tall trees with their tops snapped off were found.

"We were out there two days looking for those trees because they had to be there," said the corporal.

The breaks at the tree tops, as examined through a 40-power scope, were fresh, the jury was told.

The jury will reconvene Sept. 12 to hear from a final witness, the engineer Mr. Davidson. Coroner Edmond St. Jorre said he wanted him to clarify for the jury what the stress marks on the severed wing tip mean.

Trailer Sold To Pay His Debts

A Vancouver man who swindled a Saanich resident out of a $1,150 house trailer was sentenced to three years in the penitentiary Wednesday.

John Green, also known as Jack Hamilton, was brought from the prison where he is already serving a three-year term to plead guilty to the fraud charge.

Saanich Detective John Stone told the court that Green had taken the trailer March 16 after agreeing to pay $1,150 by certified cheque through the mail.

PAY DEBTS

The cheque never arrived and Green subsequently sold the trailer in Langley for $600.

The accused was sentenced in Vancouver last April to three years for similar offences.

Green said the fraud was part of a scheme to pay debts. He lost his wife, home and car when jailed in 1960 and incurred numerous debts.

"I couldn't see myself ever becoming a good citizen until I got out of debt, one way or another."

Self-Rule Vote Advocated

QUEBEC (CP) — Gilles Gregoire, president of the separatist Ralliement National party, announced Tuesday that when Parliament reconvenes September 25 he will present a motion recommending French-Canadians be given the right of self-determination.

Mr. Gregoire, independent member of Parliament for Lapointe, told a press conference he hopes to get Maurice Allard, independent MP for Sherbrooke, to second the motion.

The separatist leader said he will also move that Prime Minister Pearson table in the Commons the letters of protest the prime minister says he received from Canadian citizens following French President Charles de Gaulle's visit to Canada.

In answer to questions, Mr. Gregoire said he has had talks recently with Pierre Bourgault, head of le Rassemblement pour l'independance nationale, concerning a possible fusion of the two Quebec separatist parties.

He refused to comment on the results of these meetings but said there are no important matters separating the two parties.

Both parties ran candidates in the provincial election last year but neither holds a seat in Quebec.

Youth Needs 'Counselling'

A youth who claimed he had been assaulted by three men and later admitted a slash on his shoulder was self-inflicted, was handed a suspended sentence Wednesday.

Douglas Guyatt, 20, of 1258 Balmoral had pleaded guilty to public mischief when he appeared in central court a week ago.

The charge followed a call to his home Aug. 18 where police found him bleeding severely.

"You are very disturbed, very confused and need deep counselling," Magistrate Ostler told him Wednesday.

Guyatt was ordered to sign a $250 bond guaranteeing his good behavior over the next year and to acquiesce to any treatment that can be arranged for him.

Six-Month Term For Having Drug

A 17-year-old "hippie" caught with marijuana in his pocket as he lounged in Centennial Square was jailed for six months Wednesday.

Glen Warner, who earlier this month admitted to possession of the narcotic, heard Magistrate Ostler say that many in his long-hair cult aim only at self-gratification.

"I don't know if you are a hippie," said the magistrate, "indeed I don't know what a hippie is.

'RUINED LIVES'

"But many young persons like yourself, whose only goals in life seem to be self-gratification, a sort of hedonistic homage, an opting out from reality and responsibility, may emerge from your delusions some day to find you have ruined your lives.

"You and your fellows have embraced, in a somewhat bizarre manner, a very old philosophy which you apparently think is new. It is not that philosophy which is wrong but your perversion of it."

At an earlier hearing court was told Warner admitted being "high" on marijuana when an officer noticed him weaving in the square Aug. 1 and decided to speak to him.

BEACH 'POT' PARTY

The teen-ager, who has been living at 314 Robert since coming from Edmonton two months ago, told police he was given the drug at a beach "pot" party.

Dr. Charles Gregory, a psychiatrist called by the defence Wednesday, described Warner as a youth of at least average intelligence but with emotional problems.

EASILY LED

The accused has a very low opinion of himself, said the doctor, tends to be easily led and would gravitate to the "hippie" community because he would be most readily accepted there.

Brian Smith, Warner's lawyer, said a pre-sentence report made it clear Warner needed direction. The boy has a home in Edmonton and wants to go there, he said.

Kenneth Cox, acting for the Crown, said probation was not a satisfactory measure in the case. There have been ample warnings from the courts on the seriousness of the charge of marijuana possession.

Magistrate Ostler agreed.

Many people of varying ages are quite vocal in their criticism of the law barring marijuana, he said.

Then he cited a recent opinion that the undesirable and possibly dangerous effects of the drug are not yet really known.

"We live under the law—and there have been no lack of warnings."

Warner was sentenced to six months definite and six months indeterminate at the Young Offenders Unit.

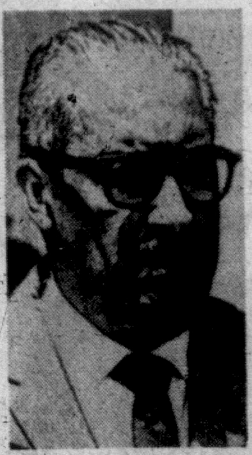
U.S. High Court Has First Negro



THURGOOD MARSHALL
. . . descendant of slave

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thurgood Marshall, great-grandson of a slave and a longtime fighter for equal rights for Negroes, has won Senate confirmation as the first Negro member of the U.S. Supreme Court.

By a 69-to-11 margin, the Senate confirmed Wednesday President Johnson's nomination of Marshall, 57, who was for many years chief legal officer of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

Marshall, currently U.S. solicitor-general, will fill a high court vacancy created by the retirement of Justice Tom C. Clark, who stepped down when his son, Ramsey Clark, was named attorney-general earlier this year.

Swearing in of Marshall is not expected until October, when the court reconvenes for its autumn term.

Marshall's overwhelming confirmation came in the face of charges by opponents—all from the South—that his seating would assure a lop-sided division of the court in favor of "ultra-liberal activists."

Marshall, a burly six-feet, two inches and 210 pounds, was the NAACP's chief counsel for 23 years and won 29 of 32 civil rights cases he argued before the high court—including the far-reaching 1954 school desegregation case.

Canada Space Agency Urged by Scientists

Satellite Program Proposed

OTTAWA (CP) — The Science Council of Canada, a government advisory body, today recommended establishment of a Canadian space agency.

In its first report on various aspects of science in Canada, the council said a space agency should be responsible for:

1. Advancement of Canadian capability in the science and technology of the upper atmosphere and space;

2. Furthering development of Canadian space industry;

3. Planning and implementation of an over-all space program for Canada.

The council said it is not only essential that Canada participate fully in development and use of international communications satellite systems but that it needs satellites to survey natural resources and provide information for maps.

The council suggested that Canada should build launching facilities for experimental rockets and for small satellites.

Dr. O. M. Solandt, council chairman, said at a press conference that the government has set up a task force which will report next month on construction, ownership and operation of communications satellites.

He estimated it will take two to five years to put a Canadian communications satellite in space. At present, the only competent body which could build one was the Defence Research Board.

However, it would be preferable for this country to buy launching services required for the bigger communications satellites.

SEEK RIGHTS NOW

The council said Canada should seek rights now to station Canadian communication satellites in the limited space directly above the equator.

Not only should Canada seek these rights through international agreement but its geographical size made it one of the few countries in the world that will need satellites for domestic communications.

"New communications networks based on satellites now could be developed to reach the remotest Canadian communities for telephone, television and data transmission services," for council said.

The space research and development must be expanded significantly to a growth rate of about 20 per cent a year.

Such growth would indicate expenditures of about $60,-00,000 a year for forty years as suggested in the report of March 6 on space research pre-

TRYING TO AVOID BREAK

By RODNEY PINDER

LONDON (AP)—Britain, hoping to keep its listening post in Peking and its hold on Hong Kong, sought today to avoid a total break with China by offering to discuss normalization of relations following violent incidents in Peking and London.

There was no detectable sign, however, that the British expected the Chinese to agree to a message suggesting talks.

The offer Wednesday, cabled by British Foreign Secretary George Brown to Chinese Foreign Minister Chen Yi, was seen primarily as an effort to prevent a further deterioration in relations at a time when British officials feel a change in China's leadership may be near and want observers on the scene.

No one would say so officially, but British officials are known to feel that Communist party Chairman Mao Tse-tung's campaign to purge his enemies is heading toward a climax in which his authority may diminish.

British officials declined to say whether Brown proposed a personal meeting with Chen or discussions through normal diplomatic channels.

REFUSED MESSAGE

The foreign office said Shen Ping, China's charge d'affaires in London, also was handed a copy of the message but refused to accept it.

The Peking-London feud has been over Hong Kong, the British colony of 4,000,000 on Chi-

TRAPPED MINER SAYS HE IS GOING TO DIE

SEOUL (UPI)—A South Korean miner has been trapped 375 feet below the surface for nine days.

Kim Chang-Son, 36, has a telephone where a cave-in caught him and has commented on the race between his would-be rescuers and death.

Kim said Wednesday he felt death was winning the race. "Somehow I have a hunch that I won't see this through," he said.

The Korean marine veteran telephoned that he had no food and has subsisted on water alone.

Mine experts said the rescuers were making steady but slow progress towards Kim but it may take several more days to reach him.

Dief Backer Takes Nomination Papers

TORONTO (CP) — Papers which would allow the nomination of John Diefenbaker as a candidate in the Progressive Conservative party's leadership race have been issued by the quarters here.

A convention official said today the nomination papers were picked up Tuesday by Keith Martin, co-chairman of the Youth-for-Dief committee. Mr. Martin declined to say who the papers were for.

The official emphasized that the move does not mean Mr. Diefenbaker will seek re-election as party chief at the convention Sept. 5-9. There are nine declared candidates thus far.

"There have been lots of stories circulating but Mr. Diefenbaker hasn't said anything and he has until 10 a.m. Friday, Sept. 8, to decide," the official said.

In order for Mr. Diefenbaker to run for the leadership, a nomination paper signed by him and by at least 25 accredited delegates to the convention must be handed to the convention organizers by 10 a.m. Sept. 8.

HANOI CLAIMS NINE PLANES SHOT DOWN

TOKYO (AP)—A broadcast dispatch from Hanoi said North Vietnam's armed forces shot down nine U.S. aircraft—eight planes and a rescue helicopter—and captured "a number of U.S. pilots" today.

Four planes and the helicopter were reported to have been downed over Haiphong, the main North Vietnamese port.

There was no immediate comment from American authorities.

ON ISRAEL

Nasser Talks Softly

(Times News Services)

KHARTOUM, Sudan — The leaders of the two Arab countries which suffered the greatest military and economic losses in the Middle East war implied in speeches at the Arab summit conference here that the time had come to seek a negotiated settlement with Israel, informed sources said today.

The hints were made by Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser and Jordan's King Hussein at the meeting of Arab chiefs of state.

Sources at the conference said Nasser's speech to the parley called to unify policy to "eliminate Israeli aggression" was moderate in tone. He told the Arabs they could either surrender or go forward united to seek "military, economic and political solutions."

It was the first time Nasser was reported to have raised the possibility of a political solution.

Hussein again dropped hints that he might be forced to negotiate peace with Israel. He urged the Arab states to "face realities and errors with frankness and manliness."

REMAINS MILITANT

Opposition to any softening of the Arab position on Israel continued to come from President Houari Boumedienne of Algeria, one of five chiefs of state who stayed away from the Khartoum meeting.

Boumedienne said in a speech in Algiers that the only way to get back Arab land lost in the six-day war with Israel was to fight for it. Having contributed nothing to the war and lost nothing, he has called for guerrilla action within Arab territories now occupied by Israel.

Meanwhile, President Abdullah Sallah of republican Yemen issued a statement today that amounted to a rejection of an Egyptian-Sudi Arabian formula for ending his country's civil war.

Sallal, speaking of arrangements to end his regime's battle with Yemeni royalists, declared: "The Yemeni people emphasize anew their rejection of all those proposals and mediations."

But he left himself a tiny loophole by adding that his government was eager to abide by any proposals that might strengthen fraternal relations among Arabs. It was felt here that the Egyptian-Saudi Arabian accord reached Wednesday was a step toward that end.

WITHDRAWAL PROMISED

Nasser also was the leader in the formula for ending the Yemeni civil war, promising to withdraw his forces, which have been supporting the republican regime. In return, King Faisal of Saudi Arabia agreed to halt his military assistance to the royalists, who have been fighting the republicans for five years.

"My government cannot consider itself bound by any agreement with which it was not associated and which it has not signed," said Foreign Minister Abdel Ariz Sallam of the Yemeni republican regime.

The royalists also are known to have become increasingly disgruntled by Saudi Arabia's attempts to make peace over their heads but are expected to go along with the accord.

SENDS OUT ENVOYS

Tito Pushes Hard For Mideast Plan

BELGRADE (AP) — Yugoslav President Tito stepped up a diplomatic offensive to settle the Middle East crisis today, sending a personal envoy to Latin America.

Tito began the drive by sending envoys with personal messages to U.S. President Johnson, President de Gaulle of France and Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia Wednesday. Similar messages will be presented in Moscow, London and other capitals.

Chosen for the Latin-American assignment is Svetozar Vukmanovic, member of the Council of the Federation, roughly equivalent to a cabinet. He will stop first in Chile and then go on to Mexico and other Latin-American countries.

The mssage to chiefs of state is reported to outline Tito's plan for peace in the Middle East. Earlier this month Tito visited Egypt, Syria and Iraq, seeking support for his peace formula.

The content of Tito's message was not made public but it is said to propose withdrawal of Israel from Arab territories occupied in the June war.

This formula avoids implicit recognition of Israel by Arab states but Yugoslav diplomats believed it can get approval of the majority of United Nations members.

LOTS OF IRON IN DIET OF STRONGMAN

ADELAIDE, Australia (Reuters) — A Greek-born strongman says he has accepted an $11,000 bet that he can eat a car in four years.

He said that until now he had confined himself to razor blades and pieces of glass.

Then he "samples several cars and decided on a Holden," a medium-sized car made in Australia by General Motors.

"I decided on this because I wanted to do something different," said the 210-pound strongman.

BRITAIN URGED TO AID BRITTANY

Welshmen Take Cue From de Gaulle

LONDON (CP)—Two Liberal members of the British Parliament, citing President de Gaulle's project for French aid to Quebec, have urged British government officials in charge of Welsh affairs to offer the people of Brittany cultural aid.

The MPs also propose that the French government re-establish the ancient Parliament of Brittany, where the people have the same Celtic background as the Welsh.

The proposals came Wednesday from Eric Lubbock, chief whip of the 12-man Liberal delegation in the 630-seat British House of Commons, and Emlyn Hooson, the party's spokesman on Welsh affairs.

Lubbock, fresh from a two-week vacation in Brittany, acknowledged in an interview that a political question is involved in any offer of aid by a British government department to Brittany—"but no more so than in the French president's idea for aid to Quebec."

Aid could take the form of funds for support of the Breton language, which is similar to Welsh.

Lubbock said the Breton language is missing from the school curriculum and students cannot take their examinations in the language.

Brittany has been a fully integrated part of France since 1532.

CHICAGO (AP) — Wheat futures prices advanced more than two cents on the Board of Trade today then declined under a wave of profit-taking near the close.

Corn and soybeans also advanced early under the influence of a possible strike in the industry.

Cool weather in northern portions of the midwestern U.S. gave some strength to soybean and corn prices.

1968 CARS UNVEILED

Safety Features In Chrysler Models

CHICAGO (UPI) — Chrysler Corp. today unveiled its line of 1968 cars silhouetted by long, lower bodies and filled with luxury refinements, standard safety features and more power for a "sportier look" with "youthful appeal."

The introduction of a new, lightweight, high performance V8 engine, and a wide range of sports car options highlight the Plymough Barracuda offered in three body styles: The sports fastback, hardtop coupe and convertible coupe models.

The new 318-cubic inch engine gives Barracuda the biggest standard V8 in its class, according to Chrysler.

The Imperial, featured in five models, has a new grill which sweeps around on both sides to include the new turning lights in the front fenders.

Besides new styling features on Chrysler's 1968 cars, new standard safety features also have been installed. They include improved fuel tank retention, non-override inside door handles, front seat back latches, soft window crank knobs, impact-absorbing front seat headrest, power window safety lockout, one-piece impact absorbing steering column jacket and modifications in seat and shoulder belts.

The GTX continues at the top of the intermediate line with sporty integral, side-facing louvers than can be made functional as fresh air inlets to the carburetor. The intermediate class also offers highly curved side glass and a distinctive rear window treatment designed to heighten the "youth appeal" of the entire line.

There are certain insects we regard as good neighbors, and late summer wouldn't be the same without the dry chirring of the male cricket to his silent mate. But we could get along nicely without the wasp colony that has established itself in the rock steps that drop from one lawn section to another.

I discovered their home by accident one evening while clipping around the bottom step. A wasp zipped past in purposeful flight, then a second and third. Each landed at the mouth of a crevice and trotted inside. Others followed, plainly hastening to get home before dark.

A true naturalist would have been content and even happy to entertain a colony of social insects in his back yard. But we use those steps a lot and at once I began to consider ways of evicting these touchy tenants.

They are peaceable enough now, but when autumn ripens, they will begin to get drunk on the fermenting juice of dropped fruit. When that happens, they are all too likely to whack out with their tail-stings at any child, dog or garden-grubber they blunder into.

So far, the inhabitants of the deep-hidden nest have absorbed a spray can of pesticide without apparent effect.

With the weather as it is, I daren't try to smoke them out, and we can't flood their fortress for fear of washing earth from behind the stones.

If there's a better way, we'd like to hear about it!

Weather permitting, Vancouver Island hunters will start grouse season on Saturday and deer season a week later on Sept. 9. And unless the drill has changed since last year, a number will find themselves afoul of the law on a charge that accounts for about 75 per cent of Fish and Wild Life convictions.

This is the carrying of loaded firearms in cars or other vehicles.

So much for that risky procedure, and here, courtesy of Remington Arms of Canada, are some further do's and dont's for hunters.

Unload guns when not in use.

Watch that muzzle! Carry your gun safely.

Be sure barrel is clear of obstructions, and that you have ammunition only of the proper size for gun you carry.

Be sure of target before you pull trigger. (And, I might add, don't indulge in the stupid and risky practice of "sound-shooting.")

Never climb a tree or fence, or jump a ditch with a loaded gun; never pull a gun toward you by the muzzle.

Store guns and ammunition separately, beyond reach of children.

Avoid alcoholic beverages before or during hunting.

A nod to Victoria Chamber of Commerce, whose civic affairs group this week managed to discuss the hippie syndrome without dragging the whip or the woodshed—that allegedly necessary adjunct of the Christian home—into their discussion.

While far from pro-hippie, these chamber reps displayed an attitude that I found refreshing after the outpourings of hate, intolerance and self-righteousness that have tainted the air of this city for the last week and more.

A word now to certain anonymous heroes who have inflicted their bigotry upon me by letter and telephone.

I do not believe that it would be a fine thing if the hippies or other young people to whom you choose to apply the designation should be whipped, dragged to delousing stations, beaten up by "a few of the boys in dark alleys," castrated, or subjected to the various other barbarisms that savage minds have devised.

I do believe in the law, which assumes innocence until guilt is proved, and does not distinguish between the hippie and the taxpayer.

Abandon the principle of equality under the law and you take your chances in a jungle of your own making.

It's Fun, Fellowship at Good Old Saanichton

It is one of the few remaining truly "country fairs" where fun and fellowship take the play away from commercialization . . .

. . . That is the 99-year-old North and South Saanich Agriculture Society's three-day Saanichton Fair to be opened Saturday by Lieut.-Gov. George Pearkes.

It will continue through Sunday and Monday with many features to hold the interest of visitors.

Record entries in quality as well as quantity will be on display. Many fine animals have been groomed for the show and static displays are being given finishing touches.

There will be horse shows daily, with cutting horse competitions Saturday and Sunday, the top winner receiving the Times Perpetual Trophy.

Displays and competitions in the 4-H section promise to be better than ever.

"Magic" also scored high in the parade horse class, coming second in a class of 10. He is seven years old.

In the second picture Donna and Gordie Doney talk it over with a friendly Hereford steer, "Buster," as they make plans to enter the Saanichton steer riding contest.

And in the third picture Jeanine Wright assures six-weeks-old Clydesdale, "Bell" that she'll be given a friendly reception when she and her mother go to the fair.

Corps Appoints First Full-Time Paid Executive

Rear-Admiral John B. Calwell, 54, has been appointed full-time paid executive director (commandant) of the Victoria and Vancouver Island Division of the Corps of Commissionaires, it was announced today.

He succeeds Cmdr. A. C. Wurtele, 70, as commandant, but Cmdr. Wurtele will continue as chairman of the board of governors.

Rear-Admiral Caldwell was commodore superintendent at HMC Dockyard from 1955 to 1958. He retired in September, 1965, after 32 years' naval service.

The appointment of a full-time paid executive director conforms with a recommendation made by Edwin E. Pearlman, QC., Mr. Pearlman conducted an investigation into the affairs of the division at the request of the board of governors earlier this year.

Cmdr. Wurtele, formerly Reeve of Esquimalt, said today he was offered the position of executive director but declined because he thought it should go to a younger man.

"When you are 70, you think twice about taking on such heavy responsibilities. I believe we have an excellent choice in Rear-Admiral Caldwell."

Mr. Pearlman also recommended that the board of governors meet regularly at least once every three months at the call of the chairman.

He recommended the appointment of a paid executive director and an executive assistant, on the ground that "too much authority and responsibility has been delegated to the administrative staff."

Recommendations Made in Report

He also recommended:

1. That the general public be informed of the organization, aims and objects of the corps.

2. That better and more detailed records of the training, qualifications and experience of commissionaires be maintained.

3. That the wording of the regulation requiring commissionaires to report any instance of misconduct on the part of a fellow commissionaire be changed.

"In my opinion," Mr. Pearlman said, "the real meaning and intent of this regulation has been obscured or misrepresented. It's sole purpose is to ensure that the reputation, prestige and interests of the corps are maintained.

"It is not intended as a Gestapo device, nor have I been able to discover any abuse of the same. Commissionaires are expected to conduct themselves in accordance with the rules and regulations.

"Failure to do so should quite properly be brought to the attention of the corps."

Mr. Pearlman recommended that the regulation be amended to read "it is the duty of every member of the corps to report any instance of misconduct on the part of a member when committed in public or liable to injure the interests of the corps."

Reporting on criticism of the administration, he said:

"It is my conclusion that basically, and by and large, the affairs of the division have been administered efficiently and fairly and to the best advantage of the corps and its members."

He stated, however, that there may have been "some minor errors in judgment or some ineptitude displayed in the conduct of the business of the division."

No Evidence to Support Charges

But at no time did he find evidence to support "the broad and general allegations of injustice, of vindictiveness and of improper conduct."

Mr. Pearlman said he had received 60 written communications from commissionaires and had frank discussions with 107 of them. He also interviewed officials closely identified with the work of the corps.

He had received full cooperation from them and all records, files, memoranda, correspondence and other data had been made available to him.

Mr. Pearlman emphasized that Cmdr. Wurtele and the board of governors had served voluntarily and without remuneration.

He added:

"I see no objection, if the commissionaires so desire, to the formation of a grievance committee, composed of the executive director (Rear-Admiral Caldwell), a member of the board of governors and a commissionaire designated by the commissionaires at large."

Following is the text of Mr. Pearlman's summation of his findings:

"I consider it my duty to emphasize that at no time during the course of my investigation did I find positive or corroborative evidence, or for that matter, circumstantial evidence which could be interpreted as supporting the broad and general allegations of injustice, of vindictiveness and of improper conduct.

Smokers Cause Eight New Fires Near Kamloops

Forestry Officials Still Hope for Rain

Human carelessness, particularly by smokers, is increasing as a cause of forest fires this week, a forest service spokesman said today.

"There have been 22 new fires in the province in the past 24 hours and the majority of them were caused by human carelessness," he said.

Eight of the 12 new fires in Kamloops forest district, where an extension of the recreational and travel closure went into effect overnight, were blamed on smokers.

The extension prohibits all but highway travel in the area between the North Thompson River, south of Quesnel.

277 FIRES

There are 277 fires burning in B.C. today and although only four are listed as serious now, "the hazards everywhere remain extreme," the spokesman said.

"The rainstorm expected for this weekend will have to produce at least half an inch of rain to be of any real benefit in the bone dry forests and before any thought can be given to lifting any of the current restrictions," he said.

SECOND FLARE-UP

Although not among the "serious" fires, a 6,000-acre blaze at Sproat Lake continued to give the 381 firefighters considerable trouble with a second "flare up" on the west flank during the night requiring airlifting of forestry crews to cut some fireguards by hand and contain the advance.

"Although the fire blew up again, again it was prevented from getting very far and we're still listing the area total at 6,000 acres," said the spokesman.

46 AIRCRAFT

All told, 3,069 men, 144 tractors and 46 aircraft are battling flames in the B.C. woods.

The four "serious" fires all jumped their fireguards during the night requiring regrouping of crews to cut new ones today. They include a 30,000-acre blaze in the Shuswap Lakes area, a 2,800-acre fire near Lytton, a 2,000-acre fire at Bridge Island and a relatively dormant 6,000-acre blaze west of Quesnel which leaped to 8,900 acres overnight.

Navy Cadets

The Admiral Rayner Navy League Cadet Corps will resume training at the Rainbow Barracks, foot of Robert Street, Wednesday at 6:45 p.m.

Boys between the ages of 11 and 13 who wish to join the corps should be there at that time.

LEFT HOMELESS and without belongings was a family of 14 when their home on the Cole Bay Indian Reserve burned to the ground this morning.

'Everything Seemed To Explode:' Father

A family of 14, including 11 children, fled to safety this morning when fire demolished their house on the Cole Bay Indian Reserve.

Only casualty in the fire at 1065 McTavish Road in North Saanich was th family's pet Chihuahua. It perished when apparently trapped in the seven-room house.

Left homeless and without any belongings is the family of Norman Williams, 46, a boom-man with B.C. Forest Products.

A campaign for goods and money has already been launched by Don Williams, chief of the Cole Bay Reserve and band administrator.

Mr. Williams said his father-in-law, Tommy James, was the only person up when the fire broke out shortly after 7 a.m.

"Everything seemed to explode. We never got anything out. We just got out ourselves and that was it," said the father.

Asleep in the house at the time were Mr. Williams, his wife Violet and their children Elaine, Norman, Doris, Laverne, Alvin, Ramona, Marlene, Sylvester, Maureen, Barry and Morenda, ranging in age from 2 to 20.

The fire seemed to start in the kitchen, said Mr. Wkilliams. Sidney Fire Chier Hugh Loney said the stove is thought to have touched it off.

Firemen with three trucks from th volunteer brigade battled the fire but only the chimney of the house was left standing.

TRUCKED IN WATER

While two of the trucks hauled water from the intersection of McTavish and West Saanich Road a mile away, the third truck provided the power for hoses at the scene.

Mr. Williams said he could not estimate the loss in dollars. The house was nine years old.

DONATIONS WELCOMED

Donations can be brought to his home—at 9045 West Saanich Road. Where people cannot deliver contributions, they are asked to phone 656-2205. A man with a truck has volunteered it to help pick up donations, said the chief.

The band administrator said he would open a trust fund account for cash donations. They will go towards helping the family start on a new house.

Prospect Lake Water Vote Confirmed for September 16

Property owners in the Prospect Lake area will vote Saturday Sept. 16 on a $299,455 scheme to extend municipal watermains to the district.

Polling place will be at Prospect Lake Elementary School.

The date and polling place, set tentatively by council Aug. 21, were confirmed at a special council meeting Tuesday night.

Of the total cost, Saanich will contribute $86,455. The measure needs 60 per cent approval among those who vote. Individual costs are to be given to property owners in advance of the voting date.

Prior to the vote, the Prospect Lake Community Association has called a special meeting for Sept. 12 in the Community Hall on Sparton Road. At the meeting to answer questions will be Saanich department heads and a member of the district water board.

Cultural Fund Group Named by Cabinet

William Murrary, speaker of the Legislature, has been named chairman of the new Centennial Cultural Fund Advisory Committee, in a cabinet order released today.

Deputy chairman of the committee is L. J. Wallace, who is deputy provincial secretary and the province's centennial celebrations and grants specialist.

Also on the six-member committee are the three women ministers without portfolio, Mrs. Isobel Dawson, Mrs. Pat Jordan and Mrs. Grace McCarthy.

Deputy Education Minister Dr. Neil G. Perry rounds it out.

The committee's job will be to make recommendations to Premier Bennett as finance minister, on "the manner in which the interest earned each year on the fund should be allocated."

The last legislative session set up the $5 million fund at Mr. Bennett's request and it has been invested in B.C. Hydro bonds, presumably at 5½ per cent interest.

This should provide between $250,000 and $275,000 income annually for distribution as grants promoting the province's cultural development.

But no ground rules on how the grants will be decided have yet been announced.

'COPTER MAKES 99TH STOP IN VICTORIA

The Centennial Helicopter will be making its 98th and 99th stop today and Friday in its scheduled 100 landings across Canada.

The 'copter will arrive in Central Saanich at the Twin Totem Ranch, Island View Road, at 8.

And on Friday morning at 10, Canada's birthday helicopter will be met by Mayor Hugh Stephen and B.C. Centennial officials when it lands at the Industrial Reserve.

After a four-hour stopover here, the helicopter and its crew will leave for its 100th landing at Long Beach on the West Coast of the Island.

One of the most modern of its kind, it started in May from Newfoundland with greetings and messages for mayors across Canada.

Ask The Times

Q. Does a glass of skim milk made from powder have the same number of calories as a glass of unreconstituted skim milk? M.C.

A. Probably, says a health board spokesman, but it depends on the degree of extraction of butterfat. Some skim milk is 2 per cent milk, some 3. The degree of extraction also varies in powdered milk. This would be stated on the package.

Q. By what name was Vancouver Island known before it got its present name? C.M.S.

A. It was known as Quadra Island and also Vancouver and Quadra's Island.

Q. How should I address a letter to a sailor stationed in San Diego? S.A.

A. Use his name, rank and service number and address the letter to Fleet Mail Office, United States Navy, San Diego.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

Bastion Grant Bid Rejected by Ottawa

Bastion Theatre has received word that its application for a $25,000 Canada Council Grant has been turned down.

Theatre officials, nevertheless, do not anticipate any change in either the public season or educational projects.

Campaign Success Means No More 'Separatism'

If Greater Victoria doesn't realize the $600,000 goal of the new combined Red Feather-Red Cross appeal this year it will mean "separatism" again, R. B. Hutchison, vice-chairman of the campaign committee warned Wednesday.

He urged full support of the united appeal principal as the 1967 campaign, which for the first time embraces the Red Cross as a partner, officially opened.

Some work has already been done.

Advance gifts have been received, the residential section is organized and collections have already started.

G. F. Auchinleck, campaign chairman, said that this year there are 24 agencies including the Red Cross and two others, the Alano Club, dedicated to aid for the recovering alcoholic and the Handicapped Children's Clinic.

"The Red Cross will assist in the residential campaign," he said. "We are now getting about $1.50 per home and now that the Red Cross is included and there will be no Red Cross drive next year, we must collect $2 or $3 per home."

Of the $148,000 increase over last year's Red Feather goal, the Red Cross requires $85,000 for its many services which include blood transfusion service, homemaker service, water safety campaign, missing persons, home nursing services, loan cupboard, disaster fund, volunteer women's work, Red Cross Youth, Red Cross Corps, and services to veterans.

Some of the increase will go to administration plus the budgets of the other two new agencies.

The Red Cross has already made its annual appeal this year but no campaign will be conducted in 1968. Funds collected in March are for the group's 1967 expenses and any donations this year will assist the service next year.

Anyone who has already given to Red Cross may pledge part of the Red Feather-Red Cross amount to be given to the Red Cross at any time the donor specifies in 1968, either in a lump some or spread over the year.

Officials hope that now the Red Cross has combined with the Red Feather organization that other groups will follow suit next year.

"It's new, it's up to you," said committee member Mrs. Phoebe Noble, "if you want the truly united appeal."

Armed Bandits Grab $80,000 From Train

Employee Bound, Gagged

MONTREAL (CP)—Two armed men overpowered a baggage car employee on a CNR passenger train en route from Halifax to Montreal today and escaped with an estimated $80,000 in cash.

A CNR spokesman said the men were believed to have boarded the train the Scotian, at a scheduled stop in Beloeil, Que., about 20 miles southeast of Montreal.

They entered the baggage car from the passenger section of the 17-car train, handcuffed the single employee on duty, shoved a woollen sock in his mouth and taped it.

Preliminary investigations led CNR police to believe that the men left the train at St. Lambert, a regular stop, just aross the St. Lawrence River from Montreal.

The robbery was not discovered until the train arrived at Central Station in downtown Montreal. Baggage handlers at the station slid open the car door and found the employee lving bound and gagged on the floor.

None of the passengers on the train or the other employees were aware of the robbery, the spokesman said.

The baggage car was just behind the engine.

It was not immediately known to whom the shipment of cash was destined or if anything else was taken from the baggage car.

SPACE AGENCY URGED

OTTAWA (CP) — The Science Council of Canada, a government advisory body, today recommended establishment of a Canadian space agency.

In its first report on various aspects of science in Canada, the council said a space agency should be responsible for:

1. Advancement of Canadian capability in the science and technology of the upper atmosphere and space;
2. Furthering development of Canadian space industry;
3. Planning and implementation of an over-all space program for Canada.

The council said it is not only essential that Canada participate fully in development and use of international communications satellite systems but that it needs satellites to survey natural resources and provide information for maps.

The council suggested that Canada should build launching facilities for experimental rockets and for small satellites.

Dr. O. M. Solandt, council chairman, said at a press conference that the government has set up a task force which will report next month on construction, ownership and operation of communications satellites.

He estimated it will take two to five years to put a Canadian communications satellite in space. At present, the only competent body which could build one was the Defence Research Board.

However, it would be preferable for this country to buy launching services required for the bigger communications satellites.

SEEK RIGHTS NOW

The council said Canada should seek rights now to station Canadian communication satellites in the limited space directly above the equator.

Not only should Canada seek these rights through interna-

Dief Backer Takes Nomination Papers

TORONTO (CP) — Papers which would allow the nomination of John Diefenbaker as a candidate in the Progressive Conservative party's leadership race have been issued by headquarters here.

A convention official said today the nomination papers were picked up Tuesday by Keith Martin, co-chairman of the Youth-for-Dief committee. Mr. Martin declined to say who the papers were for.

The official emphasized that the move does not mean Mr. Diefenbaker will seek re-election as party chief at the convention Sept. 5-9. There are nine declared candidates thus far.

"There have been lots of stories circulating but Mr. Diefenbaker hasn't said anything and he has until 10 a.m. Friday, Sept. 8, to decide," the official said.

In order for Mr. Diefenbaker to run for the leadership, a nomination paper signed by him and by at least 25 accredited delegates to the convention must be handed to the convention organizers by 10 a.m. Sept. 8.

ON ISRAEL

Nasser Talks Softly

(Times News Services)

KHARTOUM, Sudan — The leaders of the two Arab countries which suffered the greatest military and economic losses in the Middle East war implied in speeches at the Arab summit conference here that the time had come to seek a negotiated settlement with Israel, informed sources said today.

The hints were made by Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser and Jordan's King Hussein at the meeting of Arab chiefs of state.

Sources at the conference said Nasser's speech to the parley called to unify policy to "eliminate Israeli aggression" was moderate in tone. He told the Arabs they could either surrender or go forward united to seek "military, economic and political solutions."

It was the first time Nasser was reported to have raised the possibility of a political solution.

Hussein again dropped hints that he might be forced to negotiate peace with Israel. He urged the Arab states to "face realities and errors with frankness and manliness."

REMAINS MILITANT

Opposition to any softening of the Arab position on Israel continued to come from President Houari Boumedienne of Algeria, one of five chiefs of state who stayed away from the Khartoum meeting.

Boumedienne said in a speech in Algiers that the only way to get back Arab land lost in the six-day war with Israel was to fight for it. Having contributed nothing to the war and lost nothing, he has called for guerrilla action within Arab territories now occupied by Israel.

Meanwhile, President Abdullah Sallah of republican Yemen issued a statement today that amounted to a rejection of an Egyptian-Sudi Arabian formula for ending his country's civil war.

Sallal, speaking of arrangements to end his regime's battle with Yemeni royalists, declared: "The Yemeni people emphasize anew their rejection of all those proposals and mediations."

But he left himself a tiny loophole by adding that his government was eager to abide by any proposals that might strengthen fraternal relations among Arabs. It was felt here that the Egyptian-Saudi Arabian accord reached Wednesday was a step toward that end.

WITHDRAWAL PROMISED

Nasser also was the leader in the formula for ending the Yemeni civil war, promising to withdraw his forces, which have been supporting the republican regime. In return, King Faisal of Saudi Arabia agreed to halt his military assistance to the royalists, who have been fighting the republicans for five years.

"My government cannot consider itself bound by any agreement with which it was not associated and which it has not signed," said Foreign Minister Abdel Ariz Sallam of the Yemeni republican regime.

The royalists also are known to have become increasingly disgruntled by Saudi Arabia's attempts to make peace over their heads but are expected to go along with the accord.

FOUR PEOPLE were injured, none seriously, when the passenger-freighter Northland Prince was involved Wednesday in its second marine collision in four weeks. TRYING TO AVOID BREAK

Britain Wants Talks To Stop Peking Feud

By RODNEY PINDER

LONDON (AP)—Britain, hoping to keep its listening post in Peking and its hold on Hong Kong, sought today to avoid a total break with China by offering to discuss normalization of relations following violent incidents in Peking and London.

There was no detectable sign, however, that the British expected the Chinese to agree to a message suggesting talks.

The offer Wednesday, cabled by British Foreign Secretary George Brown to Chinese Foreign Minister Chen Yi, was seen primarily as an effort to prevent a further deterioration in relations at a time when British officials feel a change in China's leadership may be near and want observers on the scene.

No one would say so officially, but British officials are known to feel that Communist party Chairman Mao Tse-tung's campaign to purge his enemies is heading toward a climax in which his authority may diminish.

British officials declined to say whether Brown proposed a personal meeting with Chen or discussions through normal diplomatic channels.

REFUSED MESSAGE

The foreign office said Shen Ping, China's charge d'affaires in London, also was handed a copy of the message but refused to accept it.

The Peking-London feud has been over Hong Kong, the British colony of 4,000,000 on China's southern coast. Local Communists, with encouragement from Peking, have been trying to gain the upper hand there.

After Britain ignored China's ultimatum to free Communist newspaper men held on sedition charges, a mob burned out the British mission in Peking Aug. 22.

In retaliation, Britain restricted the movement of Chinese diplomats in London. Those diplomats charged out of their legation with axes, iron bars and baseball bats Tuesday and clashed with London police and a crowd of Britons.

This set off another anti-British demonstration in Peking Wednesday.

SENDS OUT ENVOYS

Tito Pushes Hard For Mideast Plan

BELGRADE (AP) — Yugoslav President Tito stepped up a diplomatic offensive to settle the Middle East crisis today, sending a personal envoy to Latin America.

Tito began the drive by sending envoys with personal messages to U.S. President Johnson, President de Gaulle of France and Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia Wednesday. Similar messages will be presented in Moscow, London and other capitals.

Chosen for the Latin-American assignment is Svetozar Vukmanovic, member of the Council of the Federation, roughly equivalent to a cabinet. He will stop first in Chile and then go on to Mexico and other Latin-American countries.

The mssage to chiefs of state is reported to outline Tito's plan for peace in the Middle East. Earlier this month Tito visited Egypt, Syria and Iraq, seeking support for his peace formula.

The content of Tito's message was not made public but it is said to propose withdrawal of Israel from Arab territories occupied in the June war.

This formula avoids implicit recognition of Israel by Arab states but Yugoslav diplomats believed it can get approval of the majority of United Nations members.

HANOI CLAIMS NINE PLANES SHOT DOWN

TOKYO (AP)—A broadcast dispatch from Hanoi said North Vietnam's armed forces shot down nine U.S. aircraft—eight planes and a rescue helicopter—and captured "a number of U.S. pilots" today.

Four planes and the helicopter were reported to have been downed over Haiphong, the main North Vietnamese port.

There was no immediate comment from American authorities.

LOTS OF IRON IN DIET OF STRONGMAN

ADELAIDE, Australia (Reuters) — A Greek-born strongman says he has accepted an $11,000 bet that he can eat a car in four years.

Leon Samson, 30, said Thursday he would have to eat two pounds of metal a day to finish off the car in four years.

He said that until now he had confined himself to razor blades and pieces of glass.

Then he "sampled several cars and decided on a Holden," a medium-sized car made in Australia by General Motors.

"I decided on this because I wanted to do something different," said the 210-pound strongman.

TRAPPED MINER SAYS HE IS GOING TO DIE

SEOUL (UPI)—A South Korean miner has been trapped 375 feet below the surface for nine days.

Kim Chang-Son, 36, has a telephone where a cave-in caught him and has commented on the race between his would-be rescuers and death.

Kim said Wednesday he felt death was winning the race. "Somehow I have a hunch that I won't see this through," he said.

The Korean marine veteran telephoned that he had no food and has subsisted on water alone.

Mine experts said the rescuers were making steady but slow progress towards Kim but it may take several more days to reach him.

Mica Dam Bids Over Estimate

Lowest Tender of $136 Million Submitted by U.S.-Headed Group

By DENNIS BELL

VANCOUVER (CP) — A consortium of construction companies headed by a San Francisco firm Wednesday submitted a low bid of $136,261,544 for construction of Mica Dam—last and largest of the three Canada has promised to build under the Columbia River Treaty.

The bid was one of four opened at the head offices of British Columbia Hydro and Power Authority by Premier W. A. C. Bennett. All the bids came from consortiums. The highest was for $170,814,466.

Premier Bennett described the Mica Dam contract as "probably the largest single contract for any project in Canadian history."

The low bid was submitted by Guy F. Atkinson and Co. of San Francisco; Arundel Corporation, Baltimore, Md., L. E. Dixon Co., Builders, San Gabriel, Calif.; Dillingham Corporation of Hawaii, and Commonwealth Construction of Vancouver.

Dr. Hugh Keenleyside, B.C. Hydro co-chairman, said the power authority will spend two weeks studying the four bids before deciding which one to accept.

The authority has not officially released its estimates for the Mica project, to be completed on the Columbia River north of Revelstoke by April 1, 1973.

However, unofficial sources have indicated the provincially-owned power authority anticipated an expenditure of only $100,000,000 — about $36,000,000 less than the lowest bid submitted.

DECLINES COMMENT

In a news conference following the opening of tenders, Premier Bennett declined direct comment on the government's estimates of what the dam project would cost.

"The bids will have to be reviewed," said the premier. "They're very interesting but it is a little soon for me to comment on them."

Mr. Bennett, pressed on the question, added the bids were "not too disappointing," but described governmental cost estimates for the Mica Dam as "confidential information."

The high bid came from Big Ben Constructors, a five-company consortium headed by Peter Kiewit Canada Ltd., of Omaha, Neb., and Mannix Co. Ltd., of Calgary and three other U.S. companies.

The second lowest tender came from a two-company consortium, Dravo Corportation Canada Ltd., of Bellevue, Wash., and McNamara Corp. Ltd. of Toronto. They estimated the project at $143,355,860.

An all-Canadian consortium submitted a bid of $149,535,513. Participating in that group were Foundation Co. of Canada Ltd., of Toronto, B. A. Construction Co. of Transcona, Man., Inspiration Ltd. of Calgary and Standard General Construction International, also of Calgary. The companies used the name Mica Dam Constructors for their consortium.

ONE OF BIGGEST

When completed, Mica Dam will be one of the world's biggest — 645 feet high, 2,600 feet long, with a volume of 42,000,000 cubic yards of water backed up in a 135-mile reservoir.

Located on the Columbia 85 miles north of Revelstoke, Mica Dam is an interesting construction challenge.

The initial contract — the one the four consortiums are bidding on — calls for building the dam, spillway and water intakes. Separate bids will be called for the underground powerhouse when the authority decides to proceed with facilities to generate about 2,000,000 kilowatts of electrical power.

Excavation of two diversion tunnels, each 45 feet in diameter, was completed in November, 1966. B.C. Hydro officials expect diversion of the river will take place in mid-November.

The two other dams Canada has agreed to build under the treaty are Duncan Dam north of Nelson and Arrow Dam, on the Columbia near Castlegar. Both are smaller in size and without power generating facilities.

The Duncan Dam was completed July 31, about 13 months ahead of schedule, at a cost of $29,000,000. The advance completion means a saving of roughly $3,300,000.

AHEAD OF SCHEDULE

Dr. Keenleyside said work on the Arrow Dam is well ahead of schedule now and it should be completed in advance of its April 1, 1969, deadline. Estimates on the cost of the Arrow project range as high as $55,000,000.

As of March 31 of this year, the B.C. government has spent $189,731,799 on the three projects, $91,817,294 of that during the 1966-67 fiscal year alone.

The treaty, signed Sept. 16, 1964, by President Johnson, Prime Minister Pearson and Premier Bennett, provides that Canada will operate the dams for flood control storage purposes and will be entitled to a half of the downstream power benefits.

Under a sales agreement, B.C.'s share of the additional power was sold to a group of U.S. electrical utilities for a period of 30 years. The U.S. paid the B.C. government $273,300,000 in advance.

In addition, the U.S. agreed to pay $64,400,000 for the role the three treaty dams play in flood control in Washington and Oregon. The first payment was due when the Duncan Dam became operational, but B.C. has not yet received the $12,000,000 owing.

Government officials estimated late last year that costs for the three projects would reach $410,000,000 by the time all work is completed in 1973. Critics of the Bennett administration now place the figure in excess of $500,000,000, but Mr. Bennett says it won't run that high.

LARGEST SYSTEM

"In total, the Columbia River project is going to be a satisfactory one for the people of British Columbia," Premier Bennett told the news conference.

"In this period of inflation, we have the largest power system in the free world under construction," said the premier. "What's really occurring is a revolution in the development of power in the province."

Mr. Bennett said he was referring to the huge Peace River project as well as the Columbia dams in this context.

Is the province going to lose money on the Columbia River Treaty?

"Your don't give iffy answers to iffy questions," was the premier's answer. "We'll know when everything is completed and all the bills have been paid."

charge d'affaires in Peking, told the London Daily Express by telephone that perhaps several hundred Red Guards demanded that he come out of the mission and accept a protest.

HOPSON NOT HURT

"I was not hurt and not made to kneel," Hopson said. Other reports said a Red Guard seized the envoy's hair and made him bow his head.

"Life is now very restricted," Hopson told The Express.

"We cannot go into the town or onto the streets, even if we wanted to. But so far there is no shortage of food. Our Chinese cooks are allowed to shop for us."

Peking's official New China news agency charged today that the London incident occurred after the British "repeatedly made outrageous provocations against Chinese personnel by sending out large numbers of police, special agents and ruffians."

Meanwhile, newspaper men in Hong Kong learned that tips from pro-Communist Chinese and Chinese on the fringe of the underworld, presumably in return for reward money, are aiding the government's fight against terrorism.

Police told of one Chinese man caught with a bomb who led officers to a terrorist bomb cache today. They found five completed bombs, sticks of gelignite, detonators and fuses buried in a roadside near a children's school.

If the formula fails, it will not be the first time an agreement to end the civil war collapsed. A peace plan concluded in Jeddah, Saudi Arabia, in 1965, fell apart in a welter of recriminations.

Nasser and Faisal approved a plan calling for the formation of a three-power committee to supervise the phasing out of hostilities. Sudan, Iraq and Morocco were named to the committee and planned to begin work immediately after the windup of the summit meeting Friday.

No date was set for the beginning of the withdrawal of Egyptian troops, who numbered about 40,000 in Yemen until a large contingent was moved out following the Middle East war in June.

RUSSIANS 'EXPOSED' AT EXPO 67

HONG KONG (Reuters)—The People's Daily, China's Communist party newspaper, says the "Soviet revisionist ruling clique" has found a home at a notorious capitalist front—Expo 67.

The newspaper, in a dispatch carried by the New China news agency and monitored here, says Expo 67 is the place where "Western monopoly capitalist groups, headed by the United States, peddle their goods, fight for markets and expand their economic aggression."

It says the Soviet leaders revealed themselves by exhibiting there as a "group of renegades fawning on U.S. imperialism."

tional agreement but its geographical size made it one of the few countries in the world that will need satellites for domestic communications.

"New communications networks based on satellites now could be developed to reach the remotest Canadian communities for telephone, television and data transmission services," the council said.

The space research and development must be expanded significantly to a growth rate of about 20 per cent a year.

Such growth would indicate expenditures of about $60,00,000 a year for forty years as suggested in the report of March 6 on space research prepared by a team of four scientists headed by Dr. John Chapman, of the Defence Research Board.

This amount would not include cost of development and operation of the commercial satellite communications system. The council said there has been considerable fragmentation Canada's space effort to date and that no common objectives have been defined.

"A co-ordinated, expanded and sustained national effort will be required if Canadian use of space is to be developed under Canadian leadership to meet the needs of the Canadian economy. . . .

"The national interest of Canada demands that Canadian scientists and technologists be enabled to play their part; that Canadian labor be used in Canadian plants to manufacture at least a fair share of the equipment; that Canadian organizations operate the systems and that Canadians reap the benefit of the discovery and development of their resources."

Costly development efforts should be left to the United States, Russia, Britain and France but a much more dynamic policy was required because "sociologically and economically Canada cannot afford to expose herself to the degree of economic and technological dependence that the alternative would involve."

OFFER NEW APPROACH

The council said satellites offer an entirely new approach to the determination and delination of surface geology and natural resources. Canada was wide open for such exploration.

"Obviously Canadian territory is also wide open for such exploration by outside interests. If protection be needed, the only means would appear to be for Canada to be first in the field with information about her latent resources."

Surveys from space could greatly facilitate obtaining information on the nature of soils, distribution of water, ice, permafrost, erosion and sedimentation, extent and type of vegetation, and the condition and yield of crops.

Canada should assume full responsibility for the Churchill, Man., research range when the present agreement with the U.S. expires in 1970.

Th council made no firm recommendation of McGill University's High Altitude Research Project to which the government recently stopped contributing.

The HARP project uses old naval guns to launch atmospheric probes and proposed an attempt to fire small satellites into orbit.

Will Santa Be Arrested Next Time?

MONTREAL (CP) — Two go-go dancers, arrested by police on the grounds they were causing a traffic jam by dancing in the showcase window of a downtown club, received unexpected support in court from chief Crown prosecutor Andre Tessier.

"The charge faced by the accused is over 100 years old and is outmoded," he said after Elizabeth Wangberg, 20, and Sheila Brossard, 20, had pleaded not guilty Wednesday to contravening a city bylaw "by illegally dancing in a window . . . in such a manner as to attract a crowd on the sidewalk and street, the whole without written permission of the mayor."

"Why the next thing police will do is to arrest Santa Claus in store windows because people stop to watch him," Mr. Tessier said.

Judge Maurice Johnson set preliminary hearing for Sept. 14, allowing the two girls their liberty on parole until that date.

BENNETT ON DAM PAYMENT

'Ottawa Must Pay Interest'

Premier Bennett today said he expects to receive 6 per cent interest from Ottawa on the late $12 million flood relief payment from the U.S. regardless of what penalty Washington pays Ottawa.

"It comes to about $2,000 a day," he told reporters when revealing that discussions are under way now for the U.S. to catch up to its Columbia River Treaty obligations under which the payment became due last month when the Duncan Dam went into operation.

"We've had verbal contact (with Ottawa) and I sent them a friendly wire the day before yesterday—to my good friend Mr. Paul Martin (external affairs minister responsible for dealing with U.S. authorities on the treaty).

"We will ask 6 per cent and it is immaterial what interest the U.S. pays to Canada.

"We are dealing only with Ottawa on this as it is responsible for international treaties it has signed just as we are responsible to it for performing our part."

Mr. Bennett said the 6½ per question that an interest payment on the amount would have to be paid beginning July 31 when the dam was declared operational, a year ahead of schedule.

At $2,000 a day, the interest now owing would total $60,000.

Mr. Bennett said the 6 per cent interest rate was chosen because "that's the market interest rate today."

That percentage rate actually would produce an interest of $2,137 daily while 6 per cent would produce $1,972 a day.

'America Neglecting Home Issues'

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senator Robert F. Kennedy challenges the contention of Gen. Wallace M. Greene Jr., U.S. Marine Corps commandant, that Vietnam is more important than the plight of U.S. cities.

"That's a mistake," the New York Democrat said in an interview.

"President Johnson has said we can fight the war and still act on our problems at home.

"Our first priority should be to our own people. We are on the brink of the most serious crisis since the Civil War.

"It seems to me we are devoting all of the resources required to the war in Vietnam, but we are not doing so in respect to our domestic problems. There is no question that we have not done what we should have done for the urban and rural poor."

Greene told the American Legion convention Wednesday in Boston that if the United States does not stop the Communists in their promotion of world revolution "then our domestic problems and our pocketbooks are going to become mighty unimportant in the future."

Con-Shawkey Shares Will Return to List

TORONTO (CP) — Shares of Con-Shawkey Gold Mines Ltd., suspended from trading March 30, 1967, will be restored to the trading list of the Toronto Stock Exchange Sept. 5.

'Dolly Varden In Position Of Stability'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Dolly Varden Mines Ltd. has reported income of $23,720 for the year ended March 31.

The income, from recovery of road construction cost, rentals and interest, cut the administrative expenditure and deferred development to $791,367.

President Peter Cromie said in the company's annual report that the total deferred development for the year ended March 31 amounted to $981,497.

The company was awarded $348,000 in a lawsuit for breach of contract against Sunshine Mining Co. of Kellogg, Idaho, Aug. 18. The defendant was given 45 days in which to appeal.

Mr. Cromie said the activities of Dolly Varden in the last 12 months have put the company into a position of stability.

AT MONTREAL prices drifted fractionally lower in trading today.

Asbestos Corp., which has been edging higher since a company announcement of higher asbestos prices next year, slid ⅝ to 24.

Consolidated Paper dropped ⅞ to 35, and Calgary Power dipped ½ to 35.

Elsewhere on the exchange MacMillan-Bloedel rose ⅝ to 28, and Westcoast Transmission gained ¾ to 25¾.

AT LONDON Wednesday's firm trend continued on the market today as buying interest followed the hire-purchase relaxation moves. With sellers still reserved, buyers found the stock supply situation even more acute and gains ranged to over a shilling by mid-morning.

Leaders were well to the fore. Electrics rose up to a shilling. Motors were several pence better.

1968 CARS UNVEILED

Safety Features In Chrysler Models

CHICAGO (UPI) — Chrysler Corp. today unveiled its line of 1968 cars silhouetted by long, lower bodies and filled with luxury refinements, standard safety features and more power for a "sportier look" with "youthful appeal."

The introduction of a new, lightweight, high performance V8 engine, and a wide range of sports car options highlight the Plymough Barracuda offered in three body styles: The sports fastback, hardtop coupe and convertible coupe models.

The new 318-cubic inch engine gives Barracuda the biggest standard V8 in its class, according to Chrysler.

The Imperial, featured in five models, has a new grill which sweeps around on both sides to include the new turning lights in the front fenders.

Besides new styling features on Chrysler's 1968 cars, new standard safety features also have been installed. They include improved fuel tank retention, non-override inside door handles, front seat back latches, soft window crank knobs, impact-absorbing front seat headrest, power window safety lockout, one-piece impact absorbing steering column jacket and modifications in seat and shoulder belts.

27 MODELS

The 1968 Plymouth Fury line offers 27 models, including 19 eight-cylinder models and 8 six-cylinder models. Featured in the Fury is a new upper and lower full-width instrument panel padding.

The economy oriented Plymouth Belvedere is offered as a two-door coupe, four-door sedan and two-seat station wagon. Other Plymough entries in the intermediate group are the Satellite, sport Satellite and GTX.

The GTX continues at the top of the intermediate line with sporty integral, side-facing louvers than can be made functional as fresh air inlets to the carburetor. The intermediate class also offers highly curved side glass and a distinctive rear window treatment designed to heighten the "youth appeal" of the entire line.

LITTLE HOPE OF ACTION SEEN

UN Vietnam Paralysis Expected to Continue

By ROBERT H. ESTABROOK
The Washington Post

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y.—Few authorities here see any practical possibility of constructive security council action to end the Vietnam war at this time.

This reaction follows reiteration of the proposal by Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield (Mont.), this time with bipartisan support, that the United States place the issue before the council or possibly the general assembly.

In fact the issue is already on the security council agenda, having been introduced by the U.S. in February, 1966. But active consideration was dropped following severe Soviet criticism when it became apparent that all that would ensue would be further bitter debate.

Secretary-General U. Thant is known to feel that renewed reference of the issue to the UN would not be helpful now and would be likely to lead only to more recriminations and frustration.

SEE NO CHANGE

Two ambassadors of friendly countries represented on the 15-member security council also said privately today they could see no change in the situation that would warrant new hope for council action.

Thant himself was careful not to foreclose the possibility in a statement through his spokesman.

"The secretary-general's views regarding the effective involvement of the security council in the Vietnam war are well known," the statement noted. "Having said that, it is entirely up to the council to act or not to act on this matter."

But Thant also asserted at a press conference on May 11 he could see no way in which the UN could be "effectively involved" in settling the Vietnam conflict. The spokesman said today Thant's views remain the same.

A major reason why no positive result could be expected now is that two permanent members, the Soviet Union and France, have opposed further security council consideration.

Moreover, Communist China does not recognize the competence of the UN to deal with the Vietnam war, and North Vietnam has rebuffed every recent effort at peace talks made through the UN.

TECHNICALLY POSSIBLE

Technically the issue could be taken up if American ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg merely requested a security council meeting in a letter to the council president—Ambassador Roger Seydoux of France for August and Ambassador Goplaswami Parthasarathi of India for September.

But when the U.S. introduced the item in 1966, it was clear that the Soviet Union would veto any resolution.

Indeed, the U.S. had some difficulty in getting Vietnam on the agenda. There was no enthusiasm among other delegates and Jordan, which was then a non-permanent council member, tardily supplied the necessary ninth vote. Coincidentally, Jordan was simultaneously negotiating an arms agreement in Washington.

Although there are some slight indications that the Soviet Union now may be more interested in promoting a settlement in Vietnam, diplomats consulted today believe that Moscow would find renewed security council consideration of the issue embarrassing.

If there is a chance of Soviet help in facilitating peace talks, these sources say, it lies in quiet diplomacy rather than public discussions in which the Russians might have to take a hard position for propaganda reasons.

LIMITATIONS

"The security council is the last place you would think of if you expect a settlement," one ambassador member commented. "Those who advocate this approach don't know the limitations of the U.N.

Another ambassador said that while renewed reference to the security council might be useful in American domestic politics, it would be unlikely to advance a practical solution.

Misgivings about the American course in Vietnam are widespread here, and they might be voiced even more acrimoniously in the general assembly than in the security council.

This does not mean that the UN would not have a role in bringing about peace negotiations. Goldberg has consistently held out the hope that the UN could be usefully involved at the appropriate time.

But if that time comes the UN's part is more likely to be in arranging private negotiations and furnishing a meeting place than in merely encouraging new public debate.

Toronto Hippies Arrested

TORONTO (CP)—Police arrested 14 hippies today, including a youth who occupied Mayor William Dennison's chair in council Wednesday.

The youths, charged with trespassing, were removed from a house being renovated. It was the same house in which police arrested 14 hippies Tuesday.

Norman Frederick Petdorf, 17, was among the hippies who arrived at city council Wednesday and occupied the seats of the mayor and controllers before the city fathers arrived.

Three hours earlier, David DePoe, 23, a hippie spokesman and a worker for the Company of Young Canadians, had been refused permission by the mayor to speak because "he didn't prepare a written brief."

After some confusion, the hippies agreed to an appeal by Alderman David Rotenberg to drop their "chair-in" and sat on the floor at the rear of the room.

Of those arrested today, 12 boys and two girls were charged with trespassing. William Picton, 16, was charged with illegal possession of narcotics and another youth, Martin Grosweiner, 16, with possession of a spring knife.

Paris Loan To 'Liberate' Quebec?

PARIS (Reuters) — French government and banking officials said Wednesday there is nothing yet to back up press reports that France has decided to float a major loan by public subscription for Quebec "to liberate it from dependence on the New York money market."

"Various projects are under consideration but nothing has been decided yet," said a spokesman for France's leading Banque Nationale de Paris.

President de Gaulle promised a "considerable increase" in French aid to Quebec to help French-speaking Canadians maintain and develop their personality.

One major stumbling block in the way of a French loan to Quebec is the interest rate.

The difference in the interest rate between France and New York is one per cent — seven per cent on the French and European markets and six per cent in the United States.

And Quebec was reported not prepared to pay for dearer money in France when large loans are available in the U.S. at cheaper rates.

"As a result of my rather lengthy and detailed examination into the affairs of this division, I feel compelled to state that the evidence overwhelmingly indicated that the board of governors of this division, the commandant and officers and staff are performing and fulfilling a much needed and most valuable service to the corps, to the commissionaires, to the community and to the country.

"To cast a reflection upon or to condemn the entire board of governors, the commandant and the officers of this division, in the circumstances which here obtain, is not only most regrettable but is a disservice to the community and to the commissionaires."

Born at Amherst, N.S., Rear-Admiral Caldwell joined the engineering branch of the RCN as a cadet in 1933 and took his early training overseas with the British Royal Navy.

In 1941 he became engineer of one of the Canadian Tribal class destroyers, HMCS Athabaskan, and was mentioned in dispatches for his part in bringing the ship safely back to port after it was damaged by a bomb in the Bay of Biscay.

After the war, with the RCN, he became a specialist in the engineering side of naval aviation. He was appointed deputy chief of logistics, engineering and development at Ottawa in 1964.

The board of governors of the corps includes the following:

Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes, Brig. J. S. Adam, Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow, Capt. J. M. Grant, Lt.-Cmdr. H. L. Henderson, Rear-Admiral J. C. Hibbard, Major J. C. Holmes, Lt. O. Matson, Major Stanley Okell, Air Vice-Marshal V. H. Patriarche, former RCMP commissioner C. E. Rivett-Carnac, J. A. Wallace, general manager of Yarrows Ltd., Group Capt. Cecil Wyatt and deputy provincial secretary L. J. Wallace.

Magistrate Steps Down In Dispute

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Magistrate Donald B. Menzies Tuesday withdrew from hearing the case against five strikers charged following egg and rock-throwing disturbances at the strikebound Emco Ltd. plant in here last week.

The magistrate had come under criticism for comments in court that anyone convicted of violence at the strife-torn plant would "not be dealt with leniently."

"I think in the interest of justice some other person should sit on the court," he said after defence lawyer Aaron Brown referred to the magistrate's comments and his position on the London police commission.

"I don't agree in any way that I am biased in this case," the magistrate said. "But if there is a feeling that I may be, I am quite willing to stand aside."

The five strikers were remanded until Thursday to appear beofre another magistrate on charges of wilful damage, obstructing and assaulting policemen.

Defence counsel said since Magistrate Menzies sits on the police commission and handles hiring, firing, supervision and discipline of policemen, the magistrate would be placing himself in the position of "adjudging your own cause."

City Symphony To Perform On Labor Day

A free concert will be given by Victoria Symphony Orchestra on the grounds of the Legislative Buildings on Labor Day, commencing at 3 p.m.

The pop program featuring works by Mozart, Tschaikowsky and Strauss, will be conducted by Laszlo Gati.

In the event of rain the city has made Memorial Arena available for the concert.

The event has been sponsored by a grant from the B.C. Centennial Committee and assistance from Victoria Musicians' Association Trust Fund and the Greater Victoria Centennial Society.

'Must Answer Call Of Quebec'—France

PARIS (Reuters) — President de Gaulle believes the aspirations of French-speaking Canadians for greater autonomy are "a French national question," Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville said here today.

"France cannot remain indifferent to this French community and we must answer its call," he said.

The minister was reporting to the National Assembly's foreign affairs commission on the president's controversial trip to Quebec last month which ended in a diplomatic clash between France and Canada.

Parliamentary sources said the minister told the commission that the "rapturous" welcome received in Quebec proved to de Gaulle that French Canada's problem is a French national question which imposes certain duties on France.

Couve de Murville said the French government has decided to improve the organization and development of its co-operation with Quebec in the cultural, economic and financial fields.

"It is not a question of eliminating the United States, but of making an effort to diversify the Quebec economy."

The details of increased French aid to Quebec, decided in principle at a cabinet meeting last week, still are being studied by the relevant ministries, he added.

Shipowners Seek Talks

MONTREAL (CP)—Representatives of 32 shipping companies whose vessels are tied-up by the two-week strike of Great Lakes sailors hope to meet next week with Labor Minister Nicholson.

John McGiffin, president of the Canadian Lake Carriers Association, said today the companies had requested a meeting in Ottawa with the labor minister "so we might have a sane and sensible talk about the issues."

Drug Price Cuts In Effect Friday

Larger retail drug outlets are expected to cut prescription drug prices Friday, first day of freedom from a federal 12 per cent tax.

But independent operators may wait until existing stocks expire before cutting back their retail prices.

This was the gist of local reaction to suggested price reductions immediately, urged today by John Turnbull, director of the Canadian Pharmaceutical Association in Toronto.

A Victoria chain druggist pointed out that the federal government will pay druggists no rebate for taxes paid for stocks on hand.

MIXED REACTION

"Some will drop their prices, but they will also drop a bundle," he commented.

In his own store in the past few days, as clerks prepared for the elimination of tax, he has noticed $500 worth of markdowns on only a few items.

An independent druggist said, "I guess they will be down immediately," while another said he would make an immediate reduction.

One independent said the majority of druggists probably would "play by ear" the amount of price reduction, not knowing what new factory lists will be.

Turnbull asked druggists to cut prices without waiting for stocks to run out.

One druggist said the 12 per cent tax is applied at the manufacturer's cost level. This amounts to between 6 and 8 per cent on full retail prices, he said.

A $3.95 prescription would go down about 7 per cent, or 27 cents, it was thought.

D. H. Burgess, president of Merck, Sharp and Dohme, an American-owned drug supply company in Montreal, said his firm has ended list prices of drugs.

DRUGGISTS SET PRICES

He said the discontinuation of list-price suggestions "means that the pharmacist will determine the selling price without the guidance of the manufacturer."

Withdrawal of the federal tax carries a clause prohibiting manufacturers from raising prices for three months.

A statement from the B.C. Pharmaceutical Association welcomed the elimination of the 12 per cent tax, which it called a "tax on illness."

The association said the "average" percentage reduction on all drugs — prescription, over-the-counter and patent medicine — will be 8¾ per cent at retail level. Variations will be between 4 and 10.7 per cent.

A further reduction of 5 per cent on non-prescription drugs is hoped for by the association, which has appealed for B.C. sales tax elimination next year.

Receivership Bid Rejected By Judge

A bid to put a wholly-owned subsidiary of Atlas Chain Co. Ltd. into receivership has failed in B.C. Supreme Court Chambers.

Judge M. L. Tyrwhitt-Drake dismissed the application with costs to the company in a judgment delivered Wednesday.

The application was made on behalf of former Atlas president Douglas J. Lemery, who sought receivership for Globe Industries Ltd., the Atlas subsidiary holding patent rights on a power saw chain made here by Atlas under exclusive licence.

His sumbission was based on an alleged default in payment of debenture interest of $500 due June 1, which he argued made the whole sum due, a matter of $567,000.

Payment had been made by cheque mailed June 2, received June 6, but returned by the plaintiff.

Judge Drake, in his written judgment said:

"It seems to me that the bare facts which are relevant to the simple issue here are such as to suggest strongly that while the plaintiff is in a position to enforce the delivery of the flesh to which the law gives him the right, justice requires that he draw no blood in the process.

"The appointment of a receiver as appears from various affidavits filed on behalf of the defendant, would have a serious, if not crippling effect upon the whole undertaking of the defendant."

J. D. Fortin appeared for the plaintiff and R. B. Hutchison for the defendant.

Won't Devaluate

LONDON (UPI)—Prime Minister Harold Wilson today flatly and emphatically ruled out devaluation of the pound. "No change is planned in government economic policy," Wilson said when answering questions during an informal talk with newsmen.

UNPRECEDENTED ATTEMPT FOILED

Reds Stop U.S. in Arctic

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Accusing the Soviet Union of obstructionism, the United States announced today cancellation of an attempt by two American icebreakers to circumnavigate the Arctic Ocean.

The state department accused the Russians of frustrating "a useful scientific endeavor and thus to deprive the international community of research data of considerable significance" by objecting to passage of the vessels through a route south of the Soviet island of Novaya Zemlya.

It was on Novaya Zemlya that the Soviets tested their monster nuclear weapons in the atmosphere.

State department spokesman Carl Bartch said the dispute with the Russians arose when the U.S. Coast Guard icebreakers East Wind and Edisto ran into heavy ice in the Kara Sea.

On Monday it was disclosed the Coast Guard abandoned the attempt to accomplish the unprecedented feat—at a point near completion of the 8,000-mile journey which began about Aug. 8.

It was scheduled to end at the Lancaster Sound exit into Baffin Bay in northern Canada.

MISS PNE for 1967 is Nina Hamilton, 17-year-old dark-eyed beauty from Lac La Hache in the Cariboo. She was chosen Wednesday night over 27 other contestants, including Margaret Vickers, Miss Victoria.

OPERA STAR ASKS MILLIONS

NEW YORK (AP)—Metropolitan Opera star Robert Merrill and his wife, Marion, have filed a $2,775,000 suit for damages in connection with an automobile accident early this month. In papers filed in state Supreme Court Wednesday, Merrill said a truck owned by the AFT Contracting Co. struck his car while it was stopped. Both Merrill and his wife suffered injuries.

Language Problems Trouble Malaysia

KUALA LUMPUR (Reuters)—Malaysians today celebrated the 10th anniversary of their independence and prepared for a major test of it when Malay becomes the country's sole official language Friday.

Observers feared that instead of Malay serving as a unifying force the language will sharpen differences between the Malays—who form 50 per cent of the population—and the country's large Indian and Chinese minority groups.

The 1957 constitution stipulated that by the end of 10 years, English, which stood alongside Malay as an official language, should be dropped.

Some Malays felt the legislation did not go far enough, while other groups felt their own status was threatened.

A major complication has been the multi-language education system with Malays and English government schools, and communal Chinese and Indian-language schools. At university level, English has been and will be for some time the main language.

CAN USE ENGLISH

Language legislation still leaves the government with the right to decide to use English, or any other vernacular tongue if it thinks necessary.

It also guarantees English as an official language in the east Malaysia states of Sabah and Sarawak for another 10 years.

Some Chinese also feel that use of Malay will be a hindrance to them.

To add to the problem, there are packets of left-wing activists who may take advantage of such feelings to stir up trouble for their own ends.

Yet most of the leaders in the large Malay and Chinese communities, and Indian-Ceylonese groups recognize that the adoption of Malay as sole official language might well be the way to foster unity in the country.

Schools have been teaching Malay as a compulsory subject since independence.

In the law courts, with a tradition now firmly based on a heritage of English law and English training, the transition will be more difficult than in commerce and it is anticipated that English will continue to dominate for some considerable time.
